CRAIG PATRICK

Vice President and General Manager

If there's one thing you can say about the youngest General Manager in the New York Rangers' 60-year history, Craig Patrick, it is that he will always take the responsibility . . . but never the credit.

His way is the old way, when the players had the spotlight, and the administrators and agents and lawyers did not really exist in the eyes of the only people who matter—the fans.

Sure, he comes from hallowed hockey stock—the Patricks, who just about single-handedly got the Rangers off the ground and, through the years, made them the premier sports franchise that they are today. But, with all that heady, Craig Patrick knows the "backrooms" of hockey, knows what it is to play in the minor leagues . . . to move from team to team . . . to learn from adversity, the truest teacher.

In his four years as the head of the Rangers, Patrick has used these nuances to build a team that possesses some of the finest young talent in the game today. Players who have already produced, but will produce more. People like Mark Pavelich . . . James Patrick . . . Mark Osborne . . . Grant Ledyard . . . Tomas Sandstrom . . . John Vanbiesbrouck and Kelly Miller were all acquired by Patrick either through free-agent signings, trading or by the draft.

His heritage is hockey history. His grandfather, Lester, was the key moving force behind the original Rangers, guiding the new New York sport as Head Coach and General Manager to its three Stanley Cup titles. Once, at the age of 45, he even snapped on the pads in a Stanley Cup final to help his team after the regular goalie was injured. Craig's father, Lynn, took up the Ranger mantle too, first as an All-Star winger for the Broadway Blueshirts for a decade, then as their Head Coach from 1948 through 1950. Finally, Craig's uncle, Muzz, a former Canadian Heavyweight Amateur boxing champ, completed the triumvirate by playing rock-hard defense for the New Yorkers from 1937-41 and in 1945-46, before assuming the GM-Head Coach role for ten years, from 1954 to '64.

Craig, now the third generation to head the Rangers, knows what it is to take the ice. Before graduating from the University of Denver with a degree in Business Administration, the young Patrick helped the Pioneers to two NCAA Championships in 1968 and '69. After choosing the pros over the chance to captain the 1972 U.S. Olympic Team, he played eight years as a forward in the NHL, with California, St. Louis, Kansas City, Washington and Minnesota of the WHA before retiring in 1979. That year he captained the U.S.A. in the 1979 World Championships in Moscow. The next year, hockey history was made, as, along with Herb Brooks, Craig acted as Assistant General Manager and Assistant Coach of the Gold Medal-winning U.S. Olympic Team in Lake Placid, N.Y.

After joining the Rangers as their Director of Operations in 1980, he became the team's General Manager on June 4, 1981, and has twice taken on the additional duties as the team's Head Coach.

Craig and his wife Sue live in Pleasantville, N.Y. and have three children: a daughter, Erin (11½), and two sons, Cory (8½) and Ryan (6½.)

TED SATOR

Head Coach

"Hit the ground running" has become a colloqualism. And maybe Ted Sator invented it.

From the time this past June 19 that the 35-year old ex-Assistant Coach of the Philadelphia Flyers was appointed the 20th Head Coach of the 60-year old New York Rangers, he's been working . . . talking . . . planning . . . to make his new team one worthy to be proud of by all those people who come to the Garden every Ranger night.

"I hope the fans will judge us by the quality of work we present," he says. "I've never been associated with a losing team . . . and I don't plan on beginning now."

Both statements sum up Ted Sator's dedication . . . and experience.

Before helping Mike Keenan bring last year's Flyers to the Stanley Cup finals, Sator, the twelfth U.S.-born coach in the history of the NHL, went to Sweden to get his own head coaching experience—and turned out to be a winner. He coached two teams for five years and won four championships. Those are impressive numbers. From 1978 to 1981, he headed up the professional and minor system Vaxjo HC team, his first year as a player-coach, and brought Vaxjo's junior team to a first-place finish in 1979-80. The next year, it was first place for both teams. On to Rogle BK and even more success. In 1981-82 they were Division II Champions and then, in the next year, Series Champion in Division I South.

But that was "on-ice" international experience. There was more, of the technical variety that is a major part of today's hockey. In 1976, Sator, who was signed by the New York Raiders of the WHA out of Bowling Green State University, was one of only 10 American coaches chosen to study at a joint Canadian-USSR training seminar in Moscow. In 1983, he was the first American ever to be invited to the Czechoslovkian National Team Symposium in Prague. He was also a consultant to the AIK Stockholm club in the Swedish Elite Series and picked to be a Technical Advisor to the CSSR National Team in Prague. Finally, he was an Assistant Coach for the U.S. in the 1984 Canada Cup series.

America? Born in the U.S.A.! and educated there. At Bowling Green, with a Magna Cum Laude in Health and Physical Education and a hard knocks degree in hockey for the Falcons, for whom he played forward. He was selected as a senior in 1972 for the U.S. World Hockey University Team for the Lake Placid World Games. After his Raider year, he returned to Bowling Green to get his Masters and to be Assistant Coach, where he helped prepare for the pros such people as Ken Morrow of the New York Islanders and Mike Liut of the Hartford Whalers.

In 1974, he was appointed Head Ice Instructor and Director of the NHL Conditioning Program at the Huron Hockey School in Waterloo, Ontario, which has tutored numerous NHL pros. He still holds the position.

Ted is married to Susanne, and lives in Port Chester, N.Y.

JACK BIRCH

Assistant Coach

When you are embarking on a journey, you want someone behind you you can trust. That's why Ted Sator, new coach of the Rangers, chose Jack Birch to be one of his Assistant Coaches. They know each other's style, motivation, capabilities. For the past nine years, the two have worked together at the Huron Hockey School in Huron Park, Ontario. Sator as Head Ice Instructor, Birch, 31, as an Instructor—with each heavily involved with NHL pros. Immediately before accepting the job with the Rangers, Birch, a native of Peterborough, Ontario, was Head Coach for three years at the University of Waterloo in Ontario, and, before that, Head Coach at McMaster University for a year in Hamilton, Ontario.

Jack graduated from Waterloo in 1978 with a degree in Kinesiology and obtained his Masters (he is now going for his doctorate) in the same subject in 1980. He has been Assistant Director of the National Hockey Development Institute, where his responsibilities included the hiring of elite level coaches and the organization of the Memorial Cup Seminar, Level IV N.C.C.P. Clinics and the Ontario Midget Development Camps. He has written and spoken extensively on numerous hockey subjects, from the role of scouts in the sport, to the relationship of on-ice aggression to overall performance.

Jack is married, to Laurie Elaine and lives in Dundas, Ontario in the off-season.

JOE BUCCHINO

Manager of Team Operations

When it comes to knowing everyone and everything about the New York Rangers, Joe Bucchino is the man to deal with. Charged with the numerous and varied responsibilities of the team's logistical operations—from season-long travel arrangements to reconstruction of the Rangers new locker room facilities at Rye Playland this past summer, Bucchino is the man.

Boston born-and-bred, Joe, after playing some high school hockey, got his first pro hockey experience as a trainer with the Boston Bruins from 1974-76. In 1977, he was chosen as trainer for Team Canada in the World Cup Tournament (his picture with the team, along with present-day Rangers Ron Greschner and Pierre Larouche, is in the Hockey Hall of Fame). In 1978, he came to the Rangers, moving from Assistant Trainer to Head Trainer to the front office as Staff Assistant, Administrative Assistant, and, finally, in 1982, to Manager of Team Operations, directly under GM Craig Patrick.

This past summer, Joe administered the highly successful Ron Greschner Hockey Camp. This winter, in addition to all his other duties, Bucchino will teach a course on Sports Management in the continuing education program in Pleasantville, N.Y.

Joe and his wife Iris, who supervises the Annual Ranger Wives Fashion Show, live in Pleasantville with their year-old son, Andrew Joseph.

ANDERS HEDBERG

Assistant to the General Manager

As smooth as he was on the ice—has been Anders Hedberg's transition to the front office.

This past May 15, Hedberg became the first Scandinavian-born player to be appointed to a NHL front-office position when he was named Assistant to the Rangers General Manager, Craig Patrick. That day, he arrived in a tie and jacket, set up his pencils and charts and set about conducting the rest of his life as an evaluator and observer of NHL hockey talent. The same day, Anders, 34, became the first foreign athlete to win the coveted Masterton Trophy, given to that NHL player who "best exemplifies the qualities of perserverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey."

Never scoring below 50 goals while with the Winnipeg Jets from 1974-78 and helping them to two WHA titles, Anders came to the Rangers in 1978 and proceeded to become the team's 12th leading scorer in its 60-year history, accumulating 172 goals, 225 assists and 397 points in 465 games.

There were many memorable moments in those games: His game-winner that gave the Rangers a 4-3 win in the fifth game of the 1979 Semi-Final series against the Islanders, helping the Rangers onto the Stanley Cup Finals . . . a four-goal, two-assist game against Detroit in 1980 . . . his 100th NHL goal in 1982 . . . and his appearance in the 1985 All Star Game.

Anders and his wife, Gun-Marie, live in Scarsdale with their sons, Mattias (6) and Johan (2) and their daughter, Hanna (4).

REG HIGGS

Assistant Coach

When Ted Sator was appointed Head Coach of the Rangers, he said his assistants were the kind of men "you'd go to war with." Reg Higgs is one of them. His primary responsibility as Sator's Assistant Coach will be the on-ice preparation and instruction of the Rangers through the season.

Higgs, 42, comes well prepared. For the past nine seasons, he has been Head Coach at the University of Regina, where he built a 131-62-1 record for the Cougars. In that time, his charges have never finished worse than third and have won four Great Plains Athletic Conference Championships. Regina also earned a berth in the 1980 Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union final (Canada's equivilant of the NCAA), but was defeated by the University of Alberta. In 1982, Reg was named Canadian University Head Coach of the Year. Higgs, who played collegiate hockey at the University of Western Ontario, has (along with Sator and fellow Assistant Coach Jack Birch) been an Instructor at the Huron Hockey School, a talent evaluator for the '84 Canadian Olympic Team, and an Assistant Coach for the Canadian Olympic squad in games against Sokol Kiev of Russia in 1982-83. He holds the highest CAHA coaching certification, Level V. The native of Dresden, Ontario has a Ph.D. in educational psychology from the University of Minnesota.

Reg is married, to former Canadian golf champion Sue Hilton, and has two boys, Jake (9) and Greg (5). He lives in Regina in the off-season.

Born: 3/28/61

Off-Season Home:
Fort Francis, Ont.

1984-85: Déjà vu for the valuable center, as he was again, for the third year in a row, waylaid by leg injuries . . . Had a promising first half of the year, bettering (by one) in only his 24th game of the year his entire point total from each of the last two years . . . But, by mid-January, after 31 games, a persistent problem in his right knee necessitated surgery on 1/17 for torn anterior cruciate ligaments, and he was done for the rest of the season . . . Ended the year with 24 PTS, the highest of his three injury-riddled years since the 64 PTS he posted in his impressive rookie year (1980-81) . . . Finished the year tied for second place with Don Maloney for shooting percentage (19.6) . . . Also finished even for his games in the plus/minus category . . . In all, had some terrific games before the end came. In his first game of the year, (after missing the Rangers' first three while recovering from knee surgery during the summer), 10/20 at Washington, after the Rangers had been down by three, his conversion of a rebound of a shot by Reijo Ruotsalainen with 3:53 to play in the game proved the game-winner in New York's 6-5 victory that broke a three-game winless streak and notched the Rangers first win of 1984-85. The next night, against the Islanders at the Garden, Allison continued his heroics, earning Star of the Game honors through three points on a goal and two assists in a game that the Rangers again returned after a three-goal deficit to win. At 8:05 of the second period, he attempted a centering pass that was blocked, recovered the puck and bounced it in past Islander goalie Kelly Hrudey off a gaggle of bodies to bring the Rangers to within one, 3-2. Three-and-a-half minutes later, at 11:43, Allison surprised Hrudey by, instead of taking a shot from his position along the right boards, dropping a pass to Don Maloney, who whipped it in for the Rangers go-ahead score, 4-3. Allison then assisted Tomas Sandstrom on the goal that put the club up, 5-3, with the Rangers eventually beating their arch rivals, 6-5. He was a +3 for the game, as he was for the next match, 10/25 at New Jersey, being on ice for three scores, including handing out an assist, in New York's most decisive road victory ever, 11-2 . . . Looking at the six games he played in that span (through 10/30, when he injured his lower back), he graded out to a +6 for the first six . . . Embarked on his most consistent stretch of games after returning from back problems on 11/11 vs. Los Angeles—15 games, through 12/10, again vs. Los Angeles. Accumulated his final 6 G and 7 A during that period. Had four two-point games in the sequence, with 2 PPG and 2 PPA. The two goals were the lone two in the Rangers' 4-2 defeat at Philadelphia on 12/8. Broken down, his four two-pointers included a final goal of a tie game (12/5 vs. Calgary); an assist on the final goal of a tie game (11/30 vs. Toronto); two game-tying goals after which the score changed (11/14 at Chicago and 12/8 at Philadelphia); and two assists on first goals of games (11/30 vs. Toronto and 12/5 vs. Calgary.) . . . Remainder of season was broken up due to the knee miseries, but did have one more highlight—his 150th Ranger point on 1/12, when, while down on the ice, his rebound found the cords at 7:27 of the third period to put New York ahead by one at St. Louis, 3-2, in a 4-4 tie.

CAREER: Rangers' 2nd Round Choice (35th overall) in 1980 NHL Entry Draft from Sudbury Wolves (OHA) . . . Starred for Sudbury, especially in his final year there, accounting for an incredible 95 PTS in 67 GP, on 24 G and 71 A . . . Spent his only full, injury-free year with the Rangers in 1980-81 and showed what he is capable of, playing a full 75 games and establishing Ranger rookie records for points (64) and assists (38), which were broken the next year by Mark Pavelich . . . Introduced himself to the NHL in a spectacular two-game way, scoring :46 into his first NHL shift, on his very first shot in the big leagues, on opening night of the '80-'81 season (10/9), besting Rogie Vachon at Boston. Next game, at Toronto, topped that by getting the hat trick on 10/11, giving him four goals in his first six shots in the NHL. Added to his first year exploits two of the four game-winning goals in the Rangers' triumph over St. Louis in the quarter-final round of the playoffs . . . Began sophomore season in much the same style as his debut year, by scoring a goal in his first game of the year, on 10/6/81 vs. Detroit. Missed 17 games with right knee ligament problems after a check by the Islanders' Bryan Trottier and, later, a hit by the Bruins' Rick Middleton . . . Limited to 39 games and spent some time in Tulsa of the CHL for recuperative purposes in 1982-83 with injuries to both knees. Recalled on 3/14/83 and played through the playoffs before again injuring his right knee . . . Went down again the next year, when hit by Bengt Gustafsson of Washington on 10/13,83, suffering a sprained left knee and playing half a season (45 games), ending the year as a +5. Played in his 200th game as a Ranger on 2/29/84 at Toronto . . . Highest amount of career goals against an opponent is nine, facing the Islanders.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Red," which, the NHL says, is the all-time most popular nickname in league history, "Red Dog" . . . The Rangers player rep . . . Has a foreign background. His father, Bill—an economics and history teacher—originally from Scotland, taught in Wales, where Mike spent considerable time as a child. . . . Father played some junior hockey for the Brandon Wheat Kings . . . Brother, Dave, played last year in Montreal Canadiens system for Sherbrooke and Nova Scotia in American Hockey League. The two faced each other in the NHL only once, Rangers vs. Montreal at the Garden, 3/25/84 . . . Returned to hometown of Fort Francis to finish up his log cabin on the island he owns . . . Did many appearances for team in early summer before returning north . . . Dropped into Toronto for the '85 NHL Entry Draft to aid at the Rangers' table . . . His high, cackling laugh can always be heard in the locker room . . . Not adverse to joking, too, like reaching across your back and tapping you on your far shoulder, so you turn away from him to see who wants you . . . Single.

DON MALONEY ON ALLISON: "Every time we get together, we get some good chances. And he's so good on the faceoffs. Ninety percent of the time he wins the draws and we're starting off with the puck." (Frank Brown, New York Daily News)

6-3 215 Shoots L
Born: 6/3/57
Vancouver, B.C.
Off-Season Home:
New York, N.Y.

1984-85: The Dominator and team captain had season devastated by injuries, playing fewest games in NHL career, 56, with club missing him sorely when out . . . Re-injured on opening night vs. Hartford at the Garden the left shoulder he had hurt against Islanders year before in playoffs. Missed next eight games. Bruised right instep 12/12 vs. Boston and missed two games; suffered left hip pointer 1/5 at Boston, missing two games; then re-aggravated the shoulder injury 3/17 vs. New Jersey and missed rest of the season. Mixed in with all of that was a vicious skate cut below his right eye he incurred when he collided with Gaetan Duchesne vs. Washington 2/28. Didn't miss any games due to that injury, though . . . Returned for all playoff action . . . In spite of these stops and starts, still ended season with 7 G, 19 A for 26 PTS, with several of those points being auspicious for both team and him personally. . . . In the game that marked his return after his first injury, Beck was on ice for five of the Rangers' six even-strength goals in 7-5 New York win 11/3 at Pittsburgh; on 2/17 vs. the Islanders, his insurance short-handed goal (that made the game 3-1 in eventual 9-3 rout of Islanders at MSG) gave him two for season (other was on 12/26 at Detroit), to tie him (with Peter Sundstrom) for team leadership for season and also make him first Ranger defenseman since Dave Maloney (in 1978-79) to score that many in a season. Interestingly, he has had only two other SHGs in eight-year NHL career . . . On a career-milestone note, he registered his 150th NHL assist 11/28 vs. Washington; his 350th Ranger game 12/5 vs. Calgary; and his 500th NHL game (148 for Colorado, 352 for Rangers) 12/8 at Philadelphia . . . Finished year only one goal shy of 100 in career (37 with Colorado, 62 with New York) . . . Only one other Ranger (Ruotsalainen with three) had more final game-tying goals than Beck, who notched two, with both earning the team a point, and both of which were the final score in identical 3-3 ties against Montreal and Edmonton. The first, 12/23 vs. the Canadiens came with 5:49 left in the third period on a power play; the second, 3/9 at Edmonton, 1:59 from the end . . . His power play goal against Montreal also tied him with Sundstrom for team lead, his other advantage score coming 12/7 vs. Pittsburgh—a game-opening goal . . . Five of his seven tallies came at MSG, three against Patrick Division rivals . . . Four times, he had two-assist games, Rangers winning three of them, with two coming on the power play and two, more importantly, being game-winning assists . . . Had a goal and an assist vs. the Islanders 11/9 in 5-4 OT victory for Rangers, their third win in row . . . As usual, played his time and then some on the critical special teams, helping lead Rangers to a No. 7 ranking in league on power play efficiency, and a No. 4 rating in penalty-killing . . . Operated on immediately after season by team physician Barton Nisonson to have shoulder repaired, 4/18.

CAREER: Acquired by Rangers in five-player trade with Colorado Rockies on 11/2/79 in exchange for Left Wing Pat Hickey, Right Wing Lucien Deblois, Defensemen Mike McEwen and Dean Turner and future considerations (Center Bobby Crawford) . . . 1st round selection (2nd overall) by Colorado (now New Jersey) in 1977 NHL Amateur Draft. Immediately before that, led New Westminster Bruins of WCHL to Memorial Cup Championship, being chosen MVP of the championship and for Cup All-Star Team . . . Set an NHL record in 1977-78 (which still stands) for Most Goals By A Rookie Defenseman (22) that year and also mark for Most Points By A Rookie Defenseman In A Season, 60, since bettered by Boston's Ray Bourque in 1979-80 (65). Finished second in Calder Memorial Trophy Rookie of Year voting to Islanders' Mike Bossy. Chosen in rookie year for NHL All-Star Game. Second on Rockies in overall team scoring, with 22 G, 38 A for 60 PTS . . . Selected for NHL All-Stars in historic '79 Challenge Cup series against Soviet Union . . . Scored winning goal in MSG Ranger debut, on 11/7/79, a 8-4 win over Los Angeles, crashing into crossbar to do so. Ranger leader in assists, with 45, in 1979-80. Led Ranger defensemen in GWGs that year, with four. Scored his first playoff goal-ever vs. Atlanta on 4/12/80. Recorded 100th NHL assist 1/19/80 vs. Boston . . . Popped in first career short-handed score on 1/23/81 at Edmonton (second came on 2/23/84 vs. Quebec). Notched 200th point on 3/25/81 at Buffalo. Named 19th Ranger Captain on 2/4/81 . . . First injured left shoulder in 1981-82 (2/24/82 vs. Chicago). Selected for '82 NHL All Star Game . . . Changed his uniform number in '82-'83 from No. 3 to No. 5 which he had worn with Colorado . . . Attained 300th NHL point 2/9/84 at Minnesota; 200th NHL assist 12/7/83 vs. Washington; 200th Ranger point 3/17/84 vs.Chicago; and played in 300th Ranger game on 1/2/84 at Washington . . . Awards/Honors: Rangers Good Guy Award, as voted by New York chapter of Professional Hockey Writers Association, 1981-82; Rangers Fan Club Frank Boucher Trophy (Most Popular Ranger), with Nick Fotiu, 1983-84; West Side Association Trophy (Rangers' MVP, as voted by voted by media), 1983-84 . . . Team Records Held: (Regular Season) Most Penalty Minutes By A Defenseman, Season—231 (1980-81); (Playoffs) Most Points By A Defenseman, One Year: 13, 1980-81 (tied with Mike McEwen, 1978-79.)

PERSONAL: Nicknames: "Bubba," "B.B." . . . A confirmed "Honeymooners" Fan, belonging to "R.A.L.P.H.," the Royal Association for the Longevity and Preservation of the Honeymooners. His favorite Honeymooner episode: "Harvey" . . . Also a pro wrestling fan, with George (The Animal) Steele being his favorite. Bought "The Pictorial History of Wrestling: The Good, The Bad and The Ugly" last year . . . On a serious note, was granted the Gold Medal Award on 10/15/84 by the West Side Association of Commerce for his work with underprivileged youngsters with the United Neighborhood Houses of New York through the Barry Beck Foundation . . . Also, along with teammates Ron Greschner and Glen Hanlon, recorded TV public service commercials for Gov. Cuomo's Anti-Drunk Driving campaign . . . Youngest of three brothers. One was drafted by the old Houston Aeros . . . Single.

6-1 200 Shoots R
Born: 1/18/60
Moose Jaw, Sask.
Off-Season Home:
Regina, Sask.

1984-85: Split the season between the parent club and its New Haven Nighthawks affiliate . . . Had an impressive camp, scoring three assists in the Rangers' first pre-season game at the Garden against the Islanders and tying for the team lead in scoring with Pierre Larouche, Reijo Ruotsalainen and Barry Beck, with 1 G and 4 A (the goal being a short-handed score) . . . Began the season with the Rangers and played in the first five games . . . Thereupon was optioned to New Haven and that began a series of moves between the Rangers and Nighthawks during the season that featured him in the No. 1 emergency fill-in role for the club . . . Ended up playing 12 games for the Rangers, with his lone score being a game-tying one at 1-1 on 1/27 vs. Minnesota in a game that was won on a Nick Fotiu goal, 3-2 . . . In his three separate stays with New Haven, did some credible scoring, accumulating 44 PTS in 64 GP on 21 G and 23 A . . . Ended up as the fourth-highest goal-scorer on the Hawks, missing the top spot by four tallies, behind Dan Brennan (25), Randy Heath (23), and Daryl Evans (22) . . . Tied five others for the most game-winning goals on the team—3. They all came in one-goal games: 12/7 vs. Moncton, a 5-4 win; 12/22 at Hershey, a 4-3 win; and 12/28 vs. Rochester, a 6-5 triumph . . . Had three power play scores . . . Recalled by the Rangers for the final two games of the year and for playoff duty if necessary.

CAREER: Obtained by Rangers from the Detroit Red Wings along with left wing Mark Osborne and defenseman Willie Huber for goaltender Eddie Mio and right wings Eddie Johnstone and Ron Duguay on 6/14/83 . . . Detroit's 1st Round choice (11th overall) in the 1980 NHL Entry Draft from Regina Pats of the Western Hockey League . . . After the 1977-78 season at Regina, spent a year at the Univ. of Wisconsin, playing against the likes of present Ranger teammate Mark Pavelich, who was with the Univ. of Minn.-Duluth . . . Returned to the WHL the next year and really burned things up, registering 71 G in 63 GP, plus 38 A for a total of 109 PTS. That goal-total was second in the league to Regina teammate Doug Wickenheiser (now with St. Louis), who had 89, and earned him a berth on the loop's Second-Team All-Star squad. Helped Regina to the Memorial Cup finals that year also . . . Split his first pro season (1980-81) between Detroit and their Adirondack AHL affiliate. Played in his first NHL game on 10/10/80 at Vancouver and notched his first two big league scores in the same game, on 10/23/80 vs. Colorado, past goalie Hardy Astrom in a 5-1 Red Wing win. Finished season with Calder Cup champs Adirondack . . . Played in all 80 games for the Wings the next year, attaining his highest-scoring NHL year, 23 G, 32 A for 55 TP, including four two-goal games . . . Again played a full 80-game campaign in the season immediately before joining the Rangers, posting three game-winning goals (two within one week, 12/4-12/11/82) and two double-goal games and a three-assist match . . . Evenly divided his first Ranger year between the main team and their Central Hockey League Adams Cup Champion Tulsa Oilers farm club. Took the ice for 36 games for New York (5 G, 6 A, 11 TP). Beat Calgary at the Garden on 10/19 with his first period goal that proved the game-winner (3-1) and boosted the Rangers to a 7-1-0 opening-of-season record. Optioned to Tulsa on 1/12/84 and played a major role in their title run in which they copped eight of nine playoff games. Finished tied with teammate Gary Burns for second place in CHL playoff scoring (6 G, 6 A, 12 TP in 9 GP). There were two game-winners in there, and the six scores tied him with Oiler teammate Bob Scurfield for second ranking among league playoff leaders. Also had the only hat trick of the playoffs, on 4/14/84 at Salt Lake City. Had two game-winning assists, which tied him for the playoff lead . . . Will reach 250 NHL games this year when he plays in his 10th game.

PERSONAL: Nicknames: "Blazer," "Wally" . . . Likeable, congenial guy . . . Chooses playing Russia in a junior game as his main hockey thrill . . . BLAISDELL QUOTE (On the need for being prepared): "You've got to have a built-in computer. You have to look at the defensemen, where the puck is, if the goalie's set. And you've got to do it like that (snaps his fingers). Plus, you have to know where the rest of your guys are, and when to look for them. It becomes a problem of knowing when to shoot and when not to." (Mark Everson, New York Post)

Born: 12/16/60

Off-Season Home:
Port Chester, N.Y.

1984-85: Showed how unusual his talents are in the age of hockey specialization by playing every position on the ice other than goalie, sometimes switching locations in mid-game . . . Began the season on a rough note, when, on 10/11 vs. Hartford in the Rangers' opener, he, first, took stitches in his chin from an errant stick, then, soon after, separated his right shoulder after a check into the boards by the Whalers' Chris Kotsopoulos . . . Missed the next five games, but returned to play a total of 72 of the season's 80 . . . Finished the year with 7 G, 9 A for 16 PTS and tied five others for second-place on the club in game-winning goals, with two . . . First game-decider came on 12/1 at Toronto, when he scored the contest's first two goals (at 15:25 of the first period and 9:26 of the second) in New York's 4-1 victory. His first came on a deflection of a James Patrick shot, and his second was a 50-foot blast that beat goalie Allan Bester. The win broke a four-game Ranger winless streak. Brooke's second GWG came 2/22 at Pittsburgh, when his score seven seconds from the end of the first period gave the Rangers a 4-0 lead and proved to be the game-winner in their 8-3 win, which gave New York a six-point lead over the last-place Penguins in the battle for a Patrick Division playoff spot . . . Three of his other five scores on the year were go-ahead goals for the club (11/14 at Chicago, a loss; 1/5 at Boston, a tie; and 3/17 vs. New Jersey, a win) . . . Six of his nine assists were contributed at timely spots, with five of them coming in winning causes (two being go-ahead assists, one coming on the first goal of the game and one on the game-tying goal) and one providing the game-knotter in an eventual tie . . . After playing the whole year at right wing, was switched to defense in an emergency 1/5 in his hometown of Boston as defensive regulars Tom Laidlaw and Barry Beck went down with injuries. It was his first game at Boston Garden since his high school days, and the day was made complete when, before the switch, his score at 8:28 of the second period put the Rangers up, 2-1, in the eventual 3-3 tie . . . His next positional move was a memorable one also. On the night of 2/17 vs. the Islanders, Brooke was transferred up front again, this time to center, for the first time since his Yale University playing days, and he responded by capping the Rangers' four-goal burst with a score at 17:19 of the second period that put the club up, 7-2, in their 9-3 victory. It was his first Ranger goal ever at Madison Square Garden . . . Finished the year with third-most penalty minutes on the squad—79 . . . Played in his 50th game as an NHLer on 1/24 vs. Detroit . . . Had a steady three games at center in the playoffs, putting five shots on Pelle Lindbergh in Game No. 2 at Philadelphia on 4/11 . . . Immediately after, was selected for the medal-round American team in the World Championships in Prague, playing in nine games of the competition.

CAREER: St. Louis Blues' 3rd Round choice (75th overall) in 1980 NHL Entry Draft from Yale University . . . Traded to Rangers on 3/5/84 along with center Larry Patey for right wing Dave Barr and a third round 1984 draft choice (goaltender Alan Perry) . . . Was an All-Scholastic hockey and baseball standout at Acton-Boxboro (MA.) High School . . . Had a highly successful career at Yale University before joining 1984 U.S. Olympic Team and then going pro . . . Only ex-Eli ever to play in the NHL. Is Yale's all-time leading scorer (155 PTS on 42 G and 113 A). His career undergraduate assist total is also a school record. Selected for the 1980 U.S. National Junior Team (only ECAC player so chosen) in the World Junior Tournament. Chosen in 1980-81 for his first of three National Sports Festival American teams which won gold medal each year. In 1981-82, garnered Yale MVP, All-Ivy honors. Repeated both citations the next year, while adding a U.S. National team berth at the World "B" Tournament. Completed his Eli career by being chosen an ECAC First-Team All-Star and a NCAA All-American first teamer. Also was a finalist for the Hobey Baker Award, given to the best college player in the land . . . Right after, joined up with the pre-Olympic U.S. National Team which won the World "B" Group Championship in Tokyo. Registered four goals and four assists in world games, including game-winners against Yugoslavia and Norway. Played all three forward positions and on defense in 54 games for the Nationals . . . Played in six Olympic games in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, getting a goal and two assists . . . After the Olympics, came to the Rangers, playing in nine games and five playoff matches. Scored on his first NHL shot on net in only his second league game, on 3/10 at Edmonton—a 50-foot blast . . . Chosen for Team USA in Canada Cup series in September, '84.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Brookie" . . . Only second man in 60-year Ranger history to wear No. 13 on his sweater. First was forward Jack Stoddard, from 1951-53 . . . A thoughtful, mature, self-assured personage . . . Wrote a Sunday column for the New York Times this past season on his 1984 Olympic experience. Has thoughts of perhaps doing a book on the subject . . . A starting shortstop behind New York Mets' pitcher Ron Darling when both were at Yale . . . An economics major and B+ student in college, he wrote his senior thesis on the English economist of the 1800's, John Maynard Keynes. Asked what was most memorable about the 35-page paper, he answered, "I got an A." . . . Second Ranger (along with Don Maloney) to get married this past off-season, to Helen Stockton on 7/20 in Brookline, MA.

BROOKE QUOTE (On playing center): "At center, you always have the feeling that you control the play . . . As a center, you get quite used to roaming around on the ice. It's a busy position; you're into the game so much more, mentally and physically. That's the same reason I was always a shortstop in baseball, too; there's a lot of action." (Kevin Dupont, New York Times)

Born: 2/11/58

Off-Season Home:
Stamford, CT

1984-85: Still-young vet rejoined Rangers after previous seasons with the team through the NHL's Waiver Draft, being selected from the Quebec Nordiques in the first round of the process on 10/9 . . . Played in the first two quarters of the season, then was optioned on 1/11 to the Rangers New Haven Nighthawks American Hockey League team before he was brought back up as a possible active roster replacement for the NHL playoffs . . . Two days after he was taken in the waiver draft, he played his first Ranger game since 1/3/83, wearing his old No. 33 sweater, in the team's 1984-85 opener vs. Hartford . . . Ended up his 25 first-half of the season games with New York with no goals and seven assists . . . Three of those assists came in one game, on 10/25 at New Jersey in the Rangers' 11-2 triumph, establishing a personal mark for most points in a game and helping set a team standard for Most Decisive Road Victory ever. Assisting on three of the Rangers' final four goals of the game, his second-to-last assist (on Ron Greschner's power play score at 3:26 of the third period that made it 9-2) tied the previous largest mark of a seven-goal difference on the road (which had been accomplished 11 times in Ranger history, going all the way back to the team's second season), and Dore's last assist of the night (on Nick Fotiu's score at 12:35) helped establish the new mark. He was on ice for five of the Ranger scores, finishing as a +4 for the night . . . Had seven-minutes in penalties vs. Boston on 10/28, his single-game high-water mark for his Ranger tenure . . . Turned in a offensively-productive season for the Nighthawks, finishing second by one point (to Grant Ledyard) in points by a defenseman—25, and also second among the backliners in assists (five behind Jim Wiemer)—22. Ranked fifth on the 'Hawks in PIM, with 48, this in his 39 games in the AHL . . . Notched a short-handed goal for New Haven on 2/22 . . . Had played in an exhibition game for Quebec's Fredericton Express AHL affiliate the night before he was re-claimed by the Rangers.

CAREER: Rangers' 5th Round choice (60th overall) in the 1978 NHL Amateur Draft from Quebec Ramparts of the Quebec Junior Hockey League . . . Had played for three teams in the QJHL before coming to the Rangers, Hull, Trois Rivieres and Quebec, with his first year as a junior, 1976-77, turning out to be his most productive, offensively, with 51 PTS on 9 G and 42 A . . . Played in only two games for the Rangers in his rookie year, making his NHL debut on 3/7/79 vs. Colorado. Spent the bulk of the year (71 GP) in New Haven . . . Basically split the next two years in the same way, with a total of 17 games in New York with the rest of the seasons up the thruway in New Haven, but got in in that time his first NHL goal on 11/8/80 at Vancouver against Richard Brodeur . . . The next year, 1981-82, was his first extended stay with the Blueshirts, playing in 56 games after he was brought up from Springfield of the AHL on 11/27/81 and taking the ice in every game after that for the rest of the season, including all 10 playoff games, getting his lone NHL career playoff goal on 4/11/82 at Philadelphia to give Rangers 2-0 lead. Reached his Ranger single-season high-point mark that year too, with 20 PTS (4 G, 16 A) . . . Played the first half of the next year in New York—getting a GWG on New Year's Day, 1/1/83 at Washington, in 7-2 win—before being dealt on 1/4/83 to St. Louis for goaltender Glen Hanlon and right wing Vaclav Nedomansky. Finished the season as the Blues' top plus/minus player, with a +9 rating. Combining that with his +17 mark with New York before he left, Dore finished the year with an envious +26 . . . Played the bulk of 1983-84 with the Blues before going on 2/10/84 in a trade "back home," so to speak, to the Quebec Nordiques in a deal for defenseman Dave Pichette, now with New Jersey (so, three of the four people involved in Dore trades are now back in the metropolitan area.) His 32 PTS for both teams matched his total of the year before, marking his high in the NHL. Finished his St. Louis-Quebec year with a +4 ranking and contributed a game-winning score on 10/11/83 vs. Vancouver in Blues' 3-2 victory . . . As far as New Haven goes, Andre ranks No. 2 on their all-time defenseman scoring list, with 133 PTS (26 G, 107 A) behind John Bednarski's 164 and couples that productivity with a No. 9 ranking on the team's all-time PIM list (386) . . . Needs only seven more points this season to reach 150 in the NHL.

PERSONAL: Nicknames: "Trap," "A.D." . . . Good, outgoing personality . . . Can use that sort of approach in his summer job as an assistant sales trader with Bear, Stearns & Company down on Wall St. Prepared himself for the business world by taking courses while with New Haven . . . Estimates he goes through three pairs of skates in a season . . . Enabled everyone to watch the Rangers Annual Christmas Party as it was happening this past season with tape from his video camera being shown on the team's locker room TV set . . . Childhood hero, growing up in Montreal, was Jean Beliveau . . . Favorite singer is Harry Chapin . . . His stick lie: 6 . . . Married: Wife, Michelle; Daughter: Chantale (1½).

DORE QUOTE (On working on Wall St.): "You have to move more quickly with your head rather than your hands . . . I always intended to do something when my career was over, but I didn't know what. A few years ago, most hockey players wouldn't have stopped long enough to think about it." (Gerald Eskenazi, New York Times)

1984-85: Put in his second successive year of consistent special teams play and solidified his role as a hard-working, unselfish winger . . . A main reason why the Rangers finished fifth in the NHL in penalty-killing, with a 80.8 kill-rate . . . Set the team season record for Most Assists In A Game, on 1/18 vs. New Jersey, the most for the team in a single match since 1/1/83, by Robbie Ftorek. The "aiders" came on goals that put the Rangers up by one (2-1), up by two (3-1), up by four (6-2) and finally, gave them the winning margin, at 15:38 of the second period, when Erixon assisted Swedish buddy Peter Sundstrom on the eventual winning goal of the game (7-3) in New York's 9-6 triumph. It was also the first four-point game of Erixon's two-year NHL career . . . To go along with that game, added a three-point performance (all assists) 11/3 at Pittsburgh in 7-5 win and five two-point games . . . Ended season with 7 G and 22 A for 29 PTS in 66 GP . . . As typifies his style of play, his assists carried perhaps more impact than his goals, accounting for, in nine Ranger wins, three game-winning goals; one game-tying goal; two first goals of the game; and four go-ahead goals. And of his seven seasonal goals (in four wins), three were go-ahead goals and one was a first goal of the game . . . Had three distinct point hot streaks during the season. First came from 10/20-11/7, with 9 PTS in 8 GP (2 G, 7 A), with 7 PTS coming within the Patrick Division. Next was in second quarter of season, from 12/15-12/29, for 5 PTS in 7 GP (1 G, 4 A). And final hot span came in the next quarter, from 1/18-2/22, with a 12-point splurge in 16 games (1 G, 11 A), with 7 PTS against the division. In final game of that sequence, he blocked a shot with his left foot, and the resultant contusion and soon-to-occur broken nose both forced him to miss 11 of team's final 20 games . . . The nose injury had to be one of the all-time "good news, bad news" incidents ever, as, on 3/6 at Vancouver, he was credited with a goal when a rocket from the stick of Ftorek hit him smack in the face, breaking his nose and blackening both his eyes, as the rubber ricocheted past Canuck goalie Richard Brodeur for game's first goal in Rangers' 6-3 win . . . Scored his first short-handed goal as a Ranger on 10/27 at Quebec, to put New York up, 2-1, at 5:07 of the second period in 5-2 win . . . Played in his 100th NHL game on 12/12 vs. Boston, a 3-3 deadlock . . . When it all was over, 21 of Erixon's 29 points came on the road . . . Played in two of the team's three playoff games, missing the final match with his foot injury.

CAREER: Ranger's 2nd Round Draft Choice (30th overall) in 1981 NHL Entry Draft from Skelleftea (Sweden) . . . Selected (along with the likes of Sundstrom, James Patrick and John Vanbiesbrouck) in one of the team's most successful drafts, but had to fulfill, along with pal Sundstrom, his military obligation (they were in Army together) and matured on ice for two more seasons in Sweden, as Rangers desired, before coming over. The year he was drafted, was selected for the Swedish Junior National Team that took the 1980-81 World Championship. Chooses the title game of that series as his most memorable game ever. Top year before coming to the NHL was his last, when he registered 28 PTS in 36 GP on 10 G and 18 A, at least doubling his production from any previous year . . . Came over to North America from the light Swedish schedule in 1983-84 and took on the rigors of a full 80-game NHL season with aplomb. Compiled the third-best plus/minus rating on the team, a +14, ranking him No. 7 in the league among rookie regulars. Also tied five other first-year men for second-place in league for Assists In Consecutive Games, 5. Notched first NHL score, against Pittsburgh's Marcel Dion, on the road, on 10/8/83 in 6-1 Ranger victory. Comported himself very well in his first NHL playoffs, scoring the first goal of the Patrick Division Semi-Final Series on 4/4/84 at the Islanders, then getting the game-winner (his second goal in as many games) to bring the Rangers to within one of taking the series on 4/7/84 at the Garden . . . The kid from Sweden likes Jersey, because the team he's scored his most points against in his NHL career is the Devils—2 G, 9 A for 11 PTS in 13 GP.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Exit" . . . Has verbally opened up more, now that he's put in two years in North America . . . He and fellow sophomore Sundstrom welcomed 1984-85 Ranger rookie Tomas Sandstrom to their abode in Rye, N.Y. . . . All will miss their pal Anders Hedberg, now in the Ranger front office . . . A Springsteen fan . . . Chooses one of the first Swedes to come to the NHL, Borje Salming of the Toronto Maple Leafs, as his childhood hero . . . He and Sundstrom both own pacers back in mother country. Jan's is named "Tyffa Star" . . . Favorite food is veal parmigiana . . . Single.

ERIXON QUOTE (On penalty killing): "What I like about it is that I get more ice time, a chance to play more. It helps the team. I don't think it's tough. It's a challenge to go out there and keep them away from scoring. In Sweden everybody kills penalties. They don't have specialty teams over there."

1984-85: New York's own contributed to the cause with all but three of his points coming in winning or tie games . . . Of his four goals of the year, three came in triumphs, and of his seven assists, four came in wins and one in a tie . . . Two of his scores were team and personal milestones: On 10/25 at New Jersey, his first goal of the year, and final of the game at 12:35 of the third period, gave the Rangers their 11th score of the game, and with the Devils' two, accounted for the largest road margin of victory in the Rangers' 59-year history (previous largest difference was seven goals). Then, on 1/27 vs. Minnesota, his score in typical Fotiu fashion four seconds from the end of the second period proved to be the game-winner in New York's 3-2 triumph. With North Stars' defenseman Bob Rouse all over him, Fotiu still managed to get hold of a Barry Beck push and direct it past Roland Melanson at the left crease. Ironically, Fotiu's last game-winning goal, on 2/15/84, also was against Melanson, while with the Islanders, and also came in a 3-2 Ranger win. On top of the importance to the Rangers—it moved them into sole possession of fourth place over Pittsburgh—it was Fotiu's 100th point as a New York Ranger. (His first Ranger game-ever, his first Ranger goal-ever, and first Ranger power play goal-ever all came against Minnesota) . . . As far as his assists during the season, they were well-chosen, too, with his "helper" on Robbie Ftorek's score at 4:49 of the third period 1/6 vs. New Jersey tying the game that was won by the Rangers in overtime, 5-4; his assist 4/4 at St. Louis on a Jim Wiemer score being the game's first goal and starting the Rangers off to a lead they never relinquished in their 5-4 win; and an assist, this in St. Louis, too, on 1/12, on still another Ftorek goal, at 13:11 of the third period tying the score that stayed that way in a 4-4 deadlock . . . If it looks like a lot of Nick's busiest action came on the road, it did, with three of his four goals and six of his seven assists coming at the opposition rinks. Coupled with that was the fact that five of his seven assists came on Robbie Ftorek goals . . . Stepped on the ice for his 450th Ranger game 3/22 at Detroit.

CAREER: Signed by the Rangers as a free agent on 7/23/76 . . . The only native-born New Yorker to ever play regularly for the team . . . Did not play organized hockey till 15, traveling by bus and subways to find ice time as a youngster, and did not play organized hockey till he joined the New Hyde Park Arrows of the New York Metropolitan Junior Hockey Association while attending New Dorp High on Staten Island. Also learned the game by attending Rod Gilbert's Hockey School at Skateland . . . Turned pro with the Cape Cod Cubs of the North American Hockey League in 1973-74 and led the loop in penalty minutes his first year, 371, an all-time league record . . . After five games with the Cubs the next year, went to the New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association for the remainder of the season, leading them in penalty minutes, with 144 . . . After another full season with New England, was signed as a free agent by the Rangers, playing in 70 games as a rookie (debuting on 10/6/76 vs. Minnesota) and getting his first NHL goal on 12/4/76 at Minnesota, past goalie Gary Smith. He also led the team in PIM, 174 . . . Finished his sophomore season second in penalties, 105 . . . The next year, 1978-79, established the all-time Ranger mark for Most Penalty Minutes By A Forward, One Season, 190 . . . Was taken by the Whalers, by now re-named Hartford, in the NHL Expansion Draft on 6/13/79 to skate on a line centered by Gordie Howe the last half of the season and proceeded to lead them in the penalty box that year, with 107 minutes . . . Returned home to several Garden standing ovations on 1/19/81 after being re-acquired by New York on 1/15/81 for the Rangers' 1981 fifth round draft choice (defenseman Bill Maguire). Notched his first NHL power play goal on 1/31/81 at Minnesota . . . Played in his 400th NHL game on 3/8/82 vs. Detroit and was named the Rangers Fan Club winner of the Frank Boucher Trophy as the team's Most Popular Player . . . Netted the first two-goal game of his career on 12/15/82 vs. Los Angeles and set his Ranger high-water mark during the year for most points, 21, on 8 G and 13 A . . . In 1983-84, established his career record for Most Points In A Game—3—in a symbolic game—his 500th NHL contest—with two goals (one the game-winner) and an assist in Rangers' 6-1 victory vs. Pittsburgh on 12/21/83. In his second "hometown," Boston, reached 902 lifetime career Ranger penalty minutes on 3/20/84, only the fifth Broadway Blue to hit that standard. Played his 400th Ranger game on 3/3/84 at Washington. Split the Fan Club's Boucher Trophy with Barry Beck . . . His career-high total goals-against comes when the Rangers play—no surprise—Minnesota. Nicki has 6 six.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Nicky Boy" . . . Took on the role of spokesman for the Police Athletic this past 3/25, returning past favors after the 70-year old organization helped him as a youth, with Fotiu even becoming New York City Heavyweight Boxing Champion for the PAL . . . Established the Nick Fotiu Foundation in 1982. to help New York area disadvantaged youngsters. Organization performs such projects as last winter's Toys For Tots Christmas collection at the Garden in conjunction with the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve and Ranger Fan Club. Drive raised $3,000 and accumulated 4,000 toys . . . Will go down in history as one of hockey's classic practical jokers. It's gotten to the point where he's blamed for anything and everything that happens in the locker room . . . Runs a restaurant—the Hunt Club—on the Cape in the off-season . . . Played soccer as a youth . . . Raised in Dongan Hills-South Beach section of Staten Island . . . Classic "kid looking through the window" story, for he used to sit up in the balcony at the old and new Garden watching the Rangers as a kid, even sleeping outside the present Garden once to get playoff tickets . . . Organizes the annual private Christmas dinner for the entire team at Manhattan's La Camelia Restaurant . . . Married: Wife, Leslie; Daughter, Carolyn (8).

FOTIU QUOTE (On the odds on a New Yorker making it to the NHL): "The more people said I was nuts, the harder I worked. I would say to myself, 'I gotta prove these people wrong' . . . There's no better place to play in the world than New York. When you're winning, the fans will do anything for you. You can ask any player in the league where they want to play and they'll tell you this is the place . . . The Garden is like my home." (Stu Hackel, Weekly Preview)

1984-85: Youngster, fresh from his Canadian Olympic Team experience, impressed in early-season stay with Rangers and averaged close to a point-a-game with New Haven for much of rest of season . . . Played a total of 38 games with the Rangers, getting 6 G and 6 A, while eight of his 12 points came at timely moments during the season: A first-of-the-game goal and two such assists; a go-ahead goal and two assists; and two game-tying goals . . . Took a large step in the right direction of making the big club on 9/29 in the Rangers' exhibition game at the Meadowlands against the Devils, when his power play goal tied the game at two, and his game-winner in the third period iced it, 3-2 . . . Got every rookie's dream—a short-handed one, at that—his first NHL goal, on 10/28 vs. Boston at 7:20 of the second period to boost New York into a 3-3 tie at that point in their eventual 6-4 loss. The Garden faithful gave him a standing ovation and Gagner gave it the old arm-pump, "I'm so happy," he said afterwards, "to get this out of the way" . . . His first NHL point came earlier, in his fourth game as a Ranger, on 10/20 at Washington, when his set-up of a Jan Erixon score at 16:00 of the second period edged the Rangers over the Capitols by 5-4, in New York's soon-to-be 6-5 win . . . Gagner made his NHL debut in the Rangers' opener, 10/11 at the Garden vs. Hartford . . . Later on in the season, added three more goals to his total, all within four games, from 12/15-12/22 . . . Had a goal and two assists, one each per game, in three matches between 12/1-12/5. The two assists were on first goals of the game and the goal, in the last game of this mini-streak, 12/5 vs. Calgary, tied the game, 2-2, in the eventual 4-4 deadlock . . . Gagner's three other "well-timed" points in the season: His first goal of the game 11/3 at Pittsburgh (a 7-5 New York win); his go-ahead goal on 12/19 vs. Winnipeg (in the Rangers' 5-4 loss); and his go-ahead assist 11/14 at Chicago (in a 6-4 loss) . . . His high-shot game (5) came vs. Los Angeles on 11/11 . . . Optioned to New Haven on 1/3 and recalled 3/30 . . . Came near scoring a point every game in his stay with the Nighthawks (33 PTS in 38 GP, on 13 G and 20 A) and tied Randy Heath and Gerry Minor for the fourth-most power play goals on the team, four. Put together a five-game point-scoring streak for the Hawks, from 3/3-3/10, on 2 G, 6 A for 8 TP.

CAREER: Rangers' 1st Round choice (12th overall) in the 1983 NHL Entry Draft from Brantford Alexanders of the Ontario Hockey League. Drafted as an underage junior . . . Began in organized hockey in Tier II, with Newmarket, scoring almost two points per game, 88 PTS in 41 GP on 33 G and 55 A . . . Moved to Brantford the next year and had a great two years. In 1981-82, rang up 76 PTS in 68 GP (30 G, 46 A), and really came on the year after. Led the Alexanders in goals, (55), assists, (66), and power play goals (15) and won the Bobby Smith Trophy, given to the OHL Scholastic Player of the Year "who best combines high standards of play and excellence academically." Also picked for the OHL's Second-Team All-Star squad that year, along with present

Ranger teammate John Vanbiesbrouck, then of Sault Ste. Marie. His 66 assists that season remained the Brantford (now the Hamilton Steelhawks) record till broken just this past season by Jason Lafreniere, with 69 . . . Attended the Rangers 1983-84 training camp, scoring one goal in three exhibitions, then joined the Canadian National Team, in preparation for the Olympics, on 9/25/83. In the long, arduous, 50-game trail to the Olympics in Sarejevo, Gagner finished as the Canadian Nationals' third-leading scorer, with 19 G, 18 A for 37 PTS. Played on a line with Kirk Muller of the New Jersey Devils and Al Iafrate of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Averaging a point a game in the XIV Olympic Games, where Canada finished fourth, he was the team's leading scorer, with 5 G and 2 A for 7 PTS in 7 GP. The highlight of his stay in Yugoslavia probably came on 2/13/84 when his three goals in an 8-1 victory for the unbeaten Canadians (4-0) over Norway qualified them for the medal round. Bade farewell to his national team experience by scoring the winning goal in a post-Olympic wind-up tournament in Paris for a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over Czechoslovakia on 2/23/84 that gave the Canadians a third-place finish, behind the Soviet Union and West Germany . . . Returned to Brantford on 2/25/84 and scored a goal and two assists in a 12-2 defeat by the Alexanders of Sault Ste. Marie in his re-introduction to OHL hockey. Took an "off day," as his signing by the Rangers was announced at a Madison Square Garden press conference on 3/5/84, along with the inking of James Patrick and the acquisition from St. Louis of Bob Brooke, both fellow Olympians. Finished out his junior career with 7 G and 13 A for 20 PTS in 12 GP.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Gags" . . . A self-effacing, not-impressed-with-himself sort of guy . . . Cousin Ken played with him at Brantford . . . Loves wearing those ol' denim jeans to the locker room . . . says his favorite female athlete is Zola Budd . . . Single.

GAGNER QUOTE (On his Olympic experience): "It was probably the most valuable experience of my life concerning hockey. It was a good experience just playing against quality players, plus it was the Olympics. Wearing the Canada sweater . . . at first you don't realize the importance of it all that you're representing all of Canada. It's a good feeling inside and knowing 20 other guys feel the same way. I'll always remember . . . how emotion can carry a team to a top performance and how a team, if they really put their minds to it, can accomplish a lot more than they think they can." (John Herbert, The Hockey News)

1984-85: The longest-serving active Ranger completed his 11th season in the NHL by finishing as the club's second-highest scoring defenseman, this in spite of a shoulder separation that kept him out of 31 games at two different spots during the season . . . Still ended up scoring enough points, (45, on 16 G and 29 A) in games at his usual defensive position and as a winger and center to rank seventh on the club (behind leading defenseman Reijo Ruotsalainen's club-leading 73); finish as the Rangers third-leading power play scorer, with eight; and tied for second with four others for most game-winning goals—two . . . With his goal on 2/17 vs. the Islanders in the Rangers 9-3 victory, he tied Camille Henry for seventh place on the team's all-time scoring lists. He then broke the tie two games later, on 2/22 at Pittsburgh, with an unassisted score at 3:40 of the third period that gave New York a 6-1 lead in their 8-3 victory . . . Tied, then broke, one more ranking on the team's all-time charts, that in the assist column, when, on 3/7 at Calgary, his assist at 3:00 of the first period on Ruotsalainen's goal gave the Rangers the third of the game's first three goals and Greschner 340 lifetime assists, tying him with Steve Vickers for fifth place in the team's 59-year old records. That was broken on 3/17 vs. New Jersey, when he assisted James Patrick on his score at 15:40 of the first to tie the game, 1-1, in Rangers' 7-3 win . . . Began the season in great style. Tallied 5 G and 10 A for 15 PTS in the team's first 10 games (year before did not get first goal till Rangers' 13th outing). Registered a four-point, a three-point, and two two-point games, with New York going 3-0-1 in those games, with all three wins coming against Patrick Division rivals. Four of his goals in the 10-game span were on the power play, with seven of his 10 assists coming on man-advantages. Scored Rangers' first goal of year, 10/11 vs. Hartford to tie game, 1-1, in 4-4 opening night deadlock. Added an assist on team's first PPG of year too. Got his second PPA on team's second PPG of year, 10/14 vs. Minnesota in 3-1 loss. Had an "all power play night" in next game, 10/20 at Washington, with one PPG and two PPAs in Rangers' 6-5 win, also breaking his nose in the process. Contributed a PPG goal and a PPA next night, 10/21 vs. Islanders, with his goal tying the game at three after Rangers were down by three in their 6-5 win. Continued the rampage in the following match, 10/25 at New Jersey, with a four-point night (to match his all-time career single-game high, which, with another such night later in the year, 2/17 vs. the Islanders, he's now accomplished six times) in Rangers' most decisive road win ever, 11-2, assisting Tomas Sandstrom on the winning goal and adding a PPG for himself. Assisted Sandstrom the next game, 10/27 at Quebec, on the winning (5-2) power play score. Ended his 10-game splurge with a go-ahead PPG in a 6-4 loss vs. Boston, 10/28 and a PPA in 10/30 loss (7-3) at the Islanders . . . By the end of that segment of the season, Greschner was the team's leading scorer, with 15 PTS; its leading-assist maker (10), and led in PPG (4). Those latter four markers tied him for the league lead, along with Washington's Mike Gartner, Calgary's Paul Reinhart and the Islanders' Brent Sutter. One of the point-men on the power play, Greschner helped the team to a fifth-place ranking in the NHL at the time (with the unit eventually dropping only two notches by the end of the season). Looked at in another way, he had 11 of the Rangers' 17 power play points. . . . In Game No. 10, though, the fun came to an end, when, on 11/3 at Pittsburgh, on, ironically, the 10th anniversary of his Ranger debut, he separated his left shoulder when checked into the boards by the Penguins' Mike Bullard halfway through the first period and thereupon missed the club's next 20 games, returning 12/19 vs. Winnipeg . . . Played the next 19 games, till he bruised the shoulder at Calgary on 1/31. Scored two goals during that time, both, not surprisingly, on the power play, and both game-winners. On 1/2 vs. Vancouver, his re-direction of a Barry Beck point-shot put the Rangers up 1-0 at 11:18 of the first period as John Vanbiesbrouck recorded the lone Ranger shutout of the year, 6-0; and on 1/24 vs. Detroit, he corraled the rebound of a Grant Ledyard shot and flicked it into the net at 16:11 of the second for a 2-1 lead in New York's 3-1 triumph. Two of his assists during those 19 games were on power plays, with one, on 12/23 vs. Montreal, aiding the game-tying goal by Beck (3-3) . . . After missing six games, he propitiously returned to action on the "Winning Weekend" of 2/15-2/17, as the Rangers topped both Edmonton and the Islanders at the Garden. In the Oiler game, his score at 16:51 of the first period put the Rangers up by one, 4-3, after they were behind at one point, 3-1, and was also the third goal in the team record-setting four-and five-fastest goals in Ranger history (1:38 and 3:22, respectively.) Two nights later, he got his game goal high for the season with two notches against the Isles, plus two assists (one on the power play) as the Rangers did in their big rivals, 9-3 . . . Skated in 17 of the team's final 23 games, accumulating 6 G (3 on the power play) and 11 assists (four on advantage goals) . . . Missed final five games of year with the shoulder miseries . . . Finished third on the team in shooting percentage (18.2), tied with Mike Rogers . . . His goal on 3/26 vs. Pittsburgh (his final of the year), at 16:10 of the first period, a (what else?)

power play score, gave him 150 goals in his Ranger career, ranking him No. 19 lifetime. It also was his eighth PPG of the season and tied his personal high of 1977-78 . . . Played in his 650th NHL game on 1/6 vs. New Jersey . . . Finished season five points shy of 500 and five assists shy of 350. Will reach 700 games when he plays in his 21st this year, which would rank him eighth on the Rangers' all-time list . . . Appeared in all three playoff games, finishing as a +3 and getting three assists, two in the first game (4/10), on the score that began a three-goal comeback from a 0-3 deficit and the other on the tally that notted it, 3-3. Helped feed George McPhee on his score 1:01 into the second period of the next game on 4/11 for New York's 1-0 lead. Led Rangers in penalty minutes for the series, with 12 . . . Honored by New York Chapter of the Professional Hockey Writers Association on 3/19 with their Fifth Annual Toots Shor Crumb Bum Award for service by a Ranger to the youngsters of New York . . . Underwent surgery on his left shoulder after the season, on 5/29—a "re-sectioning of the distal clavicle" by Team Physician Barton Nisonson.

CAREER: Rangers' 2nd Round Choice (32nd overall) in 1974 NHL Amateur Draft from New Westminister Bruins of WHL . . . Played in a senior league in hometown at 12 years old, facing adults twice his age . . . Captained New Westminister year before he joined Rangers and set a WHL record for Most Points By A Defenseman, Season—103, breaking record of former Ranger Larry Sacharuk. Was named a WHL First-Team All-Star that year also . . . Joined Rangers in 1974-75 at 19 after seven games at Providence of AHL, and set a team mark for most assists by a rookie defenseman, 37, which was broken in 1981-82 by Ruotsalainen (38). Got a point in his first NHL game, an assist, on 11/3/74 vs. Buffalo. A month later scored his first NHL goal, on 12/8/74 vs. Montreal through Ken Dryden . . . In 1977-78, reached his career high point total (72, on 24 G and 48 A), finishing first among Ranger defensemen and third on team. Tied for team leadership in game-winning goals (5). Had the only hat trick of his career, on 3/22/78 at St. Louis, against goalie Phil Myre. Shared Rangers Players' Player Award, as voted upon by teammates, with John Davidson . . . Missed 20 games with shoulder separation in 1978-79, his first serious NHL injury . . . Registered 21 goals in 1979-80, the second-most among NHL defensemen and third-highest ever by a Ranger backliner. Led Ranger defensemen in PPG with six. Reached 200th career assist on 1/31/80 at Buffalo; 300th Ranger point on 4/6/80 at Philadelphia; and 400th Ranger game on 12/29/79 vs. Boston. Selected for the 1979 NHL All-Star Game, for the Campbell Conference . . . Had career high 27 G in 1980-81. Bested Mike Liut of St. Louis on 10/28/80 on a penalty shot, the last time a Ranger has been successful on the shot. Played in 500th Ranger game on 3/1/81 vs. Montreal; scored his 100th goal on 12/20/80 at Minnesota; and got his 250th assist on 3/4/81 vs. Edmonton . . . Became the highest-scoring Ranger defenseman in history on the night of 11/11/81 at the Garden when he assisted Dave Silk on his goal at 1:40 of the first period, giving him 379 PTS, topping Brad Park. Played fewest games in his NHL career to date that year (29), incurring his first back injury on 10/24/81 in attempting a hip-check at Toronto . . . Appeared in only 10 games in 1982-83, still due to back . . . Finally returned full time in '83-'84, playing 77 games, finishing second on the team in assists (44) and second in defensive scoring, with 56 PTS to Ruotsalainen's 59. Recorded his 300th lifetime assist on 1/8/84 vs. the Islanders, only the seventh player in Ranger history to reach that mark; moved into sixth place on Ranger all-time assist list on 2/8/84, scoring his 311 aider, tying him with Vic Hadfield; had his 400th career point on 10/16/83 vs. Philadelphia; and, finally, played in his 600th NHL game on 1/16/84 vs. Detroit. . . . Most goals in his career have come against Vancouver—and the Islanders—14 . . . His 150 lifetime Ranger goals are broken down to 75 at MSG, 75 on the road.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Gresch" . . . As long as he's been around, his enthusiasm still abounds, and always ready to organize, partake-in and enjoy locker room shenanigans . . . Along with Beck and Glen Hanlon, taped TV public service commercials last year for Gov. Cuomo's Anti Drunk-Driving campaign . . . He and wife, model Carol Alt, own a 200-year old farmhouse in upper New York State . . . Ran, with aid from Ranger Manager of Team Operations Joe Bucchino, the Ron Greschner Hockey Camp for the first time this summer . . . Appeared in a bit role on Ryan's Hope in July 1980 . . . Married: Wife, Carol.

GRESCHNER QUOTE: *(On playing up front) "I like playing defense a lot better, though. It's just easier to see the game when it's coming at you. But I don't mind playing up front. I think it's kind of nice to change between defense and forward once and a while, because it gives you a different look at the game. Sometimes, a change is as good as a rest." GLEN HANLON

6-0 185 Shoots R
Born: 2/20/57
Brandon, Man.
Off-Season Home:
Port Roberts, WA

1984-85: Put in busy year, facing some remarkable shot onslaughts and more than holding his own in the majority of them . . . Had 10 games in which he faced at least 40 shots and lost only three of them, posting an impressive .920 save percentage in those barrages . . . Three times he had back-to-back games in which he was peppered with plus-40 shots and had one span towards the end of the season in which he had three games in a row where he stared at 40 or more shots . . . Topper of the year—in his 250th NHL game—was the game at the Garden on 1/27 in which more saves (50) were made by a Ranger goaltender—Hanlon—than in any game in the past 13 years. The Minnesota North Stars launched 52 missiles at Hanlon that night and still came away with a 3-2 loss. In the third period alone, he faced 22 shots—the second-most in a period against the Rangers in the season. Those heroics were matched on 12/14/72 by Gilles Villemure, with his 50 saves while losing to Boston, 4-2 . . . Hanlon's other "Over-50" night came on 1/12 at his old home in St. Louis in a 4-4 tie, as he recorded 47 saves for a .922 percentage . . . He followed that up immediately in his next game (No. 2 of his back-to-back 40+ sets) with 45 saves on 47 shots in the Rangers' 2-2 tie vs. Buffalo on 1/16 . . . His first successive "barrage" games were on 12/12 vs. Boston (38 saves on 41 shots for a 3-3 tie) and 12/15 at Washington (37 saves on 41 shots in a 4-2 loss). His third back-to-back visit to "Rubbermania" came on 1/27 in the aforementioned 52-shot game vs. Minnesota, to be right away followed by a 42-shot unloading by none other than the Edmonton Oilers at their home on 2/2, for a 5-1 Ranger loss . . . In his final in-a-row sequence, he beat his other "old team"—the Vancouver Canucks—on 3/6 on the road, 6-3, making 40 saves on their 43 shots; followed that up again at Edmonton with 41 stops on the Oilers' 44 launches in a 3-3 tie on 3/9; and made it a threesome on 3/11 at Chicago, when he stopped 36 out of 40 for a 4-3 Black Hawk overtime win . . . The final game of the year in which he was above and beyond the call of duty came on 4/4 at St. Louis, with 37 saves on 41 Blues' shots in New York's 5-4 win, a victory that upped Hanlon's lifetime record against the team from which he came to the Rangers to 4-1-2 . . . Right below the "Magic 40," he posted two-39-shot games, 10/11 in the Rangers' 4-4 tie vs. Hartford, Hanlon's first opening night assignment since he was a Canuck in 1980; and 12/22 at New Jersey in New York's 5-3 win . . . Won three out of four games right in the beginning of the season, from 10/20-11/7, beating Washington twice and Quebec. (That win over the Nordiques was the first for the Rangers in Quebec City since 12/30/80, with New York losing five straight.) And won three of his last four decisions at the end of the season, from 3/26-4/7, besting Pittsburgh, Toronto and St. Louis . . . Although it was a loss, showed himself at top form in 10/14 game vs. Minnesota, when, in the second period, he went up against 14 shots in the span of 7:49, while up to four Rangers were in the penalty box on successive minor penalties, Hanlon twice holding the fort while his team was down by two men, and creating some highlight-film saves, particularly his diving stick save on Dennis Maruk's shot at an empty net . . . Started his 100th game as a New York Ranger on 2/9 at Hartford, a 2-2 tie . . . Registered his 50th New York victory, a 7-5 win over the Maple Leafs at the Garden on 3/31 . . . Finished the year with a 14-20-7 mark, going 9-10-4 at MSG and 5-10-3 on the road . . . Selected by the New York Daily News, along with the New York Knicks' Pat Cummings, as its Metro Player of the Month for January, for going 2-1-2, facing 217 shots and allowing only 19 goals, all for a .912 save percentage . . . Won the Rangers Alumni Association Star of the Year Award in year-long Star of the Game tabulation after every Ranger home game, with 17 points. Started all three Ranger playoff games against Philadelphia.

CAREER: Acquired by Rangers along with right wing Vaclav Nedomansky in trade with St. Louis for defenseman Andre Dore on 1/4/83 . . . Originally Vancouver's 3rd Round choice (40th overall) in the 1977 NHL Amateur Draft from Brandon Wheat Kings of Western Hockey League . . . Named First Team All-Star for Brandon in 1975-76 and 1976-77, his final two years, leading the WHL his last season in GAA, 3.09, and in shutouts (4) . . . Immediately impressed in pros, winning Rookie of the Year honors with Tulsa Oilers in the old Central Hockey League in 1977-78 and being named First Team All-Star while leading the league in shutouts (3) . . . Made his NHL debut with Vancouver on 3/31/78 vs. Philadelphia, holding them to three goals in 32 shots. Played in four games that year . . . Became permanent NHLer in 1978-79, earning three shutouts through first half of season before damaging knee ligaments on 1/27/79 at Colorado and missing remainder of year. Still chosen Vancouver's MVP for the season . . . Same scenario happened next year, with Hanlon this time suffering a shoulder injury, yet again winning team Most Valuable award . . . In 1980-81, played only 17 games for Vancouver, due to injuries to knee ligaments that kept him out three months and a dislocated shoulder near end of campaign. Still got one shutout . . . Spent most of next season with Vancouver, but then was traded to St. Louis on 3/9/82 for right wings Tony Currie and Jim Nill, goaltender Rick Heinz and St. Louis' 1982 fourth round draft choice (goaltender Shawn Kilroy). Played in two games for the Blues . . . Moved half-way through the next year to the Rangers, making his Blueshirt debut on 1/9/83 vs. New Jersey at the Garden, a 4-3 triumph . . . Came into his own on the Hudson in 1983-84, producing his best NHL year, building a 28-14-4 record that tied him for a third-place ranking in the NHL. Fashioned his career best-ever unbeaten streak from 12/21/83-1/4/84 of 6-0-1, the final win coming on the anniversary day of his trade to New York. Played in his 200th NHL game on 1/2/84 at Washington, a 2-2 deadlock. And in his 50th game as a Ranger, on 1/8/84, he equaled his previous high seasonal win mark of 17 games. Voted by fellow Ranger players as the team's "Players' Player," symbolic of the Ranger MVP, as presented by the West Side Association. Had an excellent playoff, notching a 45-save shutout in Game No. 2 of Patrick Division Semi-Finals on 4/5/84 at the Islanders; a near-shutout (through 9:59 of the third period) in 7-2 Ranger win on 4/7/84 at Garden in Game No. 3 and posting 44 saves in the fifth and final of the series (4/10/84).

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Glennie" . . . The superstitious sort, always wearing a pair of blue uniform socks under his pads, even with the Ranger white uniform at home . . . Came to New York this summer to do numerous charitable appearances for the club . . . Very quick-witted, the kind that hits you with a jibe and is gone before you know it . . . He and teammates Barry Beck and Ron Greschner taped TV spots for Gov. Cuomo's Anti-Drunk Driving campaign and Hanlon polished his off quicker than either of his teammates, in two "takes," only one behind the record of another sports celebrity doing the commercials, skier Suzy Chaffee . . . Has the distinction (?) of having given up Wayne Gretzky's first major league goal, on 10/14/79, while with Vancouver. "I created," he says, "a monster" . . . Married: Wife, Louise.

HANLON QUOTE (On not letting the game "get you"): "Now, I just say, well, that's a bad game. I'm not going to panic. Even if I lose four, five or six games, I know I'm going to be OK. It's just a matter of time. And that's probably the biggest thing I've accomplished in this game, realizing that I can't go on living the other way. I guess you'd say it's coming of age." (Kevin Dupont, New York Times)

1984-85: Again, for the second season in a row as a Ranger, had leg injuries set him back, but contributed on the power play and made his points count, with nine out of 14 of them coming in key situations . . . After missing bits and pieces of the season, had his troublesome left knee operated on on 3/16 and missed final 12 games of season, playing in 49 all-told . . . Began the year handsomely, contributing four assists in the Rangers' first four games, the final two, on 10/20 at Washington, both coming on the power play in New York's first win of the year, 6-5. The first two assists in that little streak were both on game-tying goals, 10/11 vs. Hartford, to make it 2-2 in a 4-4 deadlock, and 10/13 at Minnesota, to put the Rangers back into the match at 1-1 in their 3-1 loss . . . Four of his first six assists were on the power play, the third of the year again coming in a win against Washington (11/7, 4-3) and the last of the four on 12/8 at Philadelphia, kicking off Huber's second point-streak of the year, in which he accounted for five points (2 G, 3 A) in six games, from 12/8-12/19. Included in that time span were two of his three goals during the year, 12/15 at Washington (his biggest scoring for the year was against the Capitols, with 2 G and 3 A) and 12/19 at Winnipeg, the latter being his single power play score in '84-'85. The Winnipeg goal evened the game at one in New York's 5-4 defeat and two of his assists in the streak were key ones, on 12/10 vs. Los Angeles in the Rangers' 4-2 win, when he released Tomas Sandstrom with a lead pass on a breakaway goal that proved the game-winner, and on 12/12, when his perfectly-placed pass to Barry Beck, who had taken off down ice ("... Poof, the next thing I know, it's on my stick and no one else is around me," said Beck afterwards) enabled Beck to deposit a backhand that energized the Rangers with their first goal (3-1) in the first period, leading to their 3-3 tie against Boston at the Garden. His three assists in that streak came in three games in a row, from 12/8-12/12 ... His total count for the season on "key" points were: One game-tying goal and one first-of-the-game goal; one game-winning assist; four game-tying assists and an assist that was on a go-ahead goal and on the Rangers first score of the game—making nine of his 14 overall points telling ones ... Came back from the surgery to appear in two of the three playoff games against the Flyers, getting a power play score in the lone game at the Garden, 4/13, that, at that point, put the Rangers up, 3-2, at 9:18 of the second period.

CAREER: Acquired by Rangers along with left wing Mark Osborne and right wing Mike Blaisdell for right wings Ron Duguay and Eddie Johnstone and goaltender Ed Mio on 6/14/83 ... Originally Detroit's 1st Round choice (9th overall) in the 1978 NHL Amateur Draft from Hamilton Fincups of the Ontario Hockey Association ... Helped Hamilton to the Memorial Cup Championship in 1975-76 ... Spent the next year at St. Catherines of the OHA before returning to Hamilton in 1977-78 and leading them in assists (45) and being named a Second-Team OHA All-Star. Picked that year also for Team Canada in the 1977-78 Junior World Cup in Montreal ... Split this first NHL season between Detroit (68 GP) and Kansas City of the Central Hockey League (10 GP). Notched the second-most power play goals among Red Wing defensemen—four—and was named Detroit's Rookie of the Year by the Detroit Sports Broadcasters ... Led the Wings in penalty minutes as a soph (1979-80) with 164 ... In 1980-81, topped all Detroit defensemen in assists, with 34, and was picked for Team Canada in the 1981 World Championships contested in Sweden ... Tied fellow Ranger Mark Osborne for the Red Wing team lead in power play scores (5) in 1981-82 ... His 43 PTS in 1982-83 gave him four consecutive years of at least 40. Third on the Wings in shots (241) and second in PIM, 106, that year ... First Ranger season also saw him hampered by injuries, missing 34 games due to assorted ills, including arthroscopic right knee surgery. Still finished second among backliners in power play goals (4), with three coming in winning causes, including his first New York Ranger goal—the game-winner—10/10/83 vs. Los Angeles. Came within one of taking the most shots in a single game for New York when he launched eight missiles twice during the season. Played in his 400th NHL game on 12/30/83 vs. Philadelphia ... Close to a third of his NHL scores have come on the power play—24 of 80 ... Career high goal-scoring against one team is when he plays the Chicago Black Hawks—11 goals against ... His fifth point this season will give him 250 in the NHL.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Hubie" ... A likeable, amiable guy ... Is the tallest Ranger ever (6-5), with the runners-up being 6-4 Dale Rolfe (1970-75) and 6-4 Dean Talafous (1978-82) ... His sweater (No. 17) hangs in the International Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto from his 1978 Team Canada Junior World Cup tournament ... Born in Germany, but moved to Canada when he was 10 months old ... A Springsteen fan ... Favorite actress is Bette Davis: "I like those old movies" ... Chooses most memorable game as his first as a Ranger at the Garden . . . Likes spending his off-time browsing around the shops in Manhattan . . . Single.

1984-85: Had a most memorable season, assuming the team leadership as captain for 22 games while replacing the injured Barry Beck, yet missing another 18 matches when he suffered the first significant injury of his five-year Ranger career, a ruptured spleen . . . Wore the "C" for the first time in the Rangers' second game of the year after Beck had gone down in the opener with a separated left shoulder. Was a +1 for the game, being on ice for the lone Ranger goal in 3-1 loss at Minnesota, 10/13 . . . Captained for next seven games, including big come-from-behind win over Islanders on 10/21 at Garden, earning a +4 in the game. Was on ice for team's first two comeback goals after Rangers were down by three in second period; on ice for Don Maloney's go-ahead goal at 4-3 halfway through the period; on ice for Tomas Sandstrom's two-up goal (5-3) early in third; and, finally, on ice for James Patrick's eventual winning goal for team's final score in 6-5 win. Followed up that performance with a +3 in next game, 10/25 at New Jersey, in team record-setting contest (Most Decisive Road Win Ever), a 11-2 victory. Was on the pond for five of his team's goals, getting his first point of the season on the first goal of the game, Sandstrom's at 4:30 of the first period. Right after that assist came another, in next game, 10/27 at Quebec, earning Laidlaw a +1 for match . . . In his next sojurn as captain, a two-game one, again had assists in back-to-back games, 12/15 at Washington and 12/16 vs. Washington . . . Got his first and only goal of the year in his next game with the "C," 2/25 vs. Winnipeg, unassisted . . . Captained team in final 10 games of year . . . On the other end of his 1984-85 scale was the afternoon game 1/6 at Boston, in which he was seriously injured when he somehow ruptured his spleen (it could never be determined how, medically), but with bleeding beginning, and after two shifts in the second period, being taken to Massachusetts General Hospital where surgery to remove the spleen was performed in a 1½-hour operation. . . . Missing the next month-and-a-half, he returned 2/17 vs. the Islanders and registered an assist on Barry Beck's short-handed goal that put the Rangers up by two (3-1) in their 9-3 win . . . Played his 350th game as a New York Ranger on 12/22, a 5-3 win at New Jersey, getting an assist, which was immediately followed up by another assist in the next game, 12/23 vs. Montreal (six of his 11 assists on the season came in such a sequence) . . . Eight of his 12 points came at MSG . . . Contributed in the playoffs, earning two assists in the three games, both coming on 4/10 in the opener, this time back-to-back in the same game on Don Maloney's two goals that, a) Brought the Rangers to within one, at 3-2, late in the second period, and b) Tied the game, 3-3, at the beginning of the third . . . Was a +2 for the playoffs.

CAREER: Rangers 7th round draft choice (93rd overall) in 1978 NHL Amateur Draft from Northern Michigan University . . . Had been a team leader for Northern Michigan, helping Wildcats to final round of 1980 NCAA Championships before team lost to Univ. of North Dakota. Was selected to the All-

NCAA Tournament Team. Chooses most memorable game of his career as Northern Michigan's 4-3 win over Minnesota that got team to championships. Had 18 G, 50 A for 68 PTS in 68 GP in college . . . Went pro right after the tournament, joining New Haven Nighthawks of AHL for one regular season game and 10 in the playoffs, getting 7 PTS (1 G, 6 A) in 10 post-season games . . . Scored his first NHL goal in only his 5th game, on 11/8/80 at Vancouver against Richard Brodeur. It was on the power play. Second NHL goal was six days later, with :09 left in game, lifting Rangers to 3-3 deadlock vs. Pittsburgh on 11/14/80. Had the game-winning goal in series-clincher victory over Los Angeles at MSG on 4/12/81 in first round of playoffs . . . Notched his 50th Ranger point on 3/17/82 vs. Philadelphia . . . Lone goal of 1982-83 was a key one, in second game of opening round of playoffs at Philadelphia on 4/7, giving New York a 2-1 lead in their 4-3 victory . . . Played in his 300th Ranger game on 2/19/84 vs. Philadelphia . . . Most goals against one team in career has been vs. Pittsburgh—3 . . . Had, until this year, never missed a Ranger game due to injury . . . Needs 10 more points to reach 100 in NHL career . . . Chosen by teammates for the club's Players' Player Award in 1981-82 (along with Mark Pavelich) and in '82-'83, as sponsored by West Side Association.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Laids," "Leg," "Cowboy" . . . Does he ever have a quiet day? . . . The perfect "clubhouse man," always ready with a barb, a joke, a thought . . . Accompanied the team on its first West Coast swing last year to wear headsets on bench while injured and visited his usual pranks upon teammates, like cutting the toes and heels out of John Vanbiesbrouck's socks in L.A. . . . His house in Rye Brook oftentimes the team meeting place . . . His father, Don, is the district fire chief of his hometown of Brampton . . . Attended the Calgary Stampede with teammate Mike Rogers this past summer . . . Says Gilbert Perreault is the one guy he'd least like to see coming at him one-on-one . . . Single.

LAIDLAW QUOTE: "If I've got open ice to go to, I feel it gets me into the game more if I carry the puck . . . I can't do it all the time, but if I have open ice and a spot to go to, I'll do it. It's all a matter of confidence, of believing I can do it. As long as I don't try to beat everybody going up ice, it's okay." (Helene Elliott, Newsday)

1984-85: Made almost every one of his goals count in his second season as a Ranger with almost all of his 24 scores having significant impact on a game . . . Finished third on the team in scoring, with 36 assists (for third place) to go along with his goals (fourth place) for 60 PTS in a somewhat shortened season, 65 GP, due to various injuries . . . But when it came to timely scores, he was there more often than not: Broken down, Larouche tied Tomas Sandstrom and Mark Pavelich for game-winning goals (3); had five game-tying scores; six go-ahead goals; three first-goals-of-the-game; eight Ranger first-goals-of-the-game; and five power play scores . . . Had a great first half of the season, leading the team in scoring at the 40-game mark (14 G, 24 A, 38 PTS), but was forced to miss 14 games thereafter with the flu, a bruised left knee, a bruised left wrist and an injured hip . . . Posted 18 PTS in his first 19 GP in the season, on 7 G and 11 A. Had his best game in that span, on 10/27 at Quebec, his home area, when he notched two goals and two assists in the Rangers' 5-2 victory, assisting Sandstrom on the game-winning goal—a power-play marker. One of his goals and the other assist were also on power plays, giving him, at that point in the season, six of his 10 points on the PP. That game was in the middle of a nine-game streak in which Larouche registered at least one point, from 10/14 (his first game of the year after sitting out the first two of the season with a bruised right foot) to 11/7. Got 5 G and 10 A for 15 PTS in that time. New York went 6-3 during the streak, with five of the six victories coming against Patrick Division rivals. The final game of the duration, 11/7 vs. Washington, saw Larouche again get two goals (he had four such games during the year), one the game-winner. After a respite, stoked up another streak, with 7 PTS in 7 GP, from 11/28-12/7, all on assists. After missing three games with the flu, manufactured yet another hot time, accounting for 14 PTS in 11 GP, this from 12/16-1/9, the exact half-way point of the Rangers' season. It was comprised evenly of 7 G and 7 A, with the remaining two of Larouche's four two-goal games included. Also in there was his second GWG of the season, on 12/22 at New Jersey, when one of his two scores, at 14:36 of the third period, proved the decider in New York's 5-3 win . . . Got his final two-goal game also against New Jersey, on 1/18 at the Meadowlands, and added an assist, for his second-highest point game of the year, a 9-6 Ranger victory, to give him a total of 4 G and 4 A against New Jersey for the season, his high-water mark against any one club. Right behind that were the seven points he registered against his initial NHL club, Pittsburgh, against whom he had 7 PTS on 2 G and 5 A. His final game-winning goal (the 32nd of his career) came at a propitious time, against the Edmonton Oilers at the Garden on 2/15, when his 35-foot driller, for his 20th goal of the season, at 4:22 of the third period, proved to be the game-winner in the Rangers' 8-7 victory, the first time they had beaten the Oilers at MSG since 2/20/80 . . . As another interesting sidelight to his "key scores," three of his five game-tying scores made the game 1-1 at that point, to bring the Rangers back from the underside of a spirit-deflating first goal of the game . . . And, finally, in still doing "breakdowns," 27 of Larouche's 36 assists were key to the game, in the following manner: One was on a game-winning goal; eight were on game-tying goals; four were on go-ahead scores; three on first-goals-of-the-game; one on the Ranger first-goal-of-the-game and 10 on power play scores . . . Finished third on the team in shots, with 171 . . . Set the grand total of five personal NHL and Ranger milestones during the season. In date order: 11/3, at Pittsburgh, credited with 350th NHL assist; 11/30 vs. Toronto, got his 100th Ranger point; 12/5 vs. Calgary, played in his 100th Ranger game; 1/18 at New Jersey, got his 700th NHL point (336 G, 364 A in 676 GP), on two goals; and played in his 700th NHL game on 3/24 vs. the Islanders . . . Bruised hip kept him out of the playoffs.

CAREER: Signed by the Rangers as a free agent on 9/13/83 . . . Originally Pittsburgh's 1st Round Choice (8th overall) in the 1974 NHL Amateur Draft from Sorel Black Hawks of the Quebec Junior Hockey League . . . Drafted as an underage junior by the Penguins . . . Had a magnificent junior career with Sorel. Won the "Trophee des Instructeurs" as the QJHL's Rookie of the Year in 1972-73 . . . The next year, he went wild, setting a league record that stood for the next 10 years until Laval Voisins' Mario Lemieux (the 1984-85 NHL Rookie of the Year with Pittsburgh) broke it by 31 PTS, of 251 PTS on 94 G and 157 A in 67 GP, winning the Jean Beliveau Trophy as the QJHL's leading scorer and earning a Second-Team All-Star berth. That accomplishment broke the record of the great Guy Lafleur, then of the Quebec Ramparts, of 209 PTS . . . Burst on the Pittsburgh scene the next year, leading all first-year NHL scorers with 68 PTS, on 31 G and 37 A, breaking all Penguin rookie records and being chosen NHL Rookie of the year by "The Hockey News" and "The Sporting News." Recorded his first NHL goal on 10/9/74 at Minnesota against Cesare

Maniago and got his first NHL hat trick that first year, too, on 3/12/75 vs. Boston. Also, for good measure, netted his first playoff goal in his first playoff game—on 4/8/75 vs. St. Louis, the game-winner . . . At 20, became the youngest player in NHL history to score 50 goals (53) in a season—1975-76 (the record since broken by Wayne Gretzky in 1979-80—51 PTS at 19 years old) and became the first Penguin ever to go over 100 points (111). Chosen for NHL All-Star game. After only two seasons, ranked as Pittsburgh's seventh-leading all-time scorer . . . Led Team Canada in scoring after the 1976-77 season at the World Championships in Vienna. His sweater from the series—No. 16—is in the Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto . . . Traded to Montreal by Pittsburgh with a player to be named later (right wing Peter Marsh) for center Peter Mahovlich and right wing Peter Lee, 11/29/77. Finished the year as a member of Montreal's Stanley Cup Champions . . . Repeated in having his name inscribed on the Stanley Cup the next year with Montreal . . . The next year (1979-80), became the only player in NHL history to score 50 goals for two different clubs, when he accumulated 50 G and 41 A for 91 PTS. (Only two other players in hockey history, Bobby Hull and Blaine Stoughton, have ever accomplished the feat, and that in the NHL and World Hockey Association.) That mark of 50 goals still holds as a Montreal record for a center . . . Traded by Montreal to Hartford on 12/21/81 for a switch in first round selections in the 1984 NHL Entry Draft (Montreal selected defensemen Petr Svoboda and Hartford chose defenseman Sylvain Cote; Hartford's 1984 second round choice (defenseman Brian Benning), later transferred to St. Louis; and a switch in third round choices in the 1985 Draft, Montreal taking right wing Rocky Dundas and Hartford dealing away its choice). Became that year only the 15th player in NHL history to reach 500 points while averaging over a point a game . . . Injured for most of his lone full year with Hartford, playing only 38 games due to torn muscles in the upper back and a thumb injury . . . Had a fine year in his initial Ranger season, coming to within two goals of tying the team record for most Goals In A Season—50, held (by his old Pittsburgh roommate) Vic Hadfield in 1971-72. Did set a Ranger record, though, that of Most Goals By A Center, One Season—48, theretofore held by Jean Ratelle, with 46 in 1971-72. Tied Detroit's John Ogrodnick and Vancouver's Toni Tanti for second-most power play goals in the season—19, his all-time high. Scored two goals in the 1984 NHL All Star Game for the victorious Wales Conference team (7-6) on 1/31/84. Placed second by one point to Mark Pavelich in Ranger scoring (48 G, 33 A for 81 PTS). Potted three hat tricks. And reached three personal milestones: his 300th NHL goal, 1/16 vs. Detroit; 600th NHL point, 11/5 at Quebec; and 600th NHL game, 1/4 vs. New Jersey. Topped all of that off by leading the Rangers in playoff goal-scoring against the Islanders, with three. Shared with Reijo Ruotsalainen the First Annual Rangers Alumni Association Star of the Year Award, in balloting throughout the year after every Ranger home game . . . Needs six more goals this year to reach 350 in the NHL and nine more points for 150 as a Ranger . . . Highest career scoring against an NHL team is against Toronto—21 goals . . . Comes into 1985-86 averaging within an iota of a point-per-game for the Rangers (141 PTS in 142 GP) and over a point-per-game in his NHL career (720 PTS in 701 GP.)

PERSONAL: Nicknames: "Lucky Pierre," "Pepe" . . . A willing guest speaker for the club who can really wrap the audience around his Quebec accent . . . A Pittsburgh Pirates baseball fan . . . Never at a loss for words . . . The youngest of 10 children . . . Father employed by the Canadian National Railroad as an engineer . . . When the spirit moves him, will break into a full dance routine in the locker room, in hockey togs, when a favorite song comes over the stereo . . . Married: Wife, Cindy.

LAROUCHE QUOTE: "In the National Hockey League, there's something we have to be proud of and that's the work a lot of players do off the ice. We're not like the NFL or NBA (on TV between periods) with the United Way or Easter Seals or that kind of thing, because we don't have that kind of TV exposure. But you find a lot of players who do a lot of work for charity and I don't know any players who take money. I don't think it's called for. We're getting paid very well." (Mark Faller, Bridgeport Telegram)

1984-85: Moved from a mid-season recall to a dependable regular to finish the season leading the Rangers in plus/minus, with a +8 rating . . . Came up and teammed up with ol' pal Steve Richmond on 1/6 when the team was decimated with injuries on the backline to Tom Laidlaw and Barry Beck and stayed to make people wonder why he was never drafted by anybody . . . Played his first NHL game on 1/6 after playing the night before for New Haven on the road in Moncton and 9:20 into the match, took a shot from the point that Peter Sundstrom deflected in, to get his first NHL point and assist, and help the team to a 2-1 lead in their 5-4 overtime triumph over New Jersey at the Garden (It was the ninth game in 15 days for the rookie) . . . Two weeks later, also against New Jersey, 1/18 at the Meadowlands, he got his first NHL goal when, after the Devils took a 1-0 lead, the Rangers scored on three straight shots, with Ledyard's being the second, on a 30-foot blast past Chico Resch to give the team a 2-1 lead in their 9-6 victory that kept them four points ahead of the last-place Devils . . . A month later, he helped the team set the record for the fastest five-goals in its history when he gave the Rangers a 6-3 lead over Edmonton at the Garden on 2/15 with his score at 19:15 of the first period, to mark the fifth goal in a span of 3:22, breaking the old mark, established in 1942, by 24 seconds . . . Potted his second goal in as many games on 2/17 vs. the Islanders, giving the Rangers a 6-2 lead in their eventual 9-3 win, this capping off perhaps the most exciting weekend of the year . . . Had, once more, back-to-back games in which he scored one goal (1/18 and 1/19) . . . Skated regularly on the league's seventh-ranked power play. In fact, six of the 12 assists he registered through the year came on the power play, with one coming on a game-winner (1/24 vs. Detroit, 3-1) . . . Had two mini scoring streaks, 5 PTS in 4 GP (2/10-2/21) and 5 PTS in 5 GP (3/2-3/9) . . . Five of his eight goals were scored at the Garden and all five came in victories, with one of them, on 3/17 against the team that Ledyard preyed upon for several of his most memorable seasonal events—the Devils—being the game-winner in a 7-3 New York win . . . His most startling score, his sixth goal of the year, was so unusual, it made all the sports highlights shows in Canada, particularly in his hometown, when, at 6:16 of the third period vs. Pittsburgh on 3/3, his cannon literally knocked the stick out of the hand of Penguins' goalie Denis Herron, shattering the top eight inches of the stick out of the goalie's hand and the remainder too, because of the reverberation ("I've had sticks break at the bottom," Herron said afterwards, "but never in the shaft and never at the top") . . . Was the seventh-leading scorer for New Haven when he was recalled, with 6 G, 20 A for 26 PTS in 36 GP . . . Played in all three Ranger playoff games, registering two assists and launching the second-most shots, 12 (to Reijo Ruotsalainen's 13). His centering pass to Anders Hedberg with :26 to go in game No. 1 resulted in a Hedberg score that tied the game, 4-4, and forced overtime. Other assist, to Don Maloney, to put the Rangers up, 2-1 in Game No. 3, came on the power play . . . Asked to join Team Canada right after the season to play in the World Championships in Prague and suited up for three games (East and West Germany and Sweden) as the Canadians won the Silver Medal (the first time since 1965 they finished that high), with Ledyard getting an assist in the Preliminary Round.

CAREER: Signed as a free agent by the Rangers on 7/7/82 . . . Began his amateur career in 1979-80 with hometown Fort Garry Blues of Manitoba Junior Hockey League (Tier II), helping them to playoffs and staking them to 37 PTS on 13 G and 24 A in 49 GP . . . Moved to Saskatoon of the Western Hockey League the next year, amassing 37 PTS and 148 PIM in 71 GP . . . Returned to Fort Garry the next season and netted his highest pre-NHL goal total, 25, and 45 A for 70 PTS in 63 GP—all the time watched by Ranger Head Scout Dan Summers, who recommended him to Rangers while Calgary and Chicago were also showing interest. Had 150 PIM that season, too . . . Assigned to the Tulsa Oilers in his first pro season, he had 42 PTS in 80 GP (13 G, 29 A) and 115 PIM . . . The next year, he came into his own, playing a major part in the Oilers four-game sweep of Indianapolis in the Central Hockey League Championships, getting nine points in the nine CHL playoff games (5 G and 4 A), including the game-winner in the championship game on 4/27/84. His playoff point totals ranked him as the second-leading Oiler scorer. Was awarded the Bob Gassoff Trophy as the CHL's Most Improved Defenseman for the year and the Max McNab Trophy, symbolic of the Most Valuable Player of the play-offs. He bulwarked an Oiler defense that ranked No. 1 during the regular season.

His late father, Hal, was a quarterback for the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football league with Stephen Patrick, father of the Ranger brothers, Stephen and James. Father was born in Birmingham, Ala. . . . Grant sent his first NHL scoring puck to his mother, Barb . . . Says Dan Summers most influenced his career . . . 1984-85: Became an absolute crowd favorite in his rookie year for his all-out style of play and his efficiency in goals, leading the Rangers in shooting percentage with a mark of 22.2 in 49 games . . . Had a storybook first quarter of the season for a rookie (having played only nine games the year before for the club) before spending a lot of the middle half of the year on the injured list . . . After suffering a groin pull towards the end of training camp, and playing three games with the Rangers' New Haven AHL affiliate, he was recalled on 10/23 and proceeded to set on fire the team, the fans and himself, with a stretch of 11 points in 15 games, with numerous notables tied into that stretch . . . Perhaps his most amazing accomplishment during that time was his proclivity for "making his shots count" and then some. Coming into the year, McPhee had scored—in 1983-84—on his lone Ranger shot. So what did he proceed to do in his first game the next year? Prolong that tight little statistic, at 10/25 at New Jersey, when his score at 12:45 of the second period gave the Rangers a 4-2 lead in their 11-2 victory. It was his lone shot of the game, thereby giving him a perfect shooting percentage for his major-league career, two goals on two shots. The Devil score set him off on a streak in which he built the unlikely string of 2 goals on 3 shots; 3-on-6; 4-on-9; and 5-on-10 through the first 10 games of his year before he hit a "dry spot" of two games. After that little drought, he started in again, with his 6th goal on 16 shots; and 7th on 19 shots. That all was compiled through the game of 11/30 vs. Toronto. One match later, the flu got him, as did the start of various injuries, like a pulled upper back muscle and a left hip flexor that basically kept him out of commission except for spots through the final quarter of the season . . . Breaking down some of the specifics of those early goals, though, makes for some interesting reading: In his fourth game of the year, on 11/3 at Pittsburgh, his lone shot of the game, at 16:25 of period No. 2, gave the Rangers a 4-2 lead in their 7-5 victory and McPhee 2 G on 3 SHS. On 11/9 vs. the Islanders (who he would go on to have his most success against during the season—2 G, 5 A for 7 PTS in 6 GP—) his score at 12:58 of the second period ignited a stunning five-goal Ranger comeback drive that produced a 5-4 overtime victory over their arch rivals. Coupled to that score were assists on the Rangers' next two goals, and he ended the night, as far as his personal tabulation goes, with 3 G on 6 SHS. Next game, on 11/11 vs. Los Angeles, McPhee again started off the Rangers' (and game's) scoring at 2:44 of the first period in New York's 4-2 loss, giving him 4 G on 9 SHS. Next game? McPhee again notches (on his single shot of the game) his team's first score—the third time in a row he'd done it—at 11:54 of the first, his 5th G on 10 SHS, in the Rangers' 6-4 loss 11/14 at Chicago. Three games later, he's back at it again, getting the Rangers' (and game's) first goal (making four of his six goals Ranger "firsts of the game") on 11/21 vs. Buffalo in a 3-2 win, taking five shots total (his high for the year in a game) and making his goal-shot ratio read 6-for-16. The final piece of the McPhee production came on 11/30 vs. Toronto, when his tally at 2:42 of the third period (on his only shot) proved to be the tying goal for the team in its 3-3 deadlock. So, at the end of his 16-game introduction to the new season, McPhee finished with his 7 G on 19 SHS (with four games in which he netted a goal on a single shot) for a 37.0 percentage. He added five assists during that time, for 12 PTS in 16 GP . . . There was another streak involved in all of this, too, a point streak from 11/9-11/17, in which he posted 8 PTS in the four games that took place, on 3 G and 5 A . . . Missed a total of 25 games through the rest of the year, ending the season with 12 G and 15 A for 27 PTS in 49 GP, and leading the team in penalty minutes, 139 . . . One of those goals, on 3/6 at Vancouver, was a game-winner, his notcher at 11:41 of the second proving the decider in Rangers' 6-3 win . . . Added a power play marker to his totals, in a 9-3 win over the Islanders at the Garden on 2/17 . . . When it was all over, a divisional battle proved to really fire him up, McPhee getting 15 of his 27 PTS against the Patrick rivals (5 G, 10 A) . . . Eight of his 12 goals came at the Garden . . . Suited up for all three Ranger playoff matches against Philadelphia, again pulling some of the McPhee Magic, when in Game No. 2 on 4/11, he scored the first goal of the game (at 1:01 of the second period), the Rangers lone goal in their 3-1 loss. That gave him four playoff goals for New York in 11 career games.

CAREER: Signed as a free agent by the Rangers on 7/1/82 . . . Had a great career at Bowling Green State University (Ted Sator's alma mater) before going pro. Topped it off by winning the Hobey Baker Award given to the top collegiate player in the United States. Set Bowling Green's All-Time scoring record (since broken by Brian Hills in 1983), accounting for 267 PTS on 114 G and 153 A in 153 GP. Set the Falcons' seasonal scoring record of 88 PTS as a freshman, leading the CCHA in that category, as well as in goals (40). That won him the Central Collegiate Hockey Association Rookie of the Year accolade, as well as a Second-Team All-Star rating . . . Won Second-Team berth again in his junior year and moved to the First-Team his senior year, as well as being chosen CCHA Player of the Year . . . Primed for the NHL in 1982-83 with the Tulsa Oilers of the old Central Hockey League, finishing second for them in scoring with 17 G, 43 A for 60 PTS. Was brought up to the Rangers for the playoffs, generating 3 G and 3 A in 9 GP. All three scores were important ones, the first coming on 4/7/83, when his goal in the second period made it a 1-1 tie in New York's eventual 4-3 win over Philadelphia that put New York up by two games. The other two came from his pièce de résistance—a game's first goal—on 4/17 and 4/18/83 in the Division Finals, the Rangers' lone two wins over the Islanders in the series . . . Stayed with the Rangers for the initial stretch of the 1983-84 season, scoring, as mentioned, on his first-ever regular season shot, on 10/10/83 vs. Los Angeles, at 16:24 of Period No. 1, the—what else?—first goal of the game in 2-1 New York win. Optioned to Tulsa on 11/1/83 and turned in 48 PTS in 49 GP (20 G, 28 A), finishing near the top in several scoring categories for the eventual CHL Champs, and finishing (this has gotta be a record!) No. 1 in the No. 1 Goal of the Game category for the club, with four. Ended up No. 3 in goals, No. 4 in points and tied for No. 4 in assists.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Fenster" . . . As personable as anybody can come . . . Spent the summer working as a trainee for Mabon-Nugent, Inc., a stock trading and financial firm on Wall St. . . . Has studied towards his masters in economics . . . Spent a good part of the summer doing appearances for the club . . . Watched an early-season Met game on TV, saw one of their relievers and yelled, "Hey, I know that guy!" Realized when he saw him later on "Kiner's Korner" that it was Roger McDowell, who was a couple of years behind him at Bowling Green (this Ranger-Met combo joins the Bob Brooke-Ron Darling combine) . . . Reminds you of Don Johnson of "Miami Vice," and met him this summer when the show was shooting in New York . . . The quintessential photographer . . . The boy from Guelph got lost taking the subway his first day on the job this past summer . . . Single.

McPHEE QUOTE (On the importance of the Hobey Baker Award): "Probably the area it helped me in was trying to get a contract after my senior year. There were some teams which said they were interested in signing me. Not a lot of interest, but some. Then there was more interest after I won it. I guess they figured if I was considered good enough to win the Hobey Baker Trophy, I was good enough to have a chance to make it in the NHL." (Barry Wilner, "American Hockey Magazine")

1984-85: Had what looked to be a promising season (15 PTS in his first 15 GP) ruined on 11/18 when he suffered a broken leg against New Jersey at the Garden. It was called a "fracture of the left fibula and tibia with ligament damage" and it was incurred right into the game—at 1:58 of the first period when Maloney collided and fell entangled with the Devils' Bruce Driver and took the weight of himself and Driver on his leg—but it was another crippling blow to an already injury-scarred Ranger season, and it kept the All-Star winger out of action for three months (till 2/21) . . . Ended up playing the fewest games since the first time he appeared in Ranger blue (1978-79, 28 GP), this after showing up for 157 out of a possible 160 games the previous two seasons . . . Notched 11 G and 16 A for 27 PTS, finishing tied for 2nd place with Mike Allison in shooting percentage—19.6—and in a fifth-place tie with three other New Yorkers for power play goals—5 . . . In fact, 10 of his 27 PTS

came on the power play, with five goals and five assists . . . In his initial 15 games, Rangers compiled a 6-3 record in matches in which Maloney registered at least one point. On 10/21 vs. the Islanders, he got a goal (a go-ahead score) and two assists in the 6-5 come-from behind win over the Rangers' arch rivals; and on 11/9 vs. the Isles, again in a comeback Ranger win at MSG, his goal at 15:50 of the third period tied the game and readied it for Reijo Ruotsalainen's overtime winning marker. Included in with his six goals during that streak were two PPGs. Compiled a mini-streak during that time too, with a five-game point streak (10/20-10/28), with 4 G and 5 A for 9 PTS. Rangers won four of five . . . Three of the four games in which he scored upon his return were in winning causes, on 3/3 vs. Pittsburgh, 3/6 at Vancouver and 3/17 vs. New Jersey . . . Five of his scores (all at MSG) came against division opponents and 9 of his 11 were deposited at the Garden . . . Reached his 350th point as a Ranger on 10/27 at Quebec when his power play score at 2:17 of the first period tied the game, 1-1, in 5-2 New York win . . . Played in his 400th New York game on 3/6 at Vancouver, with his score helping team to 6-3 victory . . . Finished the season one goal shy of 150 as a New Yorker . . . Led all Rangers in goal-scoring during the playoffs, with four, tying him with Mike Rogers for scoring top spot . . . Tied Ron Greschner for plus/minus leadership in the series, with a +3 and finished with the highest shooting percentage on the team, 44.4. Scored two goals in the opener, the first, at 16:34 of the second period, bringing the Rangers to within one, at 3-2, and his second, at 1:17 of the third, tying it. Was voted Third Star for the game. His power play tanker in Game No. 3 at 16:41 of the first period put New York up, 2-0, and his score at :55 of Period No. 3 brought team to within two of Flyers in eventual 6-5 loss. . . . Immediately after the playoffs, was chosen for silver medal-winning Team Canada for the World Championships in Prague and was on ice for the game-winner when the Canadians stunned the Soviets on 5/1 with their 3-1 victory that propelled them into the title game. It was the first time since 1965 that the Canadians had won higher than a bronze medal.

CAREER: Rangers 2nd Round draft choice (26th overall) in 1978 NHL Amateur Draft from Kitchener Rangers of OHA . . . Scored a goal on his first-ever NHL shift, in his first shot on net, on 2/14/79 vs. Boston's Gilles Gilbert. Followed that up on his next shift with his first NHL assist. Established a National Hockey League record (broken by Dino Ciccarelli of Minnesota in 1981, with 21 PTS) of Most Points By A Rookie, One Playoff Year, 7 G, 13 A, 20 PTS, in 18 GP. Those 13 assists were more than any other NHLer in the playoffs . . . Voted Rangers' Players' Player Award by his fellow teammates in 1979-80 . . . Set all-time Ranger record for most game-winning goals in a season with nine in 1980-81. That year, also set Ranger record of fastest three goals ever, when he beat Washington's Mike Palmateer in 2:30 on 2/21/81 at MSG. Scores came at 16:41, 18:37 and 19:11 of the second period. Received writers "Good Guy" Award for cooperation with the media that year, as well as second-in-a-row Players' Player Award . . . Played in his 200th Ranger game on 2/14/82 vs. Quebec and scored 200th Ranger point vs. St. Louis, 3/21/82 . . . Tallied his 100th career goal 12/15/82 vs. Los Angeles. Led Rangers in power play goals in 1982-83 (14) . . . Selected for his first NHL All-Star game and scored a goal for the Wales Conference on 2/8/83 . . . Followed up that performance with an even better one the next year, as he led his Wales team to a 7-6 victory on 1/31/84 with a record-tying All-Star Game performance of Most Points, One Game—4—on his game-winning goal and three assists, and Most Assists, One Game—3. For that production, was named the classic's MVP. Perhaps goal of career came on 4/10/84 in final game of Division semi-final playoffs at the Islanders when his score with :39 left tied the game, 2-2, sending it into OT, with Rangers eventually losing, 3-2. Marked 300th Ranger point on 11/13/83 vs. Detroit and 200th career assist, 2/25/84 at Montreal . . . His current total of 371 points as a New York Ranger ranks him No. 14 on the team's scoring charts, a jump from 20th place in a year. Additional Team Record Co-Held: Most Short-Handed Goals, One Season: 5, 1980-81 (Also by Mike Rogers, 1982-83.)

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Big Frame" . . . Will play this season for the first time in his career without older brother Dave, who was traded to Buffalo on 12/6/84 and has since retired. They're together still, though, having run their annual Maloney Brothers Hockey Camps this past summer . . . Inveterate reader, having polished off four books by Robert Ludlum on his enforced vacation last season . . . Into computers too, owning an Apple IIe. "(It) lets me set up hypothetical real estate investments," he says. "You can ask, 'What if?' and the program calculates interest, return on investment and things like that." . . . Always smiling . . . Did some announcing work on MSG Network while injured . . . Broke a lot of hearts this past summer when he married Toni Palazzo on 6/14 in Rye, N.Y. . . .

MALONEY QUOTE: (On going into the corners) "By the time I was 16 or 17, everybody started to say I was good in the corners. I think it was because I kept losing the puck and it was the only thing I could do fairly well. It takes a little work but you don't need any great skills to bash around in the corners and try to kick out the puck. Once they started saying that, I decided I'd better try and prove that it was true." (Theresa Soreco, "Hockey Stars")

LEFT WING

5-11 185 Shoots L
Born: 3/3/63
Lansing, Mich.
Off-Season Home:
Lansing, Mich.

1984-85: Rangers' ninth round 1982 draft choice completed his college season for Central College Hockey Association champ Michigan State, then signed a five-game amateur contract with Rangers on 3/30, played the final five games of the year—and in the playoffs—and impressed everyone with his maturity, speed and future . . . Made his pro debut on 3/30 at Philadelphia as the starting left wing with Dave Gagner at center and Peter Sundstrom on the right. Ranger GM Craig Patrick called him Friday, Miller drove to Detroit, flew to Philadelphia and played that Saturday afternoon. Put right on penalty-killing unit, on team is first penalty of game, a hooking infraction to Steve Richmond at 1:29 of first period . . . Next night, in his new home, Madison Square Garden, he registered his first NHL point, an auspicious one, on his first NHL shot that Mark Pavelich converted for the game-winning (7-5) goal at 7:58 of the second period . . . His other point came 4/4 at St. Louis on a power play goal by Anders Hedberg (his second-to-last point-ever) that made score 4-1 in Rangers' 5-4 win. Incurred his first NHL penalty—a "good" one—when, at 16:15 of the first period, he got called for a hooking infraction that all but prevented a score by the Blues' Mark Johnson when Rangers were only up by one, 2-1 . . . Participated in all Ranger playoff games against Philadelphia . . . Captained Ron Mason's Michigan State Spartans to a 38-6-0 (.864 winning percentage) first round seed in the NCAA West Playoffs with his highest scoring college year—27 G, 23 A, 50 PTS in 43 GP. Those stats ranked him fourth on Spartans in scoring, third in assists. Plus, he was second in SHG (4) and tied for third in GWG (3). Netted overtime winner vs. Miami on 1/11. Contributed two goals in the championship game in State's 7-0 triumph over Michigan Tech on 12/29 in the Great Lakes Invitational Tournament in front of the largest crowd to ever watch a hockey game in North America—21,576—at Detroit's Joe Louis Arena, the third year in a row Michigan State won the tourney . . . Chosen as one of the 10 finalists for the Hobey Baker Award, given to the NCAA hockey player of the year . . . Called "the most dominant forward I've seen in college hockey," by University of Maine coach Shawn Walsh . . . Played with his younger brother, Kevin, the Rangers' 1984 10th round draft choice from the Redford (Mich.) Jrs. One of the people Kelly tied in game-winning goals was Kevin . . . Ended active year by helping U.S. to medal round berth in World Championships in Prague, getting 2 G, 3 A for 5 PTS in 9 GP. Teamed up with fellow Ranger draftees Clark Donatelli (1984) and Tony Granato (1982) on one of U.S.'s most productive lines. They were particularly successful at forechecking such as Canada, Czechoslovakia and Sweden into turnovers.

CAREER: Rangers' 9th Round Choice (183rd overall) in 1982 NHL Entry Draft from Michigan State . . . Attended Lansing (Mich.) Eastern High School and played for Redford Royals of the Great Lakes Jr. A League. In his final season there, ranked No. 2 on team with 90 PTS and led them to runner-up position at the National Jr. A Championships . . . Got first of three college hat tricks for Michigan State against Notre Dame on 12/4/82 as a sophomore. Named to CCHA Playoff All-Tournament Team that year as well as its All-Academic Team . . . Led Spartans in goals (28) in 1983-84. Posted eight multiple-goal games. Had game-winning goal, part of his third college hat trick, against Illinois-Chicago on 10/28/83, as well as additional GWG against Michigan Tech, Lowell, Michigan and Boston College. Named game's No. 1 Star vs. Michigan Tech and Lake Superior State. Named MSU's Player of the Week three times during the season as well as to All-Academic team for second year in a row. Paced all players in 1983 National Sports Festival with five goals for the South . . . Finished Spartan career with these totals: 165 GP, 82 G, 82 A, 164 TP, 11 PPG, 10 SHG, 13 GWG and 6 unassisted goals.

PERSONAL: A serious young man. Knows what he is about . . . Needs 26 hours for his business degree . . . He and brother Kevin are the last two of five of the Millers family to play for Michigan State (Father, Lyle, 1962-64; Uncle Elwood 1956-59; and cousin Dean, 1978-79.) . . . Wore his Michigan State gray cut-off T-shirt under his Ranger sweater in MSG debut last year really hit the weights this past summer . . . Single.

MILLER QUOTE (On the difference between college and the pros) "Basically, the talent level is so much greater. At the college level, every team is going to have two or three pro-level players. Here, they're all pro level. The defensemen are a little better, the forwards are a little better, the goalies are a little better." (Frank Brown, New York Daily News)

6-2 200 Shoots L
Born: 8/3/61
Toronto, Ont.
Off-Season Home:
Richmond, B.C.

1984-85: After reporting for work for 233 games (including 160 straight) out of a possible 240 in his major league career, went through his first experience with injury—a right hip flexor—and missed all but 23 games of his fourth major league season . . . Had initially sustained the injury while working out in the summer in preparation for training camp, aggravated it at camp and did not debut in 1984-85 until 2/17, when he took the ice vs. the Islanders, skating on a line with Bob Brooke at center and George McPhee on the left . . . Ended up with 4 G and 4 A for 8 PTS, playing in 23 of the Rangers' final 24 games . . . Three of his four goals were in winning causes, 3/17 vs. New Jersey when he got his first score of his abbreviated year at 17:09 of the second period, the game's final score in New York's 7-3 win; 3/26 vs. another division rival, Pittsburgh at the Garden—in his 250th NHL game—when his tally early in the second period made it 4-1, Rangers, in their 5-4 win; and 4/4 at St. Louis, when he put New York up, 2-0 four minutes into the first in its 5-4 win . . . First point of year came at Pittsburgh on 3/2 with his assist at 6:16 of the second period on a Tomas Sandstrom goal that was Rangers' first goal of game after they were down, 4-0 in a 5-4 loss. That assist was one of three in four games for him, from 3/2-3/7 . . . Three of his four goals were against Patrick Division enemies . . . Built a mini goal-streak as he really began to get his skates wet halfway into his short season by notching a goal in back-to-back games (3/17 vs. New Jersey and 3/21 at Philadelphia) and adding another three games later (3/26 vs. Pittsburgh) to give him three goals in five games. Suited up for all three Ranger-Philadelphia division semi-final games.

CAREER: Obtained by Rangers from the Detroit Red Wings along with right wing Mike Blaisdell and defenseman Willie Huber for goaltender Eddie Mio and right wings Eddie Johnstone and Ron Duguay on 6/14/83 . . . Originally Detroit's 2nd Round choice (46th overall) in 1980 NHL Entry Draft from Niagara Falls Flyers of Ontario Hockey Association. Drafted as an underage junior . . . Spent three years with Niagara Falls, with the most productive being his final year when he averaged over a point per game (80 PTS in 54 GP). Averaged almost a point-a-game in his three-year stay there, 165 PTS in 168 GP, in spite of suffering a bad hip injury in his middle season . . . After his last season in juniors, finished out the year with the Red Wings' Adirondack farm club in their playoff push to the American Hockey League title, four-games-to-two over Maine . . . Played all 80 games for Detroit in his rookie year, 1981-82, and ended up leading the team in scoring, with 26 G, 41 A for 67 PTS, only the sixth time a rookie has led the team in its 59 years. Finished second to John Ogrodnick in goals that year and led the Wings in assists. Also tied with Willie Huber for most power play goals (5). Notched a score right away, in his first NHL game, against, surprise, the Rangers at Madison Square Garden on 10/8/81. It came against Steve Weeks at 17:51 of the second period and it was the game-winner in 5-2 Detroit victory. Added to that in his rookie year his first NHL hat trick, against St. Louis' Mike Liut on 12/1/81. Also had five assists in a game against the Blues later in the season. And had two goals vs. Los Angeles Kings on 11/5/81 . . . Played all 80 games his sophomore season. Tied for the team lead in game-winning scores—3—with Danny Gare and Paul Woods. Coupled onto that three game-tying scores and three power play markers . . . Came East to New York in 1983-84 and put in quite a year, finishing, along with linemate Mark Pavelich, as the Rangers hottest scorer in the last quarter of the season, with 19 PTS in the last 18 GP (9 G, 10 A). Four of those goals were game-deciders, with two coming in overtime. The last of those two was the third time in succession that he had scored the team's winning goal. Was the only New Yorker who had two OT goals. Ended the season with his next-best record to his rookie NHL year, 23 G, 28 A for 51 PTS. Had, along with Don Maloney, the most GWG on the club—5—the initial decider coming in his second Ranger game-ever, on 10/7/83 at New Jersey for 3-1 win. Missed his first NHL game on 12/21/83, with the flu, breaking his record of 193 straight. Had five game-tying goals in four games from 2/23-2/28. Played in his 200th NHL game at Philadelphia on 1/12/84, a 2-1 Ranger win . . . Will reach some personal milestones this year: Needs four more games to account for 100 as a Ranger; three more assists for 100 in the NHL; and two more points for 175 in the NHL . . . Highest goal-scoring team against in his NHL career is Pittsburgh—7.

PERSONAL: Nicknames: "Ozzie," "Oz" . . . Very willing to talk to everyone. Can be serious, can kid with the best of them . . . A born-again Christian since the age of 14 . . . Reputed to be one of the biggest eaters in the league, specializing in Italian food. When fellow Ranger and ex-Detroiter Mike Blaisdell lived with him when they first arrived in New York there was the complaint by Blaisdell that, with Mark, "there was nothing ever left in the ice box" . . . For summer, favors a pair of blue-striped pants that look like fat New York Yankee stripes' . . . Used to go for the hard-type rock, now more into the likes of B. J. Thomas and The Imperials . . . His uncle (father's brother who was 16 years younger than his dad) got him interested in hockey. "He was like a big brother to me," Mark says . . . Single.

OSBORNE QUOTE (On preparation for the season): "Going into camp in good shape is a necessity. Before, players went into camp to get in shape. Hockey players are more dedicated now, they have calmed down. Players are coming into the league at 17 and 18 and hockey players only have about five years in the league. The pressure is there to do well. You have to be careful on how you handle the demands." (Anna Miele, Greenwich Time)

1984-85: Played his first full season as an NHL pro, 75 out of 80 games, and showed that he can be a dominant defenseman in the league in the future . . . Finished seventh among NHL rookie defensemen in scoring, and ninth on the Rangers, with 36 PTS by virtue of his 8 G, and 28 A . . . Tied five other NHL rookies (not only defensemen) for the fifth-longest streak of registering an assist in consecutive games—5—his coming from 2/17 to 2/28, during which he picked up seven assists, tying him with fellow-Ranger Tomas Sandstrom and Hartford's Kevin Dineen for the most assists within the 5-game segment. Three of those five games were against division opponents and four of the seven assists came on the power play. Had three in one game during the streak, on 2/25 vs. Winnipeg, two on the power play. Made it eight assists in seven games, from 2/17-3/3, with five of the eight on man-advantages. . . . Had some definite offensive highlights in his year: On 10/21 vs. the Islanders, he recorded a "Tri-First" by scoring his first short-handed-, first Madison Square Garden-, and first game-winning-goal (all on the same shot) in the Rangers' comeback victory over the Isles. The goal came at 6:02 of the third period and it gave the Rangers a 6-3 lead in their final 6-5 win. On top of all the other notable particulars concerning the score, it was unassisted, and, since, at that point, he had scored only one other NHL goal (on 3/17/84)—and that was assisted, it was also the first un-assisted marker of his career. On 12/7 vs. Pittsburgh, on the same night that his brother Stephen made his debut with the Rangers after being acquired from Buffalo, he notched the first two-goal game of his young career, giving New York a two-goal lead in the second period and a one-goal lead in the third in its 4-3 loss to the Penguins. By 12/19, Patrick's offensive output had tied him with Garry Galley of Los Angeles for the most goals (5) by a rookie defenseman, and he led all rookie backliners in shooting percentage with a 13.9 mark (5 for 36.) His final goal of the year— on the power play—was perhaps his prettiest and showed his promise in coming forward. It came on 3/22 at Detroit at 9:24 of the third period, when he took control of the puck behind his own net, took off up the middle, splitting two Red Wing defensemen, one of whom, Larry Trader, grabbed him by the shirt, with Patrick spinning away to deposit a backhander past goalie Greg Stefan . . . In total, five of his eight goals were against Patrick Division teams and all came with heavy impact attached: There was a game-winning goal; a score that brought the team to within one; a game-tying goal; and two goals that gave the Rangers a one-goal and a two-goal lead. And three of those five came on the power play (four of his eight scores on the year were PPGs.) . . . Had four shots on goal seven different times during the year . . . Missed only five games during the season, the opener with a groin pull, and four (3/7-3/13) after suffering a right hip pointer on 3/6 at Vancouver . . . Had 71 PIM, which ranked him fourth on the team.

CAREER: Rangers' 1st Round draft choice (9th overall) in 1981 NHL Entry Draft from Prince Albert Raiders of SAJHL as an underage player . . . Played high school hockey for powerhouse Notre Dame Hounds of Wilcox, Saskatchewan, who were Air Canada Cup champions in 1979-80. . . . Went from there to Prince Albert the year (1980-81) they won the Centennial Cup. Named the Raiders' Rookie of the Year for his 82 PTS in 59 GP (21 G, 61 A), the Centennial Cup MVP and a Cup All-Star and, finally, the Canadian Tier II Player of the Year. First player ever drafted in first round from Prince Albert . . . Continued his exploits in college, beginning with WCHA Rookie of the Year honors for the Univ. of North Dakota in 1981-82, the year the Fighting Sioux won the NCAA Championships. Named to the All-Tournament Team and was a 2nd-Team WCHA All-Star and Co-Rookie of the Year for UND that year . . . Concluded his college career with even more honors, being named a NCAA All-American for the West Region, a WCHA First-Team All-Star and the Fighting Sioux's MVP for 1983. Was also a finalist for the Hobey Baker Award, symbolic of America's best college hockey player. Patrick's picture joined over 25 other UND players who have gone on to the pros in a "Pro Wall" that has been erected at the university's Winter Sports Building . . . After college, was chosen for the Canadian National Team and went on to help Canada to finish fourth in the 1984 Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia. Finished seventh overall in National Team scoring and had three assists in Canada's Olympic matches . . . Other international experience was with the Gold Medal-winning Team Canada Juniors at the World Championships in 1982 and the bronze finalists in '83 and Team Canada participation at the 1983 IIHF World Hockey Championships in West Germany . . . Signed by Rangers on 3/5/84 and debuted on 3/7/84 at Minnesota. Registered his first NHL points in front of his hometown fans in Winnipeg on 3/9/84 when he got three assists, the last coming on the winning (6-5) goal. His first NHL goal came at Philadelphia on 3/17/84. Finished his first pro season as a +6 in his 12 games. Led Ranger defensemen in scoring (three points, all on assists) in 1984 playoffs . . . Selected as a rookie for Team Canada in 1984 Canada Cup (had least pro experience of any player chosen), but saw no game action.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Jeep" . . . A well-spoken, thoughtful young man . . . Both he and his brother go under their full names, "James" and "Stephen" . . . They stick together, too, each going to the penalty box (for the first time together in their NHL careers) this past 3/26 vs. Pittsburgh when Stephen came to the aid of his brother when he was involved with Dave Hannan . . . Very much a rock devotee, with his top favorite being "U2," the Irish band that was named Record Magazine's "Rock Heroes of the Year" . . . Father, Stephen, played another sport, pro football, with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the CFL (along with Hal Ledyard, father of the Rangers' Grant) for 13 years and also served as a member of the Manitoba Parliament . . . Single.

PATRICK QUOTE: (On goal scoring) "I have never, never been a good goal-scorer. I always get my share of points, but definitely more assists. But I don't think I've ever played for points. No way would I set any goals as far as how many points I want to get . . . It doesn't matter how many I finish with at the end of the year, so long as I try and work my hardest and help the team improve." (Lisa Jordan)

1984-85: Acquired from Buffalo in the Dave Maloney trade in December and proceeded to put together two solid scoring streaks through the rest of the campaign . . . Arrived in the Apple along with defenseman Jim Wiemer in the 12/6/84 trade with the Sabres in exchange for defensemen Maloney and Chris

Renaud . . . Introduced himself to the Garden fans the next night vs. Pittsburgh with some resounding body checks . . . Installed on the power play for the first time in his NHL career, put in his first Ranger point, goal and his first-ever NHL power play goal on the same shot, 12/12 vs. Boston, when his 20-foot blast ("I put my head down and shot") bounced off Bruin goalie Pete Peeters' pad, under his stick and into the net five seconds from the end of the first period to bring the Rangers to within one (at 3-2) after being down 3-0, in their final 3-3 tie . . . The first point in his first Ranger streak, the span continued on 12/19 vs. Winnipeg, when his set-up of a Willie Huber goal tied the game at one (in a 5-4 loss) and extended on with eight more points in the following seven games (through 1/5), to give him an overall 10 PTS (6 G, 4 A) 11 GP. Included in the middle of that binge was a two-goal game on 12/23 vs. Montreal (a 3-3 tie) in which he was named Star of the Game, with his first goal tying the game, 1-1, in the second period (for his second PPG in three Ranger scores) and the second score halfway through the next period bringing New York to within one before Barry Beck got them the tie. Also tucked into Patrick's first productive tenure was the first of two empty-net goals he had during the Ranger season (to rank him first on the club), 12/22 at New Jersey, when his lunging, tumbling 125-foot directive hit the unprotected cords with 13 seconds left in the game to insure a 5-3 Ranger win. The final game of that streak (1/5 at Boston) was marked by the good (his assist that put the Rangers up, 1-0), the bad (he hurt his back) and the ugly (he broke his nose) in the Rangers 3-3 deadlock . . . Missed the next 11 games before returning on 2/2 at Edmonton, getting a point through an assist on a power play goal, then embarking on the second streak of his Ranger season, one which totaled 11 PTS in 11 GP, with 3 G (including his two final power play tallies) and 8 A. Had the goals in three games in a row, from 2/21-2/25, the latter game, the final in the streak, seeing three Patrick points (his single-game Ranger high for the season), with two coming on power play assists. That two-assist game was one of three he had after coming to New York, with the Rangers winning two of them. Also within that streak was his ninth goal of the season (2/21 vs. Hartford), which broke his single-season mark with Buffalo . . . His one double-assist game that most stands out would have to be the defeat of Edmonton at the Garden on 2/15, 8-7, when his two set-ups, at 16:18 of the first period (to tie the game, 3-3) and at 17:31 of the same stanza (to boost New York to 5-3) were on the second and fourth goals of a four-goal span that was the fastest in Ranger history (1:38) . . . And, looking at the Brothers Patrick, here are some interesting "off the wall" firsts involving the 13th brother combination in Ranger history: First Time Patrick Brothers Both Assisted On The Same Goal—12/30 vs. St. Louis, 8:10 of third period on Tomas Sandstrom goal; First Time One Assisted On The Other's Goal—2/22 at Pittsburgh, 12:51 of first period, James assisted (alone) on Stephen's goal; and First Time Both Got Concurrent Penalties—3/26 vs. Pittsburgh, 1:17 of first period, two minutes each, roughing . . . Had played 14 games with the Sabres before coming south to New York, getting two 2 G and 2 A, so, all-told (with his Ranger 11 G and 18 A), finished the year with 13 G, 20 A for 33 PTS in 57 GP . . . Placed fourth on the Rangers in shooting percentage—17.5 . . . Bruised right knee kept him out of the first two playoff games against Philadelphia.

CAREER: Buffalo's 1st Round choice (20th overall) in 1980 NHL Entry Draft from Brandon Wheat Kings of Western Hockey League . . . Averaged almost a point a game his first year with Brandon (66 PTS in 71 GP on 28 G and 38 A) . . . Made the majors the next year (1980-81) splitting the year with the Wheat Kings and Buffalo (for 30 GP) and getting his first NHL goal on 3/22/81 vs. at St. Louis against Mike Liut . . . Stayed with the Sabres the whole next year, but played in only 56 games due to a back injury. Enjoyed his first double-goal NHL game on 1/14/83 vs. Washington . . . Missed the entire 1983 Sabre training camp and first two months of the season, thanks to his back, being assigned to Rochester to work himself back in shape. Stayed two months with the Americans and was recalled in March, getting back into it with two assists in his second game back, 3/6/84 at Montreal in Buffalo's 8-3 win. After the Sabres were eliminated from the playoffs, he returned to Rochester to help them to the finals of the AHL Calder Cup . . . Needs five more games to reach 200 in the NHL.

PERSONAL: Nicknames: "Steepashakis," "Hollywood" . . . Plays the guitar. Has gotten together after practices with Mark Pavelich and his guitar and John Vanbiesbrouck and his drums . . . A pop music fan. Attends as many concerts as he can . . . Sported a safari hat this past winter on practice days . . . Two years older than his brother James . . . Single.

PATRICK QUOTE (On when he played neighborhood hockey with his brother): "We never had goalies. We just had guys who stood by the net in their skates. James would act like he was going off the ice, but all the time he had the puck in his pocket. So, everybody would be waiting for a guy to come down the ice with the puck, then James would pull it out of his pocket and shoot it in the net." (Frank Brown, New York Daily News)

1984-85: Rangers' leading scorer of previous season saw his—and team's—year devastated by broken ankle suffered in only the second game of the year . . . Missed almost half the season—32 games—returning to action from his 10/13 injury on 12/29 at Montreal . . . Yet, when it was all over, he still managed to average almost a point a game, 45 in 48 games, and ended the season, when finally recovered, on an upswing, with a streak of 29 points in his final 24 games . . . While not up to his usual self-set standards, posted some rankings in the overall team stat charts that were certainly acceptable in view of his interrupted year. Tied Ron Greschner for seventh-most points on the club (45); finished fourth in power play goals, with six; fifth in shooting percentage (15.4); tied Anders Hedberg for the fourth-most assists, 31; and tied Pierre Larouche and Peter Sundstrom for first place on the team for most game-winning goals—three. His plus-minus rating was a +1 for the year, ranking him No. 3 on the team . . . The numbers indicate a long road by Pavelich from the night of 10/13 at the Met Center in Minnesota. With seven minutes left in the second period, as he had done so many times in the past, he raced after a lose puck in the corner. With the North Stars' Gordie Roberts also in pursuit, Pavelich crashed into the end boards, suffering a spiral fracture of the right fibula, and added one more name to the team's constantly-lengthening injury list . . . After the cast was removed from his leg on 12/2, his production created some notable moments for the team: One game after his return (12/29) against St. Louis at the Garden on 12/30, he showed his old value to the Rangers by scoring the winning goal—his first score of the season and 100th of his career—in the team's 6-2 win, thus breaking a three-game winless streak. Taking a cross-ice pass from linemate and alter ego Reijo Ruotsalainen, Pavelich came in on a breakaway against Rick Wamsley to put the Rangers up, 3-1. The Garden thereupon erupted into a standing ovation. On 2/15, his 250th point as a Ranger came on a night that New York broke 33- and 43-year old team records for the four- and five-fastest goals on record. Down 3-1 three-quarters of the way into the second period, his score at 15:53 ignited an onslaught that produced four additional goals in the next 3:46. Plus, the team won, 8-7, against Edmonton. On 3/26, in a key divisional game vs. Pittsburgh, his second game-winner of the year topped off a two-goal (both on power plays), two-assist (one on a power play) night that meant a win (5-4) and a seven-point lead for fourth-place in the division. In addition, he won seven out of eight faceoffs in the third period that night, including all six in the defensive zone. Overall in the game, he was 13-6 in his chances on dropped pucks, including a win over 6'4" Mario Lemieux in the Ranger zone when the team was down four men to six in the last minute of play . . . Opened the season (10/11 vs. Hartford) in fine, promising form, skating on the Rangers' new line of Ruotsalainen-Pavelich-Hedberg, assisting Ruotsalainen on his second score of the night and rookie Tomas Sandstrom on his first-ever NHL goal, the tying score in the 4-4 standoff. After the next game in Minnesota, that line would not be re-united until 1/31 at Calgary—for the first time in 46 games . . . By mid-February, Pavelich seemed securely back at his old form, and, starting on 2/17 vs. the Islanders, accounted for seven goals, four on the power play and his final game-winner of the season (3/31 vs. Toronto) and 21 assists, 11 of them on the power play (which helped the Rangers finish seventh overall in the league.) In his final eight games of the year, he posted 4 G and 7 A for 11 PTS . . . In all during the season, he totaled eight two-point-games, one three-point- and one four-point-game. . . . His power play assists were well-placed, seven out of 13 of them coming against Patrick Division rivals . . . Pavelich's highest production came against Pittsburgh (his highest career point-producing opponent, with 14 G, 22 A, 36 PTS in 26 GP), with 3 G and 5 A in 5 GP . . . Played in his 250th Ranger game on 1/27 vs, Minnesota, assisting on Nick Fotiu's winning goal (3-2) . . . Set the '84-'85 team milestone for Most Shots In A Period—5, on 3/6 at Vancouver, tying with Ruotsalainen, who did it twice in the season . . . Had three assists in the playoffs against Philadelphia, all coming in the final game at the Garden on 4/13, putting the Rangers up by one (3-2); within two (6-4); and within one (the final 6-5 score), the first two coming on the power play.

CAREER: Signed by the Rangers as a free agent, 6/5/81 . . . Had an outstanding career at the University of Minnesota-Duluth, establishing records that stood till Hobey Baker winner Bill Watson broke them this year. An All-America in his junior year, with 31 G, 48 A for 79 PTS, he held the records in those categories till Watson recorded 49 G, 60 A, 109 PTS in 1984-85 . . . After college, helped make history for U.S. hockey as he played a key role in the Americans' upset win of the gold medal at the 1980 Olympics . . . Undrafted, followed that up with a season in Switzerland, with Lugano, totaling 24 G, 49 A, 73 PTS in 60 GP . . . Impressed immediately in Rangers '81-'82 training camp, scoring a hat trick 10/2/81 vs. the Islanders at the Garden. Tied for second (with Ron Duguay) in scoring as a rookie (33 G, 43 A, 76 PTS) and lead the team in power play goals (12) short-handed scores (3) His goals, assists and total points set all-time team records for a rookie. He and Tom Laidlaw voted Players' Player award that season by teammates . . . His sophomore year, he produced a performance matched by only one other Ranger (Don Murdoch, 1976-77) when he sent in five goals vs. Hartford on 2/23/83. That also marked the first time a U.S.-born player had ever produced such a total. Finished the year by leading the team in goals (37), game-winning goals (6) and was second in points (75). Also led all Ranger forwards in plus/minus with a +20. That goal-total ranks as the fifth-highest ever for an American-born player. . . . Awarded both West Side Associations' Ranger MVP Trophy and Ranger Fan Club's Frank Boucher Trophy . . . His third year was just as good, leading New York in scoring with 82 PTS and in assists, 53, and finishing second in power play goals (12) . . . Notched 200th NHL point on 1/12/84 at Philadelphia . . . His four-year totals (278 PTS in 282 GP) now rank him 33rd in all-time team scoring . . . Co-holds NHL record for Fastest Three Goals, Both Teams—15 seconds—New York Rangers, Minnesota North Stars, at Minnesota, 2/10/83, 2nd Period. Scorers: Mark Pavelich, NY, 19:18; Ron Greschner, NY, 19:27; Willi Plett, Minn, 19:33.

PERSONAL: Nicknames: "Pav," "Weber" . . . Quieter than him they don't come. Unless he's Pav's buddy, Reijo Ruotsalainen ("We do everything together," Ruotsalainen says, "only I don't play guitar") . . . Will avoid the limelight at all costs . . . Made a summer "road trip" ("And I don't like to travel") to Alaska this off-season to fish and worked on perfecting his guitar (wants to play professionally) . . . Has the honor (along with Ron Greschner) of having his stick from his NHL Tri-record of three fastest goals in league history displayed in the Hockey Hall of Fame in Toronto . . . Prefers a wardrobe of boots and dungaree jeans and jacket . . . Married: Wife, Sue.

BARRY BECK QUOTE ON PAVELICH: "It's not just his scoring. It's the way he fits in and the way the team fits in around him . . . Pav has a sense of what's going on at all parts of the ice and we need his hockey sense." (Craig Wolff, New York Times)

1984-85: Brought up from New Haven at mid-season to supply emergency defensive relief and played his dominating game through the rest of the season, finishing second on the team in PIM, as he did with New Haven . . . Played for the Nighthawks in Moncton on a Saturday night, then traveled to New York with defensive mate Grant Ledyard to join the Rangers at the Garden on Sunday, 1/6 vs. New Jersey as replacements for the just-injured Tom Laidlaw and Barry Beck. Was on ice for Tomas Sandstrom's winning overtime goal that gave the Rangers the win, 5-4 . . . Got his first 1984-85 NHL point (had five assists on the season) the next game, 1/9 at Winnipeg, when he assisted Sandstrom on the Rangers first goal to bring them to within 2-1 in their 6-5 defeat . . . Contributed his next two assists in back-to-back games, 1/19 at Washington and 1/24 vs. Detroit, the latter on Peter Sundstrom's short-handed score that boosted the Rangers into a 1-1 tie in the first period in their 3-1 win . . . His final two assists of the year were eventful, too. On 2/22 at Pittsburgh, his set-up of a Reijo Ruotsalainen goal at 7:52 of the first period gave New York a 2-0 cushion, leading to their 8-3 victory, and on 3/31 vs. Toronto, his aider on Ruotsalainen's score at 9:04 of the first lifted the Rangers into a 2-2 tie, after which they never lost the lead in gaining a 7-5 triumph . . . Played his usual crowd-thrilling, rock-'em, sock-'em style of defense, accumulating 90 penalty minutes in his 34 GP, second to George McPhee's 139 PIM . . . Helped the team out in another way, too, moving up to left wing on 3/27 in Buffalo on a line with Bob Brooke at center and Nick Fotiu on the right . . . Took the ice for his 50th New York Ranger game on 3/11 at the Garden against, ironically, his boyhood-favorite team, the Chicago Black Hawks . . . Had begun the season in

New York after leading the team in the exhibition season in PIM, with 46, in 7 GP, then was optioned to New Haven on 10/16 . . . Played 37 games before his recall, contributing 3 G and 10 A for 13 PTS and finishing second in penalties, with 122 minutes, to Al Tuer's 241.

CAREER: Signed by the Rangers as a free agent on 7/22/82 . . . Moved from his Chicago hometown as a junior in high school to get some Junior B experience at 16 for Pickering in Ontario and await college scholarship offers. Got them, from such as Univ. of Denver, Cornell, Wisconsin and Notre Dame, but chose Univ. of Michigan . . . Played there four years, first year as a winger, and led the Wolverines in scoring that season, with 22 G, 34 A for 54 PTS . . . After signing with Rangers upon graduation, he played a full year for the Tulsa Oilers of the old Central Hockey League, then the first part of the next year, 1983-84, before being brought up to the Rangers on 1/17/84 for a supposed one-game "emergency" basis to help out due to the unavailability of Reijo Ruotsalainen (flu) and Dave Maloney (league suspension.) All he did the next night, on his second NHL shot, was score his first NHL goal—unassisted—past Bunny Larocque on a low gunner from the left point, three-and-a-half minutes from the end, to help the Rangers to a 6-2 win vs. St. Louis at the Garden. The score and his exuberance on ice impressed everyone and his stay was extended for the rest of the season. Played 26 games total, finishing the year with a +6 rating, and getting a key assist on 2/15/84 on Nick Fotiu's game-winner vs. the Islanders that catapulted the Rangers over the Isles into first place. Before his recall, was No. 2 on the Oilers in assists—17—to McPhee.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "The General" . . . Belies his tough guy on-ice image by being one of the nicest people on the club, soft-spoken, unassuming—and funny. Where else can you get an answer like, "They don't have barber shops in bus terminals" when, upon his return from the minors, he's told that his hair is longer than when last with the Rangers . . . Graduated with a degree in Physical Education from Michigan . . . Spent this summer working on the Chicago Mercantile Board . . . Parents, Les (a former pro baseball player) and Alice, witnessed his first NHL game at the Garden, plus watch the Ranger games back in Illinois on WOR-TV . . . Steve met his wife, Jean, in college. She says it was "love at first sight" . . . A definite Chicago Cubs fan. "Nothing's better than that," he says of sitting in the bleachers at Wrigley Field in the summer . . . Mother, a portrait artist, was born in New York City . . . Steve spent a lot of time at Chicago Stadium, with his father, watching the Black Hawks, of whom Bobby Orr and Keith Magnuson were his favorites . . . Married: Wife, Jean; Twins, Daughter, Jennifer (1) and Son, Daniel (1), born 8/1/84.

RICHMOND QUOTE: "I don't have all the talent in the world, but I can play with a lot of heart. My style is aggressive—not flashy. What I really like is when I get a good hit and get the guys going. If I can get a goal or an assist, that's something extra. Not everyone is born with talent, but everyone is born with heart. You can have all the talent in the world and not use it, but to have the biggest heart out there and work hard for your team, that's something." (Al Pereira, Canvas)

5-8 175 Shoots L
Born: 10/24/54
Calgary, Alta.
Off-Season Home:
Calgary, Alta.

1984-85: Built, game after game, one of the most consistent of the Ranger seasons, averaging at least 15 points in every 20-game quarter and copping the NHL Player of the Week honors during the third quarter . . . Finished as the team's second-leading scorer, with 64 PTS, nine behind leader Reijo Ruotsalainen . . .

Came in second in assists, with 38 (seven behind Ruotsalainen) and third in goals (26) . . . Built ten multiple-point games, with the Rangers winning nine of them, producing a four-point effort, four three-point and five two-goal games, with his highest concentration of scoring coming against the team's arch rivals, the Islanders, with 6 G and 4 A for 10 PTS in 7 GP . . . Put together an enviable record of game-in, game-out scoring, accumulating 16 PTS (8 G, 8 A) in 20 GP in the first quarter of the season; 17 PTS (6 G, 11 A) in the second quarter; 16 PTS (7 G, 9 A) in the third; and, finally, 15 PTS (5 G, 10 A) in the last quarter of the year. That averages out to 16 PTS in every 20 games . . . Many of the high points in those spans came against the aforementioned Islanders. On 10/21 at home, his first of five power play markers on the season sparked a rally from a 0-3 deficit that saw the Rangers score six unanswered goals on their way to a stunning 6-5 victory over their Long Island rivals. Rogers then faced them on 11/9 and carved one of his three-point games, with a goal and two assists, in the Rangers overtime victory (5-4) at the Garden, a win rescued from a 0-4 early second period deficit, with Rogers doing some of the main rescuing. His tally at 3:29 of the third brought the Rangers to within two, his assist on Barry Beck's score at 9:23 helped them to within one and his final assist, at :57 of overtime, came on a pass to Ruotsalainen that was taken in for the winning score. On 2/7 at the Nassau Coliseum, Mike got the second of his two-goal games, both being go-ahead scores in the Rangers' 7-5 loss. His first period score—on the power play—put the Blueshirts up, 2-1, and his second period goal—again on the power play—put them ahead, 3-2. Ten days later, Rogers helped the Rangers to the second win in their "Wicked Weekend" of victories over Edmonton and the Islanders, as he produced his second-to-last three point night, with a goal and two assists against the Isles at MSG, his score, the 20th of his year, giving the Rangers their final goal in the 9-3 win over their hot rivals. That Rogers finale score meant a sweep of the two 1984 Stanley Cup finalists in a Friday-Sunday Garden weekend, and signalled the most points Rogers accumulated in back-to-back games during the year, six. Against the Oilers, his assist at 8:11 of the first period on an Anders Hedberg goal brought the team to within a 2-1 deficit, but his big contribution was his two goals, the first, at 16:18 of the period tying the game, 3-3, and his last (making it 5-3) being the fourth goal of a span—1:38—that broke a 33-year old record (2:10) of the four fastest goals in the team's history. New York won the match, 8-7 . . . Those two performances, three goals and three assists from 2/11-2/17, earned him the NHL Chrysler Player of the Week Award (a $500 check which he donated to the youth hockey program in his hometown of Calgary), beating out the runners-up Ron Duguay of Detroit (5 G, 2 A, 7 PTS in 3 GP), Greg Malone of Hartford (4 G, 3 A, 7 TP in 3 GP) and Michel Goulet of Quebec (4 G, 3 A, 7 TP in 3 GP) . . . Had three distinct blocks of games within all his consistent point-making that stand out, a nine- and two seven-point concentrations of points in successive games. From 12/22-1/2, he registered 9 PTS spread out over 6 GP (4 G, 5 A), including his lone short-handed score of the year; from 11/9-11/17, he compiled 7 PTS in 4 GP successively (3 G, 4 A); and from 2/15-2/21, Rogers had 7 PTS in 3 GP (4 G, 3 A). Adding it all up, you get 23 PTS in those 13 GP . . . Had 7 PTS in 4 GP in Rangers final four games of season (3/31-4/7), including his four-point effort of 3/31 vs. Toronto, with 2 G (one on the power play) and 2 A (one tying the game) in New York's 7-5 win . . . Contributed in other ways to, moving over to the left wing when injuries hit such at that position as Don Maloney, Mark Osborne and George McPhee. Played there for 11 games from 12/26 at Detroit, getting four goals in his first four games at the side spot . . . Suffered a concussion on 3/6 at Vancouver after a Cam Neely check popped his head into the metal stanchion that holds the boards up and missed the next game, 11/7 at Calgary. That match and when he was rested on 3/16 at Pittsburgh were the only two he missed in the year, the 78 being the second-most on the club to Ruotsalainen's 80 . . . Had a game-winning goal (11/21 vs. Buffalo) and assists on three game-winning scores . . . Reached numerous personal milestones: Played in his 400th NHL game, 11/7 vs. Washington; netted his 100th Ranger goal, 12/10 vs. Los Angeles; scored his 16th NHL short-handed goal, 12/30 at Montreal; registered his 500th NHL point 2/28 vs. Washington; played in his 300th Ranger game, 3/24 vs. the Islanders; and scored his 200th NHL goal and 300th Ranger point, 3/31 vs. Toronto . . . Shared with Anders Hedberg the Rangers Fan Club Frank Boucher Award as the Rangers' Most Popular Player on and off the ice . . . Tied Tomas Sandstrom behind Glen Hanlon in Rangers Alumni Association Star of the Year voting . . . Tied Don Maloney for points in the playoff series, with four (on four assists), getting three of them in final game at the Garden, with the first two coming on the game's first goals.

CAREER: Obtained by Rangers from Hartford, along with the Whalers' 1982 10th round draft choice (defenseman Simo Saarinen) for defensemen Chris Kotsopoulos and Gerry McDonald and right wing Doug Sulliman, 10/2/81 . . . Originally Vancouver's 4th Round choice (77th overall) in 1974 NHL Amateur draft from Calgary Centennials of the WHL and Edmonton's 5th round (61st overall) choice in the WHA amateur draft. Chose to play for Edmonton . . . Starred for Calgary for two years before turning pro, producing 262 PTS in 133 GP (on 121 G) and earning the WHL's Most Gentlemanly Player Award in his final season, 1973-74 . . . Averaged over a point a game as an Edmonton rookie, 83 PTS (35 G, 48 A) in 78 GP . . . Was traded halfway through next year (1975-76) with future considerations to New England for Left Wing Wayne Carlton and proceeded to build points for the eventual NHL Hartford Whalers, averaging nearly a point per game in his three full seasons in New England (1976-79), 225 PTS in 238 GP . . . Assisted on the winning goal in the 1977 WHA All-Star Game in Hartford . . . When the Whalers joined the NHL, Vancouver transferred his rights to Hartford on 6/22/79 and Rogers proceeded to set records in his new/old home. In his first NHL year (1979-80), led the Whalers in scoring with 105 PTS (44 G and 61 A), ranked fifth in the league. Finished second in goals, first in assists and plus/minus (+28) . . . Led the team in scoring (again 105 PTS, on 40 G and 65 A) in 1980-81, assists and tied former Ranger Blaine Stoughton for first place in power play goals, (10). That over-100 point season, coupled with the one before, made him only the 10th player in NHL history to perform such back-to-back feats. Included in his exploits the longest point-streak in the league—18 games, from 11/22/80-1/2/81 (had 39 PTS on 19 G and 20 A). That helped him win the NHL's Player of the Month Award for December. Hartford made him its Captain on 1/20/81. Selected for Wales Conference Team in 1980-81 NHL All-Star Game . . . Traded to Rangers before the next year, he finished his Whaler career as the team's all-time point-leader, with 467 points . . . His first Ranger year, led the team in scoring, again with over 100 PTS (103, on 38 G, 65 A), only the third Ranger ever to score that many, behind Jean Ratelle (109) and Vic Hadfield (106), both in 1971-72. The 65 assists stands as the all-time Ranger single-season record, as well as establishing the Ranger seasonal record for assists by a center. Also established team all-time record for longest consecutive point-scoring streak—16 (2/14-3/20/82). Had his fifth-straight year of 80-game seasons. Scored his 100th NHL goal on 1/15/82 at Winnipeg against Doug Soetaert and got his 300th NHL point on 3/20/82 at Washington . . . For his year, chosen by writers as Ranger MVP, as presented by West Side Association . . . The next year, 1982-83, again led New York in scoring, with 76 PTS (29 G, 47 A). Tied Don Maloney (1980-81) for most short-handed goals in a season—5, a Ranger all-time record . . . Had his NHL consecutive game streak of 297 games broken on 2/16/83 due to a groin injury, stopping a line that went back 457 straight games since his WHA days, to the final game of the 1976-77 New England Whaler season . . . Set Ranger season record for 1983-84 for longest point-scoring streak, 10 games, from 10/10-10/30/83. Tied Don Maloney for the team lead in SHG—3. Notched his 450th NHL point on 3/31/84 at Hartford . . . Has averaged over a point a game in his seven NHL seasons (514 PTS in 467 GP) and darn near to a point per game as a Ranger (304 PTS in 307 GP) . . . Career best goal-scoring (16) is against Pittsburgh . . . Comes into year needing 12 more assists for an even 200 as a Ranger.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Buck" . . . Warm, friendly and funny to those he knows . . . Took some unmerciful kidding from teammates, especially Tom Laidlaw, at the Ranger Fan Club Annual Dinner Dance for his NHL Player of the Week Award . . . New papa this summer . . . A Scrabble freak on the road . . . Mike Trivia: He took the last penalty shot for (12/5/81) and against the Rangers (2/22/81) . . . Married: Wife, Anne; Daughters, Dayna (5), Devon Lea, born 6/28/85.

ROGERS QUOTE: "Being one of the older guys (on the club), I should take over a bit of a leadership role and try to help the young guys as much as possible. Just use my experience to my advantage and do as much as I can for the club in that role. There's really a handful or a group of us that have to take over that role. Having the experience, we have to do that." (Lisa Jordan)

1984-85: The man some people say may be the best pure skater in the NHL moved up and down the ice in going from his nominal defensive position to forward positions, leading the team in six categories . . . Finished first among all Rangers in games played (80); assists (45); points (73); power play goals (10) game-tying goals (3) and shots-taken (255). All these milestones were set while he played 32 games as a forward and 48 as a defenseman . . . His escapades produced many marks for his team, the NHL and his own dossier, all intermixed with his patented "Did-he-really-do-that?" moves on the ice . . . His 28 goals (second on team) and 73 points were career highs, and his 45 assists fell only eight short of that zenith. Add to that his 10 power play goals as a career benchmark and you've got a pretty good country season for a guy who started out in training camp as a defenseman and was without his intended linemates for goods chunks of the season . . . His 32 games up front broke down to 15 G, 20 A, 35 PTS and as a backliner he went 13 G, 25 A, 38 PTS . . . Debuted as a left wing in the first game of the year (after tying for the team lead at that position in points during the exhibition season and slamming in two goals and an assist in his first exhibition game at the spot), 10/11 vs. Hartford and got his first two goals of the year, one on the power play. New York's next game, 10/13 at Minnesota, saw his friend and intended center for the season, Mark Pavelich, go down for two months (his other planned linemate, Anders Hedberg, would miss time during the season also) . . . A month later, on 11/9 vs. the Islanders, he sent in the first of his two seasonal game-winning goals (the second, on 2/17, was also against the Islanders) at :57 of overtime to top off a five-goal Ranger comeback. He also established the individual Ranger mark for most shots in a game—10—that would stand for the season, the fourth year in row that he has held or shared that record. Added to all that that night were two assists, one on the first Ranger goal (by George McPhee) that began the comeback when all seemed lost, and on the tying goal by Don Maloney . . . Had several "mini" point streaks during the season, culminating in the '84-'85 Ranger record (and longest for the team in three years) of 14 games straight with at least a point. Streak began on 2/5 and ended 3/7. In that time, Ruotsalainen accounted for 20 PTS on 9 G and 11 A. Included in that were the GWG 11/9 vs. the Islanders, three PPGs and assists on six PPGs. Only six players in league had longer streaks . . . Strangely, not one of his total of two goals in a game five times (an amount matched only by Mike Rogers and Pierre Larouche) came during that time. These were spaced at odd times through the year, the "oddest" three coming in the team's 1st, 21st and 41st games of the year. . . . Tied for the NHL lead (with Doug Gilmour, Jari Kurri and Bernie Nicholls) for the most final game-tying goals (3). Those came on 12/12/84, 1/5/85, and 2/9/85. His PPG on 2/5/85 at Los Angeles—his seventh of the season—matched the career high for him and his advantage marker on 3/2 at Pittsburgh set his new personal mark . . . Matched his career high for goals (20, set the year before) with his game-winner 2/17 vs. Islanders, and he broke the mark two games later, 2/22 at Pittsburgh . . . Matched his entire point-total of '83-'84 in 63rd game of the year, 3/3 vs. Pittsburgh, then topped it in next game with a PPG 3/6 at Vancouver . . . His assist on 3/31 vs. Toronto gave him 70 points, duplicating his total of previous year and, here too, the mark was bettered in the next game, with an assist 4/2 vs. Philadelphia . . . 14 of his goals came at the Garden, 14 on the road . . . Registered his 200th Ranger point 11/25 vs. Quebec with a game-tying assist; his 150th Ranger assist on 1/2 vs. Vancouver, a shorthanded one; and played in his 300th Ranger game 3/21 at Philadelphia, his final two-goal game of the year . . . Tied old pal Pavelich for season mark for most shots in a period—5—only he did it twice to Pav's once, on 11/9/84 and 2/22/85 . . . A point man on Rangers 7th-ranked power play . . . Tallied two goals in the Division Semi-Finals against the Flyers, New York's first goal of the game on 4/10—a power play marker—and the club's first goal again, on 4/13 at the Garden. Led team in shots in the series, with 13 . . . Immediately after the playoffs, was selected to play for home-country Finland in World Championships in Prague. Had four assists in 10 games . . . Voted by fellow players the Rangers' 1984-85 "Players' Player Award," presented by the West Side Association.

CAREER: Rangers 6th Round draft choice (119th overall) in 1980 NHL Entry Draft from Karput in Finland . . . Previous year, helped Karput to Finnish League championship . . . Played for Finland in 1981 Canada Cup and was Finnish All-Star in '80 and '81 . . . Joined Rangers and immediately impressed people in their Scandinavian training trip, being named MVP of Dagens-Nyheter Tournament, MVP of the final game and top defenseman. Played in all five games on trip and scored 2 G, 4 A . . . Started off in NHL with bang, with portent of things to come, as he finished as team's highest-scoring defenseman, with 18 G, 38 A for 56 PTS. Those 18 goals tied him (with Brad Maxwell of Minnesota in 1977-78) for mark of third-highest scoring rookie defenseman in NHL annals, leader being Ranger teammate and oftentimes defensive mate Barry Beck, with 22 . . . Scored a hat trick his rookie year also, on St. Patrick's Day, 3/17/82 and congenially donned a green chapeau that was tossed on ice

. . . Led Rangers in assists his sophomore year (53), shots-taken (230) and plus/minus ranking, with a +27 . . . Notched his 100th Ranger assist on 10/22/83 at Islanders and played 200th Ranger game on 1/25/84 at Pittsburgh . . . Chosen, along with Pierre Larouche, for first annual Star of Year Award by the Rangers Alumni Association in '83-'84.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Rexi" . . . Gives you that sly smile and quiet quip . . . Picked last season as having the fourth-best slapshot in the league in a poll of NHL GMs, coaches and goaltenders by The Calgary Herald (behind Allan MacInnis, Doug Wilson and Reed Larson) . . . Was, believe it or not, what with his build, a goalie as a five-year old, catching right-handed. Skated five hours a day at nearby indoor rink . . . Father, Reino, was one of coaches of 1984 Finnish Olympic Team . . . Made "They Said It" column in Sports Illustrated this past season with his answer to the question, "Who is The Person You'd Most Like To Meet". "My wife," said Rexi . . . He and Pavelich are road roomates, kindred souls, one-of-a-kind . . . Single.

1984-85: Had a great training camp, making the team from just about nowhere, and played in eight of the Rangers first 13 games before tearing left knee ligaments and missing the rest of the year . . . Impressed everyone in pre-season with his skating, shooting and toughness . . . Make his NHL debut on 10/13 at Minnesota, playing the next four games before suffering a pulled muscle in his lower back on 10/25 . . . Returned to action on 11/7 vs. Washington, then two games later, 11/11 vs. Los Angeles, slid into the right post of the L.A. net in the first period, catching his leg and tearing the cruciate ligaments of his left knee . . . Went under the arthroscope the next day and resumed skating on 12/10, but the knee continued to swell, so surgery was performed on 1/10 . . . Had not acquired any points in his season, while taking eight shots on goal.

CAREER: Rangers' 11th Round choice (213th overall) in 1983 NHL Entry Draft from IFK Helskini (Finland) . . . Played there four years, contributing 45 PTS on 22 G and 23 A in 128 GP . . . While there, was taken under the wing of former Calgary Flame Pekka Rautakallio (1979-82), another defenseman, who schooled him in the ways of the NHL . . . Also perfected his English thanks to 1984-85 Calgary rookie Carey Wilson, who played with Helsinki from 1981-83 . . . Saarinen was chosen for the Finnish National Team in the year (1983-84) immediately preceding his debut with the Rangers and was also picked for Finland in the 1984 Olympics in Sarajevo . . . Chosen for the All-Star Team of the world championships for 20-year olds in Leningrad in 1983.

PERSONAL: Religiously watched, while in Finland, on satellite, the Hockey Night In Canada telecasts, which helped his English . . . Won, with his 24-handicap, the Rangers annual camp-breaking golf tournament last pre-season . . . Was so confident he'd make the team, bought himself a car upon arrival in the U.S. . . . Good guy, always ready to joke and laugh . . . Married; Wife, Tarja; Daughter Emma, born 9/12/85.

1984-85: Came over quietly from Sweden to set everyone on their ear and be named to the NHL's All-Rookie Team . . . Led the Rangers in goals—29—the third highest total for a rookie in Ranger annals . . . Only two more NHL freshmen (Mario Lemieux, 43, and Warren Young, 40, both of Pittsburgh) had more . . . Finished fourth on the Rangers in overall scoring—59 PTS; fifth in assists—30; tied for first for game-winning goals—3; second in shots—190; and second in plus/minus, +3 . . . "Streaked" the whole season, just about, but put together four distinct streaks that basically spanned each quarter of the season . . . Made his NHL debut on 10/11 vs. Hartford in the season-opener and made it count, as his 10-foot shot over goalie Greg Millen 1:09 from the end tied the game for the Rangers, 4-4, and gave the youngster his first NHL goal. That began Sandstrom Streak No. 1, in which he accumulated 15 PTS (8 G, 7 A) in 18 GP through 11/24. Tucked in that span was a mini-streak in which he had four games in a row that he scored at least one goal in (getting two on 10/25 at New Jersey for his first of three double-goal games in the year), with the Rangers winning all four, with three coming against divisional rivals. Included was his first NHL power play goal, 10/20 at Washington and first game-winning goal, 10/27 at Quebec, when his score at 14:57 of the second period stood up as the decider in New York's 5-2 victory. So his first six NHL points all came on goals. First NHL assist was also within the stretch, 10/28 vs. Boston, a game in which he engineered his first NHL double-assist effort . . . Streak No. 2 came from 12/3-1/16 and included the second-longest consecutive game goal-scoring streak by an NHL rookie for '84-'85, five games, tying Sandstrom with Boston's Dave Reid behind the six games of Minnesota's Dirk Graham and the Islanders' Patrick Flatley. In the skein, Sandstrom produced 18 PTS (9 G, 9 A) in 21 GP. Highlights in that period: his second and third game-winning goals of the year (he tied Pierre Larouche and Mark Pavelich for the club lead), on 12/10 vs. Los Angeles and 1/6 vs. New Jersey, the latter coming 1:14 into overtime when he took George McPhee's face-off winner in front of the net and poked it by Chico Resch; and the five-game consecutive streak, in which six goals were scored, from the two on 12/30 vs. St. Louis through the final on 1/9 at Winnipeg . . . Streak No. 3 was built from 2/3-2/17, with 9 PTS in 7 GP (4 G, 5 A) and featured his two three-point games on the year, on the Wild Weekend of mid-February when the Rangers, A) Beat Edmonton at the Garden on 2/15, 8-7, with Sandstrom earning three assists, all on the team record-breaking four (1:38)- and five (3:22)-fastest goals in team history (including the game-tying score at 3-3 and the goals that signaled the four and five-goal record) and, B) Beat the Islanders, again at the Garden, with Sandstrom kicking off the game's scoring with a power play marker, then contributing assists on the Rangers' sixth and eighth goals in their 9-3 romp. Built into that overall streak were three consecutive games with a goal, from 2/3-2/5, all on the road . . . Finally, Sandstrom Season Streak No. 4 comprised 19 (3/2-4/7) of the team's final 20 games and produced 16 PTS in that total (8 G, 8 A), giving him an even breakdown of goals and assists (29 each) in his four season streaks. Tucked in the final streak was a seven-game duration (3/2-3/13) in which at least one point was registered (5 G, 7 A), which tied him for fourth place in the league's rookie category for Points Gained In 6 Or More Consecutive Games (the high was the Islanders' Pat LaFontaine's 11) and also tied him for fifth place among rookies for Assists Awarded In 5 Or More Consecutive Games (which was Sandstrom's mark from 3/3-3/11), with the leader again being LaFontaine, with nine . . . Set the Ranger mark for the season for Longest Consecutive Game Goal Scoring Streak—5 (with six goals, 12/30-1/9) . . . Longest he went without a point was five games, 1/18-2/2, with a back injury in the middle of that . . . Including his opening night GWG in the tie, had a direct hand (with assists on the game's final goals of 12/5 vs. Calgary and 12/23 vs. Montreal) in three Ranger ties during the season . . . In games in which he scored, the Rangers either won or tied 17 of 26 . . . On 3/13 vs. Philadelphia, his score at 4:45 of the second period gave him 26 for the season, thus tying Mike Allison (1980-81) and Wally Hergesheimer (1951-52) for fourth place on the Rangers All-Time rookie rolls. His goal on 3/22 at Detroit broke that tie and his final 29 placed him in undisputed possession of fourth-place on the list behind Mark Pavelich (33) in 1981-82, Don Murdoch (32) in 1976-77 and Steve Vickers (30) in 1972-73 . . . Had five power play goals . . . 13 of his 29 scores were against Patrick Division rivals . . . Placed third in the league among rookies in shots, 190 (behind Lemieux's 209 and Montreal's Chris Chelios' 199) and third in the "First Goals of a Game" category, with five (behind Hartford's Kevin Dineen's 10 and Lemieux's 9) . . . Only one other rookie—Flatley (4)—had more game-winning goals than Sandstrom, who tied four other frosh with three . . . Highest scoring on the year came against the Islanders, with 3 G, 4 A, 7 TP in 6 GP . . . Won the Rangers' Most Valuable Player Award, as voted upon by the media and sponsored by the West Side Association . . . Wore a shield for part of the year while protecting a broken nose and bruised cheekbone . . . Finished tied for second with Mike Rogers in balloting for the Rangers Alumni Association Star of the Year, which went to Glen Hanlon (19 points to 17 in voting after every home game) . . . Played in all three Ranger division semi-final playoff games against the Flyers, assisting on two key goals: Anders Hedberg's in Game No. 1 (4/10) that tied the score with 26 seconds to go in the game in 5-4 Ranger OT loss; and Willie Huber's that put the Rangers ahead in Game No. 3 (4/13), 3-2 in the second period in 6-5 defeat . . . Chosen right after the playoffs to play for Sweden in the World Championships in Prague and finished tied for first in points (9) among Ranger properties in the tournament with New York's 1984 No. 2 draft choice, center Raimo Helminen of Finland. Played in 10 games total, with 3 G and 6 A . . . Played in September for Sweden in the Canada Cup . . . Named on 6/14 at a press conference in Toronto at the annual draft to the 1984-85 NHL Rookie All-Star Team.

CAREER: Rangers' 2nd Round choice (36th overall) in 1982 NHL Entry Draft from Brynas of Sweden . . . Picked by the Rangers at the age of 17 . . . Began playing organized hockey for his hometown team, Fagersta in 1981-82 . . . Joined Brynas the next two years before coming to Rangers . . . Voted Best Junior Player in Sweden by "Expressen" newspaper in 1982-83, as had been Anders Hedberg in 1969 and '70, and this year, Rangers 1985 1st Round draft choice, center Ulf Dahlen. Also given the same honor in the 1982-83 Junior World Championships in Leningrad . . . Was busy the year (1983-84) immediately preceding his NHL rookie season, if for no other reason than he spent the obligatory seven months performing military duty. Had his first experience for the Swedish National Team that September, playing against the Canadian pre-Olympic squad. Also picked for Swedish Juniors, and named one of the three best players in Junior World Championships in Norrkoping, Sweden 12/25/83-1/3/84. Notched 7 PTS in 7 GP in the tourney (4 G, 3 A). Chosen for the Swedish Olympic Team that copped the bronze in Sarajevo. Led the Swedish Elite League with 81 PIM.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Sandy" . . . As likeable as they come . . . Did his share of interviews during the year, even TV, unusual for the players newly arrived to North America . . . After his Rookie All-Star Team press conference in Toronto this past June, took a cab to the International Hockey Hall of Fame and toured for a couple of hours, with special interest in the international hockey exhibits . . . When he plays for the Swedish National Team, the "O" in his name is spelled "Ö". His national team sweater was hung in Cosby's sports equipment store in the Garden and somebody offered $300 for it . . . Is an adept carpenter, which was his after-practice job in Sweden, where players also have regular occupations . . . Was born in Finland (Jakobstad), but family moved when he was a child to Fagersta, Sweden, about 20 miles from Stockholm . . . Single.

SANDSTROM QUOTE: "It helped me to play in the Canada Cup. A lot of people said I was too young, they wanted me to wait a year before I came to the Rangers. But if I can play now, it is good. In Sweden, I worked as a carpenter from 7:00 AM to 4:00 PM and then practiced hockey from 6:00 PM to 7:30 PM. Here, we play hockey without carpentry. This is better." (Walt MacPeek, Newark Star-Ledger)

Born: 7/21/60
Guelph, Ontario
Off-Season Home:
New Haven, CT.

1984-85: Spent the entire season at New Haven, having most of it interrupted by injuries . . . Was brought up for one game to the Rangers, on 12/12 vs. Boston, when John Vanbiesbrouck, who was not due to start, pulled a muscle in his left leg in that morning's practice, and Scott sat on bench, but saw no action . . . His injury chart for his New Haven season read like this: 11/2 at Sherbrooke, pulled groin; 12/15 at Adirondack, re-injury of the groin; 1/5 at Moncton, broken right index finger; 2/9 at Springfield, re-pull of the groin; 3/6 vs. Springfield, groin again . . . When things were totaled up, despite all the ailments, checked in with a 3.81 goals-against average on 130 GA with 877 saves in 36 GP . . . Final record read: 13-18-4 . . . Split most of goaltending chores with Los Angeles Kings' property Mike Blake.

CAREER: Signed as a free agent by the Rangers on 5/25/83 . . . Before starring three years at Michigan State, played with Cornwall Royals of Ontario Hockey League, helping them to Memorial Cup in 1980. Came in as their emergency goalie due to injuries in playoffs . . . Began with Michigan State in 1980-81 and was picked as their Most Valuable Player every year there. Received Outstanding Rookie Award, as voted by his coaches and was voted an All-American by the American Hockey Coaches Association as a junior and senior as well as a Central Collegiate Hockey Association All-Star those years. Finally, in those last two years, was chosen Michigan State's Male Athlete of the Year. "The Hockey News" chose him as its College Hockey Player of the Year in '82 . . . His first year as a pro—1983-84—was just about as successful. Played most of it with the champion Tulsa Oilers, the Rangers' top farm club, of the old Central Hockey League, being named, along with Ranger John Vanbiesbrouck, a recipient of the Terry Sawchuk Trophy, given to the goalie(s) with the lowest goals-against average (Vanbiesbrouck and Scott combined to give Tulsa a 3.61 GAA.) Won two of the four games that the Oilers swept to the CHL title over Indianapolis. Played nine games for the Rangers, making his NHL debut on 2/2/84 at Calgary, taking over for Glen Hanlon in the third period, while making his first NHL save on Colin Patterson at 2:47. Won his first NHL game two days later, on 2/4/84 at Vancouver, 5-4, contributing 20 saves. Flew down to Los Angeles the next night, made 35 saves and posted a 3-3 tie. Three days later, 2/8/84 at Winnipeg, got his second big league victory in less than a week, 3-1, giving the Rangers more road wins—12—than they had in all the season before. Ended his first NHL sojourn at 2-3-3.

1984-85: Continued his quiet, dependable style of play in his second season as a Ranger, excelling on New York's fifth-ranked penalty-killing team and contributing some important points along the way . . . Ended up with 18 G and 25 A for 43 PTS with 12 of the scores coming against Patrick Division teams and, as befits his manner of play, 16 of those assists came at key moments in games: three of them on game-winning goals, five on game-tying scores (with one on the final goal of a game), six on go-ahead goals and two being first goals of a game . . . Credited with winning two games with his goals, tying him with four other Rangers for No. 2 in the category, with both coming against Patrick rival New Jersey, and both at their home. First was on 10/25, in the Rangers most decisive road victory ever, 11-2, when his score at 9:24 of the second period proved out the decider, giving the Rangers their third win in a row. The second came on 1/8, again in a goal-crazy game, as his tally 15:38 into the second gave the New Yorkers a 7-3 lead in their 9-6 win and edged them four points ahead of the sixth-place Devils in the standings . . . Didn't do too badly against another divisional enemy, Pittsburgh, either, concentrating his two biggest point-production games (three points) against the Penguins, again, ironically, on the road. On 11/3, in a 7-5 win, rang up two goals, one a go-ahead score (3-2) and an assist, a go-ahead-er also (2-1); and on 2/22, got his second career hat trick, scoring the Rangers' first (and game's first), fifth and last goal in a 8-3 victory, moving the fourth-place New Yorkers six points ahead of last-place Pittsburgh in the standings. The game was notable for two other reasons: Sundstrom's first goal was a short-handed one and was the first of five penalties that he helped kill in the game, to give the Rangers' unit a 25 out of the last 29 kill ratio; Second, his three goals gave him six in the last eight games, which, along with five assists, gave him 11 PTS in 9 GP (2/5-2/22), the second of his two mid-season scoring streaks. The hat trick tied him with Anders Hedberg for the Rangers seasonal mark of Most Goals In A Game and was one of 102 scored throughout the NHL's year. The short-handed goal was the fourth of his two-year career, with his other in the season coming 1/24 vs. Detroit, tying the game 1-1 in the first period in Rangers' 3-1 win . . . His other point streak came a month earlier, from 12/29-1/12, and featured 2 G and 6 A for 8 PTS in 7 GP. It included two of his five '84-'85 double-assist games . . . As mentioned, a large batch of his assists were on pivotal goals, the game-winners 11/7 vs. Washington; 2/15 vs. Edmonton; and 3/3 against his favorite of the year, Pittsburgh. Interesting also in Sundstrom's breakdowns are his five "game-tying assists," because three of them put the Rangers "right back in the fray," 1-1, and one of 'em, on 12/12 vs. Boston, on Reijo Ruotsalainen's goal, was the game's final score in a 3-3 deadlock (he also added an assist on the Rangers' first goal in that game.) . . . Finished third on the team in games-played, with 76, and fourth in shots-taken, 157 . . . suited up for his 100th game as a Ranger on 12/3 vs. Philadelphia . . . Played in all three playoff games, earning a +2 in the process.

CAREER: Rangers' 3rd Round choice (50th overall) in 1981 NHL Entry Draft from Bjorkloven (Sweden) . . . Played four years for Bjorkloven, in 108 GP, getting 34 G, 26 A for 60 TP . . . Chosen for the Swedish National Junior Team in 1981, proceeding to the finals of the World Championships, and Swedish National Teams in his time there . . . Had to do his mandatory military service before joining the Rangers . . . Finished eighth among NHL Rookies in 1983-84 in goal-scoring, with 22, to go along with 22 A for 44 PTS. Finished second among NHL frosh in game-winning goals (4) and short-handed scores (2, which also ranked him second on Rangers) and games-played (77.) Shared the Ranger season record of Most Goals In A Game—3, with Pierre Larouche, with his "pure" hat trick (a game's three successive scores, with the first two, incidentally, coming within :41 of each other), on 1/16/84 in Rangers' 8-5 win vs. Detroit. Scored in his first NHL game, on 10/5/83 vs. New Jersey, at 14:21 of the second period—the game winner—against Chico Resch. That was the first of six goals in his first 11 Ranger games, with three more of them (in a row) being game-winning goals, and two of those coming back-to-back against the Islanders on a Saturday-on-the-Island, Sunday-at-the-Garden weekend (10/22-10/23/83). The Sunday night goal gave the Rangers the best-ever start in their 59 seasons, 9-1. Finished his rookie season as a +3. Scored a power play goal in the second game of the Division Semi-Final Series, at the Islanders, 4/5/84 to put the Rangers up, 2-0, in their 3-0 win that deadlocked the series at one game apiece . . . Career high scoring against an NHL team has been against New Jersey—11 PTS in 14 GP, on 6 G and 5 A . . . His 40 Ranger goals have been evenly divided up, 20 at home, 20 away . . . Needs 12 more points for an even 100.

PERSONAL: The buddy, roommate on the road, house-sharer at home with Jan Erixon. They both own pacers together back in Sweden, with Peter's being named, "Keyson Joms" . . . Twin brother, Patrik, 20 minutes older, plays for the Vancouver Canucks, and they faced each other for the first time in the NHL on 11/28/83 . . . Quiet as can be. "I guess we're about the same," Patrik says when asked who talks more, which makes things really noiseless . . . Favorite food is pasta . . . Most memorable game other than the final of the Junior World Championship he played in was the 1984 Game 5 of the division semi-final against the Islanders (4/10/84), which Rangers lost in OT . . . Likes soccer and golf. Single.

SUNDSTROM QUOTE: (On the physical part of the game): "I always play that way, where I get a lot of hits on me. I don't mind it. It makes you feel more in the game. It doesn't hurt—well, maybe after the game, but not during the game. You know you're going to get hit, but when you're prepared for it, it's nothing." (Frank Brown, New York Daily News)

GOALTENDER

5-7 165 Shoots L
Born: 9/4/63
Detroit, Mich.
Off-Season Home:
Detroit, Mich.

1984-85: Impressed everyone in his first full NHL year with his high promise and exhibited it directly after the season with an outstanding performance in the World Championships . . . Had many notable games during the year, standing up under some particularly ardent onslaughts, stopping at least 40 shots nine times during the year (and once 47), earning the team's lone shutout of the season, and even establishing an all-time team record for goaltender assists in a year . . . Ended the season with a 12-24-3 won-lost-tied, a 4.22 goals-against average and a .876 save percentage . . . Those numbers are somewhat belied by some of his individual efforts during the campaign, particularly against Patrick Division rivals, where he earned eight of his 12 wins, including the Rangers' three wins over the Islanders . . . First victory of year came in wild, 6-5 Ranger comeback win over Islanders at the Garden on 10/21, with Vanbiesbrouck facing 39 shots. Followed that one up with second win in Rangers next game, 10/25 at New Jersey in team's most decisive road win in their history, 11-2. The score looks easy, but, early in the game, Vanbiesbrouck was "The Man," as he stopped the likes of Mel Bridgman breaking in alone right near the end of the first period with the Rangers only up by one, 2-1; then Don Lever with a skate-save and Aaron Broten with a pad-stop all early in the second period when game was notted, 2-2. 7:03 after the Broten save, Tomas Sandstrom opened the nine-goal floodgate for New York . . . Two games later came the first of his nine "over-40-shot" games, a 41-save effort 11/3 at Pittsburgh in a 7-5 win in which he was voted second star of the game by turning away 30 shots in the first two periods and withstanding eight fruitless Penguin power plays, two of which came with two Rangers short. His next game, another win, totaled 45 shots-against, yet the Islanders were beaten by the rookie for the second time in the young season, 5-4 in overtime on 11/9, as he faced 18, 14, 11, 12 and 2 shots. And in his next game, a 6-4 loss 11/14 at Chicago, he faced 38 shots, which, added up, total 124 shots in three games—with two wins . . . His next win was, puck-wise, the toughest of the year, as he was barraged with 47 shots up in Toronto on 12/1, yet, next to his shutout, he posted his best save percentage of the season, .979 in the Rangers 4-1 win—all while wearing a brand new glove and blocker. In the third period, he faced 24 shots, the high-water mark of the year for a period against New York. For the performance, he was voted first Star of the Game. Next game? A "rest." Only 44 shots, these taken by the Calgary Flames, with Vanbiesbrouck stopping 40, for his first tie of the season, 4-4, on 12/5 at the Garden, with him again earning Star of the Game honors. He shut down Al MacInnis, believed to have the hardest shot in the NHL, whose 11 shots were wasted . . . From 12/30 to 1/5, he started three in a row, not losing, as the team went 2-0-1 with Vanbiesbrouck allowing only five goals in the games. The middle one, on 1/2 vs. Vancouver, was the team's first shutout since 4/1/84 (Glen Hanlon's) and the first of his career. Incredibly, he wasn't even scheduled to start, having put in a heavy morning practice the non-playing goaltender does on a game-day, and did not find out he was starting till 1½ hours before the game due to Hanlon's flu. In all, he faced only 21 shots—a real "off night" for him, and the fewest of the season for the team . . . Perhaps his "Save of the Year" came on 3/3 vs. Pittsburgh in a Rangers' win at the Garden. With 1:55 left in the first period, NHL Rookie of the Year Mario Lemieux took a whack from 10 feet out. Vanbiesbrouck, on the right side of the crease, took off in the air horizontally to his left, whipped out his glove hand, extending himself as far as possible, and pocketed the shot, insuring the Rangers' 1-0 lead that turned into a 7-3 victory . . . Tied a New York Ranger record (shared by three goalies) for Most Assists for A Goaltender, Season—3, on 1/18 (his third assist in his last two games) and broke the record on 2/17, when his fourth assist of the year launched Reijo Ruotsalainen on his game-winning score at 12:25 of the second period to make it 4-2 in Rangers 9-3 win vs. the Islanders. Added one more assist, on 3/22 at Detroit—his hometown—for his final five. Tied a 13-year old team record when he got two assists in a game, on 1/9 at Winnipeg, equaling Eddie Giacomin's performance on 3/19/72 vs. Toronto. In all, he had one go-ahead, one game tying and one game-winning assist . . . Set the team record for the '84-'85 season for Most Penalty Minutes In A Game—17, 2/17 against the Islanders for, among other things, getting involved in a tiff with Isles' goalie Kelly Hrudey. . . .Was voted the first annual Rangers Fan Club Rookie of the Year Award after the season . . . Was also voted the Rangers Good Guy Award for cooperation with the media by the New York Chapter of the Professional Hockey Writers Association . . . Left the day after the Rangers final playoff game to backstop Team USA in the 50th World Championships in Prague, Czechoslovakia, helping them to America's first medal round in the competition since 1976, and earning himself All-Star honors (Second Team) for the tournament, one of only two NHLers (the other was Mario Lemieux) to receive the honor. His heroics led the Americans to a 4-2-1 record and second-place in the preliminary round behind Russia; to MVP honors for himself (a porcelin vase) in the team's first four games; and Tri-MVP honors (along with Gary Suter of the Univ. of Wisconsin and the Pittsburgh Penguins' Moe Mantha.) "John was responsible for most of our success," said Mantha. "He made all the big saves." Vanbiesbrouck enabled the US to reach the medal round in big part due to his successive victories over Sweden, Canada, Czechoslavakia and West Germany, including a 41-save effort against the Canadians and a 4-3 win over the West Germans that virtually insured America's berth in the finals.

CAREER: Rangers 5th Round Choice (72nd overall) in the 1981 NHL Entry Draft from Sault Ste. Marie (OHL) . . . Was bypassed as a 16-year old by every team in the OHL midget draft and signed with Sault Ste. Marie as a free agent to eventually become a OHL All Star. In his first year with the Greyhounds, he won the F.W. "Dinty" Moore Trophy, given annually to the first year goaltender with the best GAA for the season. Vanbiesbrouck won it with a 4.14 in 1980-81. That same year, he and Marc D'Amour shared the Dave Pinkney Trophy, given to the goalkeeper of the OHL team who has the fewest goals-against during the season (Vanbiesbrouck had 102 and D'Amour, who played last year for Moncton of AHL, 130) . . . Made his Ranger debut while still with Sault Ste. Marie, at 18, being brought up for one game on 12/5/81 at Colorado, and beating the Rockies, 2-1, turning away 30 shots . . . After three years of juniors, joined the then-Rangers Central Hockey League team in Tulsa and helped them to the league championship in 1983-84, being named by The Hockey News as the "Minor League Player of the Year," as well as Co-MVP of the CHL (with Indianapolis' Bruce Affleck.) He set the best GAA in the CHL playoffs (2.50), going 4-0. Put together a 20-13-2 regular season record and the loop's second-best average, 3.46. The 20 wins were the second-best in the league. He and fellow Ranger Ron Scott were awarded the Terry Sawchuk Trophy, which goes to the goalies of the best defensive team. Additionally, he was chosen to the CHL's First-Team All-Star squad . . . Spent three games with the Rangers during his Tulsa season, being promoted on 3/21/84 to act as emergency for an injured Glen Hanlon. Shut out Montreal at the Garden for 48:29 on 3/25/84, earning a 3-2 victory that gave New York 40 seasonal wins for the first time in six years . . . Was selected for the U.S. in the 1984 Canada Cup but did not see action.

PERSONAL: Nickname: "Beezer" . . . A thoughtful, yet outgoing and funny personality . . . Was the fourth-youngest Ranger ever in his 12/5/81 first game, behind Harry Lumley, Bones Raleigh and Len Wharton . . . Is the second-longest named Ranger in the history of the club (17 letters total), behind Sheldon Kannegiesser (1972-74), 19 letters . . . Became a "Second Nicki" last year, when he helped New York's own (Fotiu) in his pre-game ceremony of tossing the team's practice pucks to the fans . . . Learned to play goal by blocking a taped-up old sock in his basement against his older brother and his friends. Wears glasses off the ice, wore them under his mask in juniors for his first year . . . Single.

VANBIESBROUCK QUOTE: "In hockey more, I think, than in any other sport, there's a greater togetherness. We have secrets and share things on this team that we would never tell anyone outside the team. And that makes us more like a family." (Craig Wolff, New York Times)

1984-85: Obtained in early-December trade with Buffalo to split rest of season between Rangers, tying all-time club record for fastest goal at beginning of game, and New Haven, finishing as the Nighthawks' top-scoring defenseman

. . . Came to New York on 12/6/84 with right wing Steve Patrick for defensemen Dave Maloney and Chris Renaud . . . Debuted the next night, against Pittsburgh at the Garden . . . Six of his seven Ranger points were significant ones: A go-ahead goal and an assist; a game-tying goal and assist (both at 1-1); and two first goals of the game. Two of these goals and one of the assists were on the power play . . . His first Ranger point came with another one (a goal and an assist) on 12/16 vs. Washington, when his score at 3:33 of the first period tied the game, 1-1, and his assist on an Anders Hedberg goal directly after (at 4:03) put the Rangers up, 2-1, in their 6-3 loss. Wiemer took six shots in the game, his Ranger high for the season . . . His next goal was also a power-play marker and it was also a "go-ahead-er," giving the Rangers a 3-2 lead in their eventual 5-4 defeat of New Jersey at the Garden on 1/6 . . . Goal No. 3 was an astounding one, and the record-tyer. It came on his "home-coming" to Buffalo on 3/27 in his first appearance at The Aud since the trade, and it stunned everyone. Seconds after the opening faceoff, which the Rangers lost, the Sabres' Mike Ramsey tried passing over his blueline to Ric Seiling. In stepped Wiemer, intercepting the pass, moving quickly just inside the line and whacking a 50-foot slap-shot that glanced off the glove of Bob Sauve and into the net. Elapsed time of the goal: 0.09 ("That's a really good way to quiet down a crowd that wants to be noisy," said Ramsey afterwards.) The time of score was exactly the same as Ron Duguay's for the Rangers on 4/6/80 at Philadelphia. It also tied the Buffalo record for the fastest score by an opponent off an opening faceoff . . . Wiemer's final New York score—on another 50-foot slap-shot—came in St. Louis on 4/4, again on the game's first score, 1:43 into the match, and it gave the Rangers a lead they never relinquished in their 5-4 victory (he also added an assist, to give him two two-point games as a Ranger) . . . So, if you tack on his goal at 3:33 of the game 12/16 vs. Washington, three of Wiemer's four New York goals were cumulatively registered in the first 5:25 of the games (:09; 1:43; 3:33) . . . To round out his "significant points" total, Wiemer's assist on Mark Pavelich's goal at 10:48 of the first period 3/26 at Pittsburgh tied the score, 1-1, and sent the Rangers onto a lead they never lost in their 5-4 win that virtually assured them of a Patrick Division playoff berth . . . Had played in seven games for Buffalo before the trade, contributing 3 G and 2 A in 10 GP, which gave him an overall NHL total for the year of 7 G, 5 A for 12 PTS in 32 GP . . . A point-man on the power play, two of his Sabre goals were such, giving him four overall for the season . . . Sandwiched within his Ranger tenure (he was optioned to the team's AHL affiliate in New Haven on 1/12 and recalled on 3/23) was a 33-game stay with the Nighthawks in which he finished fifth on the team in scoring (in spite of playing in only one-third of their games) and first among defensemen. His New Haven totals: 9 G, 27 A for 36 PTS. Included were one overtime game-winning score (at 2:33 of OT, 1/8 vs. St. Catherines in a 4-3 Nighthawk victory) and two power-play scores. Built a seven-game point streak there, with 4 G and 8 A for 12 PTS from 1/26-2/10 . . . Actually played on four teams during the season, beginning the year with Buffalo's Rochester AHL franchise, playing in 13 G, with 1 G and 9 A . . . Appeared in his second-ever playoff game, the opening one for the Rangers on 4/10 at Philadelphia.

CAREER: Buffalo's 5th Round choice (83rd overall) in the 1980 NHL Entry Draft from Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association . . . Had 19 G, 26 A for 45 PTS as a rookie left wing with Rochester Americans of the AHL in 1981-82 . . . Spent his second pro year on a championship squad, the 1982-83 Americans, winning the team's award as its Top Defensive Player. Had begun the year as a left wing, but was moved back by Rochester coach Mike Keenan when the club was 8-12-3 and, from that point on, the Amerks built a 38-13-6 record and went on to capture the Calder Cup trophy from Maine, 4-0 in games. Immediately after the switch of Wiemer, Rochester went 14-2-1 in its next 17 games. Finished tied for fifth on the club in assists (44) and was their third-leading playoff scorer (5 G, 15 A for 20 PTS) while placing No. 2 in game-winning goals (2) and assists post-season. Played in his first NHL playoff game in the Adams Division final series on 4/15/83 vs. Boston for Buffalo, who returned him after the game for Rochester's AHL playoffs . . . Got his first real taste of big league action the next season, staying in Buffalo for 64 of the team's first 67 games before being optioned to Rochester on 3/6/84 to again help them get to the Calder Cup final. Claimed his first NHL goal on 10/28/83 vs. Los Angeles and had two scores on 12/17/83 at Hartford, including his first NHL short-handed score, in which he skated the length of the ice to pocket it behind goalie Greg Millen. Led Rochester in assists, with 13, in the '83-'84 playoffs, and finished as the fifth-leading scorer overall on the Americans (3 G, 13 A for 16 PTS in 18 GP.) One of the scores was a game-winner.

PERSONAL: Nicknames: "Wiems," "Ripper" . . . One of the all-time NHL super eaters. Definitely into ribs. Will be a sure starter for the Rangers if they again challenge the Knicks to a rib-eating contest at the Beanstalk this year (Rangers copped it last season) . . . Soft-spoken, but friendly . . . Married: Wife, Laura; Son, Jake Duncan, born, at 7 lbs., 14 oz., on 12/26/84.

WIEMER QUOTE (On his first day as a Ranger): "I was a little nervous . . . When I came in, everyone was friendly. I got a good feeling when everyone came up and introduced themselves." (Helene Elliott, Newsday)

Ulf Dahlen

NO. 14 IS NO. 1—He will play this season with Bjorkloven of the Swedish Elite League. He was named by some NHL GMs as the best player in the first round of the 1985 NHL draft. He's the Rangers' first round choice, Ulf Dahlen, a 6-2, 194 pound center, who was chosen as the Best Junior Player in Sweden last year while with Ostersund. At only 18, he's still got some time in Sweden, but the man who won the scoring title while captaining Sweden in the European Junior Championships last April will be doing his thing in the Garden for years to come. (Photo by Janne Hellgren)

THE NEW YORK RANGERS: 60 YEARS OF HISTORY AND TRADITION

By Alan Greenberg

The 1985-86 season marks the Rangers' 60th year in the National Hockey League. In the six decades which elapsed since the legendary Frank Boucher stood opposite Montreal Maroons' Nels Stewart to take the opening faceoff at the old Madison Square Garden on November 16, 1926, the "Blueshirts" have accumulated a wealth of hockey history and lore. There has been triumph and heartbreak. There were championship seasons and frustrations. The Rangers have had their share of Hall of Famers as well as memorable characters. Through the good years and lean years the Rangers always had a following of loyal fans. While it is impossible to consolidate 60 years into a few pages, let us take a look back at that period, from the beginning to the present.

The Embryonic Years (Pre-1926)
A Promoter and an Idea

In 1925, the third Madison Square Garden opened its doors on Eighth Avenue and West 50th Street. It was to be coined "The Most Famous of Sports Arenas." That same year, the NHL franchise in Hamilton, Ontario, was experiencing financial difficulties and relocated to New York, was renamed the "Americans" and became a tenant at the Garden. Thus, NHL hockey was introduced to New York.

The popularity of the New York Americans prompted the President of Madison Square Garden, boxing impresario Tex Rickard, to acquire a franchise under the direct ownership of the Garden. He then hired Conn Smythe, a successful coach at the University of Toronto, to assemble a team. At the very same time, the Western Hockey League was about to fold, thereby making some excellent players available to the three new NHL franchises which were to begin operations in 1926-27. In addition to the Rangers, named for "Tex's Rangers," the Detroit Cougars and the Chicago Black Hawks entered the NHL that season.

Smythe proceeded to gather a collection of hockey players which exceeded everyone's expectations. The team assembled in training camp in Toronto before the 1926-27 season. At about the same time, Smythe had a disagreement with management and was dismissed or resigned, depending upon which historian tells the story. He returned to Toronto and bought a team called the St. Patricks which later became the Maple Leafs.

On October 26, 1926, Lester Patrick, the "Silver Fox," became general manager. He had been a player and builder in Western Canada and was to remain with the Rangers for twenty years. As a player, he had been a renowned defenseman in the Pacific Coast Hockey League before the advent of the NHL. He was also recognized as the first defenseman to carry the puck up ice to score a goal. Defensemen had previously positioned themselves near their own goalie and never strayed to the offensive zone. As a coach, Patrick was the first to substitute entire lines rather than individual players.

The First Decade (1926-27 through 1935-36)
Hockey's Golden Age

Lester Patrick

The Rangers' opening night lineup included a first line centered by Frank Boucher, with the Cook Brothers, Bill and Bun, on the wings. The group remained together for 10 years and has often been called the greatest of all Ranger lines. Boucher, 25 years old at the time, went on to win the Lady Byng Trophy seven times. Bill Cook, who was 30, led the NHL in scoring during the Rangers' maiden season. Both Frank Boucher and Bill Cook ultimately entered the Hockey Hall of Fame. Bun Cook, 23, on left wing, did not have the overwhelming talent of his brother Bill, but he was an important catalyst. He was one of the early proponents of the drop pass and was one of the first players to deploy the slap shot.

On defense that opening night was 29 year old Ivan "Ching" Johnson, a balding, smiling man who was one of hockey's early heavy hitters. He spent 11 seasons in New York and also was elected to the Hall of Fame. His partner was Clarence "Taffy" Abel, a chubby 26-year old who was more methodic than hard-hitting, but who complemented Johnson perfectly. In goal was Hal Winkler. He was succeeded a few games into the season by Lorne Chabot, who spent two seasons in New York and then became an All-Star with the Black Hawks. The second line featured Murray Murdoch on left wing. Murdoch became hockey's first "Iron Man" by playing in 508 consecutive games over the next 11 seasons.

The early Rangers were a great success. The team made the playoffs for the first nine years of its existence, including first place finishes in the American Division in their opening season, as well as in the 1931-32 season. Two of the Rangers' three Stanley Cups were won during the first decade, in 1927-28 and 1932-33. In the 1928 playoffs, Lester Patrick added to his immortality when he made his famous appearance in the Ranger Goal at 44 years of age.

The Second Decade (1936-37 through 1945-46)
From Glory to the Depths

Bryan Hextall, Phil Watson and Lynn Patrick

The second decade was a study in contrasts for the Rangers. The originals were gradually replaced by new stars. The team made the playoffs for the first six years of their second decade and captured their third Stanley Cup in 1940. In 1941-42, the Rangers finished in first place in the seven-team NHL, with Bryan Hextall leading the NHL in scoring, with his 56 points. Shortly thereafter, the team was decimated by World War II.

The decade began optimistically enough. The farm system had produced excellent players, giving the team depth. In 1939-40, Frank Boucher had become coach, freeing Lester Patrick to concentrate solely on his duties as general manager.

Davey Kerr was the team's star goalie for seven years, during which time he racked up 40 shutouts. In 1940, he won the Vezina Trophy and was an NHL All-Star. The defense in those years was solid, with Muzz Patrick, Art Coulter, Ott Heller and Babe Pratt. The forward lines were outstanding. Neil and Mac Colville, along with Alex Shibicky, comprised one line. The second line consisted of fiery Phil Watson centering for Bryan Hextall and Lynn Patrick. The third line alternated such stalwarts as Clint "Snuffy" Smith, Dutch Hiller, Alf Pike and Kilby MacDonald.

When the Rangers won the Stanley Cup in 1940, it was Bryan Hextall who converted a Phil Watson pass to beat Toronto's Turk Broda in overtime. Five members of that team, Pratt, Neil Colville, Hextall, Coulter and Lynn Patrick, were to make it to the Hall of Fame. Muzz Patrick, Phil Watson, Neil Colville and Alf Pike later coached the Rangers.

Those were great seasons, but nobody could foresee what World War II would do to the Rangers. Depleted of their stars, the Rangers ended their second decade with four consecutive last place finishes and a string of dubious accomplishments which included a 15-0 loss to Detroit in the 1943-44 season, a year in which the Rangers managed only six victories. Goalie Ken MacAuley became a folk hero that season by gamely playing in all 50 contests.

The Third Decade (1946-47 through 1955-56)
A Time to Rebuild

After the war, the long rebuilding process began. Some of the pre-war stars returned, but their talents had ebbed. A new array of hopefuls had arrived. Charlie Rayner was an outstanding goaltender who later entered the Hall of Fame. The forward attack was led by small but effective players like Edgar Laprade, Tony Leswick and 1947-48 Hart Trophy winner Buddy O'Connor. Don "Bones" Raleigh and Wally Hergesheimer were other forwards who had their moments of glory in New York. Defensive stars included Hy Buller, Frankie Eddolls and Ab DeMarco.

Buddy O'Connor, Bones Raleigh and Edgar Laprade

The team left the cellar in 1946-47 and finally made the playoffs again in 1947-48. In 1948-49, they were back in the basement, but in 1949-50, after a fourth place finish, they surprised the hockey world by reaching the Stanley Cup Finals against the Detroit team of its dynasty years. In what was likely the most heartbreaking defeat in the team's history, they lost in sudden death overtime in the seventh game of the finals when, shortly after Don Raleigh's shot eluded Detroit goalie Harry Lumley but struck a post, Red Wing utility forward Pete Babando fired a shot past Chuck Rayner. Years later, Babando became a Ranger. Rayner's heartbreak was eased somewhat when he was named the NHL's MVP that year.

The following season started so slowly that, after winning only one of the first 17 contests, the team hired a hypnotist to attempt to break the doldrums. Famed New York restaurateur Gene Leone chipped in with a "magic elixir" he prepared. The spellbinder and the potion both failed, a prelude to five consecutive years out of the playoffs. The team did not participate in Stanley Cup competition again until 1955-56.

During the mid-50s, change came rapidly. With Muzz Patrick as general manager and Phil Watson as coach, the team entered a colorful, albeit lean period. The team's Guelph, Ontario, junior hockey affiliate delivered Lou Fontinato, Andy Bathgate, Harry Howell and Dean Prentice all at once. They were to be the transition stars into the next decade.

The Fourth Decade (1956-57 through 1965-66)
Four Hall of Famers

Harry Howell

The four Guelph products were the mainstays of the team for the next decade. Andy Bathgate, a genuine superstar, led the team in scoring for eight consecutive seasons, was a two-time All-Star and in 1958-59 won the Hart Trophy as the NHL's Most Valuable Player. Harry Howell was an All-Star, Norris Trophy winner and went on to play more games than any other Ranger in history. Fontinato, an effective hard-hitting defenseman, was a fan-favorite and Prentice had a 22-year NHL career, including 11 seasons in New York.

Other exciting players to don the Ranger sweater during that era included Gump Worsley, the popular and beleaguered goalie; Andy Hebenton, the workmanlike left wing who broke Murray Murdoch's ironman record; and Camille Henry, the tiny left wing who was a master at deflecting shots onto the net. Trades brought the Rangers All-Star defenseman Bill Gadsby and scrappy center and team captain George "Red" Sullivan.

The team struggled, yet history has treated it kindly. Bathgate, Worsley, Howell and Gadsby all were elected to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

The Rangers made the playoffs during Phil Watson's first three seasons as coach. Inn 11 9957-58, the team rallied to a second-place finish before being eliminated by Boston in the playoffs. Then the drought began in earnest. In 1958-59, a late-season slump knocked the Rangers from playoff eligibility on the last day of the season. Playoff tickets had already been distributed.

The Rangers did not make the playoffs again until 1961-62, with all-time great defenseman Doug Harvey as player-coach. Again they were eliminated in the opening round. They then finished their fourth decade with four consecutive non-playoff seasons.

The Fifth Decade (1966-67 through 1975-76)
A New Generation

Emile Francis

This decade truly belonged to Emile "The Cat" Francis, who had become general manager with the commencement of the 1964-65 season and was to remain until 1976. During the decade, he served three terms behind the bench, compiling a total of 342 victories in 654 games. It was during the Francis years that the Rangers enjoyed their longest sustained success since hockey's Golden Age.

Francis had coached in the Rangers' minor league organization and knew the talent well. Rod Gilbert, Jean Ratelle and Vic Hadfield became stars under The Cat's guidance. Gilbert broke Andy Bathgate's scoring records. Ratelle might have led the NHL in scoring in 1971-72 had it not been for a late season freak injury and Hadfield was the only Ranger to score 50 goals in a season.

There were more stars under Francis. Brad Park was a find in the 1966 Draft. Walt Tkaczuk and Bill Fairbairn were products of the Ranger farm system and Ed Giacomin, rescued via trade from obscurity in the minors, broke Dave Kerr's shutout record by recording 49 as a Ranger. Giacomin and Gilles Villemure won the Vezina Trophy in 1970-71. Steve Vickers was Rookie of the Year in 1972-73.

While his stars were developing, Francis deployed the "Old Smoothies," Bob Nevin, Phil Goyette and Don Marshall, all obtained via trades, to add stability to the team. Another veteran, fabled Montreal star Bernie Geoffrion, had been coaxed out of retirement to join the Rangers in 1966-67. His powerful shot helped the Rangers get back into the playoffs that season.

The Francis years were a mixture of triumph and frustration. For nine consecutive years the team made the playoffs, including three trips to the semi-finals and one to the finals in 1971-72. In 1970-71, the team recorded an all-time high of 49 victories. Through the decade, the team came close to glory, yet an untimely injury or a tough loss deprived them of the spotlight.

The decade ended ignominously. In 1974-75 the upstart Islanders upset the Rangers in the opening playoff round on an overtime goal by J.P. Parise. The following two years the team missed the playoffs. Slowly, the stars were traded away. It was time to rebuild again.

The Francis era ended in January, 1976 when John Ferguson, an old nemesis as a player, became coach and general manager.

Phil Esposito

In the decade which will conclude with this season, the Rangers, and the entire NHL, witnessed rapid changes. Ted Sator is the sixth coach since the 1976-77 season. In 1977-78, the Rangers made it back to the playoffs after a two-season absence. In 1979, under Fred Shero, they captivated Manhattan with their upset of the rival Islanders, a feat which took them to the Stanley Cup Finals.

Players like John Davidson, Ron Duguay, Ron Greschner and Don Murdoch were the hope of the future. In the Summer of 1978 the Rangers made headlines by signing Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson to lucrative contracts. That same summer, Don Maloney was the Rangers' first draft pick. The two Swedish imports delighted the fans for years and paved the way for other European stars.

The 1980 Olympics were to have a profound impact on the Rangers. Herb Brooks and Craig Patrick, now the team's general manager, who gained fame by coaching Team USA, brought the international style of play to New York. Four members of that Gold Medal team, Mark Pavelich, Bill Baker, Dave Silk and Rob McClanahan, later played for the Rangers.

Trades brought other top performers of the 70's and the 80's to the Rangers. In 1975, in one of hockey's biggest trades ever, Phil Esposito and Carol Vadnais came to the Big Apple. Barry Beck, Mike Rogers, Pierre Larouche and Glen Hanlon are current Rangers who were the products of shrewd transactions. Of course, let us not forget fan favorites of the decade, such as Eddie Johnstone and New York's own Nick Fotiu.

As the Rangers enter their sixtieth year, there is again an aura of optimism. The new coaching staff has a blend of seasoned veterans including Beck, Hanlon, Rogers, Pavelich, Don Maloney, Reijo Routsalainen and Tom Laidlaw to go along with promising youngsters such as John Vanbiesbrouck, Bob Brooke, James and Stephen Patrick, Jan Erixon, Peter Sundstrom and Tomas Sandstrom, a member of the NHL's All-Rookie Team.

* * * * *

The first 60 years had a little of everything, including three Stanley Cups. The "next 60" should be just as exciting.

LONE RANGER RETIRED SWEATER

It's only been done once. The Rangers have retired only one sweater number in their 59-year history . . . No. 7. That was done on Opening Night at the Garden on October 14, 1979. The first No. 7 was worn by Frank Boucher, the last by Rod Gilbert.

Rangers Alumni Association

Four years old and getting bigger! That's the New York Rangers Alumni Association, as administered by former Ranger Steve Vickers and Hall of Fame referee and former color-commentator for the New York Rangers Bill Chadwick. Originated in 1981 to keep track of the close to 600 ex-Broadway Blueshirts, the organization has grown every year, in the commitment it has made to its members and the number of charitable events it has been involved in. Its main thrust—"Keeping In Touch With Tradition," by keeping in touch with its alumni—is maintained by the publishing of a newsletter three times a year containing alumni news and updates on the former Rangers. The Association runs its Annual Golf and Tennis Classic—for the second year in a row a sellout this past September—and participates in numerous charitable events, from golf tournaments to visits to hospitals to contributions to New York charities—all under the spirit of the RAA's motto—"There Are No More Lone Rangers." This year, the Fourth Annual RAA Award, presented to that Ranger who has performed "outstanding service to hockey in general and the New York Rangers in particular," will, for the first time, be voted upon by all the Alumni themselves.

"Sarge," "Say Hey," and "The Big Whistle"—Steve Vickers, Willie Mays and Bill Chadwick pose before an Alumni benefit softball game this summer which raised over $5,300 for the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation.

Rangers Wives Annual Fashion Show

It's a chance to see how the Rangers really dress. Well, some of them, at least. But more so, it's a chance to help the Rangers adopted charity, the New York State Federation for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect. On February 21, 1986 at the Vista International Hotel, for the fifth year in a row, every Ranger player, wife, child and girlfriend will partake in the Annual Fashion Show and Dinner, at which Ranger fans get a chance to enjoy a scrumptious meal, after which they can sit back and watch their favorite Ranger and his family model the latest in designer-wear fashion. In 1985, over $80,000 was raised to fight child abuse and this year, the Ranger Wives have pledged to reach the century mark in funds. In addition to the show, attendees get a chance to win numerous prizes, from special weekend stays at New York hotels, to autographed hockey sticks. All for a good cause. For more information on this year's show, contact the Rangers at 212-563-8000.

Ranger Youngsters Excel At World Championships

TONY THE TIGER–Ranger 1982 fifth round draft choice Tony Granato beats Canada goalie Pat Riggin to tie the score in the USA-CANADA game in the final round of the World Championships on April 29, 1985.

This past spring in Prague, Czechoslovakia, six young Rangers, three with the team and three "to come," helped lead an untested Team USA club to the medal round of the World Championships for the first time since 1976. Bob Brooke, Kelly Miller and John Vanbiesbrouck, who had just finished their rookie seasons with New York, and draft choices Clark Donatelli, Tony Granato and Corey Millen were major factors in America building a 4-2-1 record that enabled them to gain entree to the medal round. With Vanbiesbrouck in the nets, the US upset Sweden, Canada and eventual champion Czechoslovakia in the space of four days. Millen got the game-winning goal (4-3) against Sweden; Donatelli, Granato and Miller (who formed perhaps team USA's most effective line) scored three of America's four goals in a 4-3 shocker over Canada; and Granato netted the game-winner over the Czechs (3-1), with Millen providing the insurance score. The young club finished without a medal in the championship round, but its performance, with Vanbiesbrouck being one of only two NHLers named to the tournament's All-Star Team, showed that the future looks bright for America in international competition—and the Rangers in NHL competition.
